NEW TAX ACCORD WINS APPROVAL OF LEGISLATORS

Plan Also Indorsed by City Council.

BY PARKE BROWN.

Marked progress was recorded yesterday for the latest proposal for the reorganization of the tax system in Cook county—the proposal that evolved from a conference at the Stevens hotel on Monday.

It provides for the replacement of the two present tax boards temporarily by one appointive assessor, to be named jointly by the governor and the president of the county board, and two appointive reviewers, one to be chosen by the governor and the other by the county board president.

The proposal became known yesterday as the Kelly plan because the meeting at which it was evolved—attended by Gov. Emmerson, Mayor Cermak and nearly a score of other officials, legislators and business men—was called by D. F. Kelly, chairman of the citizens' tax warrant selling committee, and the program was announced by him.

Wins Rapid Indorsement.

That this conference had reached an accord upon the most feasible plan available was considered to have augured well for its general acceptance as the only proposal with a chance of passage by the special session of the general assembly, but the ability of indorsemegt the first day after it was brought forward was unexpected.

In the morning it was presented to the special committee of nine created by the caucus of the Cook county delegation in the assembly last Wednesday. When that committee was appointed its members were said to be hostile to the policy of the appointment of tax officials instead of their election. Some favored the retention of present officials.

Legislators Approve Plan.

But when the committee had thrashed out the subject with some heat there was not a vote against the plan, and a majority voted in favor of recommending it to the second Cook county caucus next Monday morning. Four members who were present did not vote, each assigning a different reason for his silence, some indicating they may support the plan later.

In the afternoon the city council also indorsed the plan. Its action was taken upon recommendation of the finance committee, which listened during the morning to Mayor Cermak's view of the situation—that politics must be forgotten in this matter.

Discussion in the council itself was brief, two members criticizing the proposal, but failing to vote against it—Ald. Oscar F. Nelson (46th) and Ald. Harold Hodes (7th). Two aldermen, who also are members of the house of representatives, Thomas J. O'Grady and Joseph P. Rostenkowski, asked to be excused from voting.

Democrats Also Won Over.

Here, too, as in the meeting of the committee of legislators, the record showed not a single opposition vote, and it was remarked by observers that a similar situation would have developed at a Democratic noon luncheon if a roll call voted had been taken.

Mayor Cermak's appeal there, to end up with an analysis of the situation by Senator Thomas J. Courtney, appeared to have reconciled the partisan gathering to the sacrifices declared necessary in order to bring about some action by the special session. But no vote was requested.

This was a luncheon of the county managing committee together with the Democratic members of the legislature from Cook county. Mayor Cermak had expected to ask an indorsement of the Kelly plan there, but, he said, on second thought determined to allow more time for a study of it.

Mayor Pleads for Plan.

After explaining that his whole personal inclination favors elective and not appointive taxing officials, the mayor told his party organization he deemed "the only hope" for aid from the legislature lay in the revised form of the bill to abolish the present boards of assessors and review.

He mentioned the suggestion of the governor's tax conference that all of the new officials be appointed by the president of the county board, but said there was no chance of approval by a Republican controlled assembly.

"What is our alternative?" he asked. "There is none. I believe it is our plain, unmistakable duty to support this measure. Mr. Senator and Mr. Representative, I want to know if you do not support this bill what will you support? Sup-

JUDGE ASSAILS LARGE DEBTORS OF CLOSED BANK

Realty Dealer Faces Contempt Action.

Men of prosperous appearance paraded before Circuit Judge Michael Feinberg yesterday. One and all said they could not pay a penny on loans ranging from $30,000 to $150,000 which they had obtained from the Sheridan Trust and Savings bank before it closed last June with $5,500,000 due to more than 40,000 depositors.

Late in the day the judge became angered at the stories told him. He gave the witnesses a verbal lashing and ordered one cited for contempt of court. Another man, who had listed his worth in 1930 as $750,000, was warned that he was in danger of a jail sentence when he professed inability to pay anything on a $150,000 debt.

Depositors Crowd Court.

The courtroom was crowded with depositors. They listened to the testimony of the bank debtors in a grim silence. There was subdued excitement when the judge lost his patience with Victor J. Curto, 2100 Pratt avenue, president of V. J. Curto, Inc., a real estate concern.

Curto had testified that he lived in a 14 room house on a half block of ground worth $100,000; owned two Packards and shared an income with his wife from a $150,000 trust fund which he established in June, 1930, a few days before he borrowed $100,000 from the Sheridan bank.

"What can you pay on this $150,000 debt?" Curto was asked by Attorney Elwood Godman, one of the lawyers appointed by Judge Feinberg to assist him in his bank investigations.

"Well, when things change I'll pay it all," replied Curto. "I put up $300,000 collateral for that $150,000 loan."

"What can we get on that collateral?" Judge Feinberg inquired.

Suggests Trade for Trust.

"You've testified that you established a $150,000 trust fund with the Chicago Title and Trust company in June, 1930," Judge Feinberg pointed out, "We'll give you the $300,000 collateral and you give us the $150,000 trust fund in payment of your debt."

"The trust is 'irrevocable,'" demurred the witness. "It was to protect my wife and children. They get $450 a month income from it."

"But a week after you established this trust you began digging into the treasury of the Sheridan bank," declared the judge with some heat. "Don't you think the depositors have some rights to protection, also? Will you ask your wife to sign over this trust to us?"

"I wouldn't even ask her," declared Curto, firmly. "I'll protect my wife and family against the world."

Q.—In spite of the fact that you know there are starving depositors of that bank? A.—I'm going to pay it in time.

Q.—When? A.—If I could answer that, I'd be glad to.

Q.—Will it be in 1932, do you think? A.—By May 1 I think the real estate business will begin to pick up.

Attacks Plea of Debtor.

Q.—You're stating now the improbable and falsely optimistic views which enabled you to get such large loans from the bank. There are hundreds of thousands suffering in this city because of your kind of optimism. A.—Everybody who knows me knows I will pay that debt. I'm having a terrible time getting along. The real estate business is in awful shape. My family and I are just scraping along by strictest economy.

Judge Feinberg exploded at this plea.

"You're living in a 14 room house and running two Packard cars," he exclaimed. "Are you trying to get my sympathy when I have letters in the mail from depositors in this bank who haven't the car fare to come down and tell their troubles? You're talking about your troubles? The absurdity—the audacity of such talk is appalling. Now keep quiet or I'll put you where you belong."

The judge then directed that an order be prepared forcing Curto to pay rent on his home, title to which is held by the bank, to the receiver, and also authorizing the receiver to take over the two automobiles. Curto was ordered to return to court today with his wife.

Threatens Contempt Sentence.

George G. McCabe, 5507 North Artesian avenue, was another real estate dealer whose testimony caused the judge to direct the lawyers to prepare a petition calling upon McCabe to show cause why he should not be committed to jail for contempt of court.

McCabe, who borrowed $25,709 from

FASHION TO PREFER BRUNETTES IN 1932, NEW YORK HINT

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Nineteen-thirty-two will be a brunette year with black hair preferred, some of Manhattan's popular hairdressers predicted today.

"The platinum blond craze, were it to continue for another year would create a race of bald women," one asserted.

For those women who have dyed their chestnut or raven locks extremely blond there is only one sure way to avoid the telltale widening band of dark hair as the hair grows out.

The hair must be bobbed quite short and a transformation of the desired color used until their own crowning glory, growing longer, edges out the last traces of its blond bleach.

There is a decided swing backward to feminity in all the fashion forecasts for the new year and the hair styles must follow suit.

The back hair will be longer, long enough to curl softly over the edge of the new hats. The new wave will have a continuity that makes the head attractive from any angle and may start at the side front and progress in a gently rising line around the head to the other side.

Britain and France Near Debt Accord

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Dec. 29.—British and French treasury experts were reported tonight to be close to an agreement on a program for dealing with Germany at the conference on reparations to be held at the Hague or Lausanne, Switzerland, on Jan. 18 or 20. Instead of seeking to devise a final settlement on either reparations or war debts, it is planned to confine the conference to a search for a provisional solution.

A new three year moratorium will be granted to Germany on the "conditional" portion of the Young plan annuities if the proposed program is accepted. In order to preserve the legal integrity of the Young plan, Germany would still be required to pay into the Bank for International Settlements during the period of the moratorium the "unconditional" portion of the annuities, such amounts to be immediately released by the bank to the German railways or reinvested within Germany, thus avoiding all cash transfers abroad by the reich.

Follows Hoover Plan.

This, it is pointed out, would be in accord with the procedure at present followed under the Hoover moratorium.

The creditor powers would undertake to concede to Germany an impartial reexamination of her capacity to pay reparations toward the close of the moratorium period.

The conference's acceptance of this program would carry with it the expectation that Germany will rehabilitate her commercial credit by agreeing with American, British, and French banks for a gradual repayment of her frozen short term credits, and in return for the allies' moratorium to Germany, America would be requested to grant her European war debtors a corresponding measure of relief.

Follows Experts' Report.

Such a request for an American moratorium for Europe, it is argued, would be in strict accord with the findings of the committee of world bank experts and with the American policy and practice as initiated by the Hoover moratorium. It would in effect constitute a logical extension of the latter and conform to the condition laid down by President Hoover in his Washington talks with Premier Laval of France.

SLAIN ON GANG RIDE; BODY IS FOUND IN ROAD

The body of an unidentified man about 40 years old who had been shot to death was found early this morning beside Wolf road about three-quarters of a mile north of Grand avenue and a mile west of Franklin Park.

County Highway Policemen Clarence Haskins, Victor Edgren and Edward Krot made the discovery. The victim, who was about 40 years old, had apparently been shot while with persons he trusted. A partly smoked cigar was in one of his hands and a box of matches in the other. The police believed he had been taken for a ride and shot in an automobile.

Cards found in his pockets and labels on the clothing were the only clews to identity. Most of the cards had been issued by cigar stores in the Wilson avenue district.

One bore the name of an attorney, Joseph Charash, 120 South La Salle street, and another the name of Jack Laverne, 4017 Clarendon avenue, bailiff to Municipal Judge Alfred O. Erickson.

Laverne, given a description of the dead man by the police, said it resembled that of an Abe Cooper, 901 Buena avenue, whom he remembered as a political hanger on at the 44th Ward Republican club.

ROCCO WANTS HIS SQUIRREL IF HE'S GOING TO JAIL

Superior Judge Joseph Sabath sentenced Rocco Carbone, 1702 North Crawford avenue, to "alimony row" in the county jail yesterday because he was $320 in arrears in payments to his former wife, Felicia. Then Carbone spoke up.

"I want my squirrel back," he said.

Startled, the judge turned for explanation to Mrs. Carbone's attorney, Rocco DeStefano.

"He gave me the squirrel to show his appreciation when I got him out of jail a year ago," DeStefano remarked.

"So you want it back," said the judge to Carbone. "But how will you feed your pet in the jail?"

"O, that's no problem," Carbone growled after the lawyer had promised to return the animal, "this squirrel is stuffed."

HUNT FOR BOY'S BASEBALL STARTS SUIT FOR $30,000

The praecipe of a $30,000 damage suit which is the outgrowth of injuries alleged to have been suffered by Cosker Quillan, 821 Wrightwood avenue, when he tried to recover the baseball of his son, James, 9 years old, after it had been knocked into a neighbor's yard during a game, was filed in the Circuit court yesterday. The action, filed by Attorney Gustave Neuberg, was directed against James Wahler, 823 Wrightwood avenue. According to the attorney, Quillan was burned by tear gas when Wahler fired a fountain pen gas gun at him last May 31.

Revealing Why Father Piper Is Piping So Low

Clarence Piper, cornetist with the Rotsy Totsy band at the North Pole cafe, 116th street and Torrence avenue, lifted his trumpet to his lips on a sultry night last August and tooted with great vigor. The tune was "Yes, Sir, That's My Baby."

The band leader had chosen the piece as a whimsical compliment to his star cornetist. Mr. Piper, it appeared, was about to realize a long cherished ambition and become a father.

Early in the spring his wife, Alice, a former entertainer at the Granada cafe, had dropped a hint which sent Mr. Piper spreading joyful tidings. Subsequently she intimated that he had best restrain his enthusiasm because his hopes might go unfulfilled after all.

Despair, Then Joy Again.

So chagrined was Mr. Piper that he vowed to leave his wife forever and, for a few weeks, actually refused to set foot in their cottage at Hobart, Ind. Then one night, to his great relief, his wife telephoned that her fears had been groundless and the heir was on the way.

Due to the loneliness of the nights at home, Mrs. Piper explained that she proposed leaving the cottage at Hobart to stay with a friend, Mrs. Florence Wildermuth of Gary, until the baby was due. She had made arrangements to enter the Methodist hospital near Mrs. Wildermuth's home on Aug. 13, she added.

Mr. Piper was filled with remorse and solicitude. Although his wife said no haste was necessary, the trumpeter got a leave of absence from the band, leaped into his car and broke all speed laws to Hobart. There he found Mrs. Piper, smiling wanly and swathed in several overcoats in preparation for the trip to Gary.

Mrs. Piper Goes to Hospital.

Daily for the next three weeks on his way to work Mr. Piper stopped at the Gary dot, bringing nosegays for his wife's boudoir and novels for her wakeful hours. On the evening of Aug. 12, sometime after his regular visit, Mrs. Piper left for the hospital, accompanied by her friend, Mrs. Wildermuth.

There was nothing in her condition, however, to indicate a need of obstetrical attention. Mrs. Piper asked for the head of the hospital and was presented to Dr. J. H. Doty, secretary. To him she explained her errand and was taken to the hospital nursery.

There in one of the cribs lay a blue eyed, black haired baby boy, weight 7 and one-half pounds, and born the previous day to an unwed girl who had come to Gary from rural Missouri and enlisted Dr. Doty's aid and sympathy. The baby's name was David.

A Loan Is Suggested.

The physician doubted that an adoption could be arranged. He explained that, although the mother was poor and friendless she felt too fierce a pride and love of her son to consider giving him up.

The doctor thought, however, that the mother might consent to "loaning" the baby to Mrs. Piper for a few months until she gained strength to support him herself. Then Mrs. Wildermuth, also a mother, put in a suggestion.

There was her 10 year old daughter, Peggy, the child of a previous marriage. Peggy was living with Mrs. Wildermuth's mother, Mrs. Dora Porter, 8431 Euclid avenue, Chicago. The unwed mother could go to live with Mrs. Porter, caring for Peggy until she was ready to reclaim her son.

So All Is Settled.

Pressed by Mrs. Piper and Mrs. Wildermuth, the mother agreed. She went to live with Mrs. Porter and her baby went with Mrs. Piper. The weeks passed and with each succeeding day Mr. Piper's paternal pride grew stronger.

Mr. Piper took to inviting the

DRIVEN FROM CHINCHOW BY JAPAN'S TROOPS

Abandon Fight for Manchuria.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 30.—(Wednesday.)—Chinese troops at Panshan and Kowpangtze are in complete rout, according to a Tientsin dispatch. Volunteer troops and bandits began a general offensive against the Japanese at Paichipu this morning. Fierce fighting is reported.

BULLETIN.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

TOKIO, Dec. 30 (Wednesday).—A number of Japanese warships sailed from Port Arthur at 8 o'clock last night for an unannounced destination owing to the situation at Chinchow. The vessels are under direct orders of the fleet commander. A dispatch from Tientsin said the first of the Manchurian troops began withdrawing within the great wall shortly after dawn and that there was great confusion at Shanhaikwan.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

CHINCHOW, Dec. 29 [Midnight.]—The Chinese army began evacuating Chinchow tonight. Seven trainloads of troops moved southward toward Lanchan, which is inside the great wall of China. Other Chinese military forces east of Chinchow are fleeing westward.

Great confusion prevails here. Civilians, as well as armed Chinese troops, were trying to climb aboard the south bound trains.

Beg for Places on Train.

I reached Kowpangtze, on the Peiping-Mukden railway at 8 o'clock tonight ahead of the advancing Japanese army, which captured Panshan today and was moving toward Kowpangtze, located about forty miles from Chinchow. The populace was dashing frantically about begging to be taken aboard trains already swarming with refugees.

The Japanese army is expected to reach Kowpangtze early tomorrow morning.

While in Kowpangtze I heard the drone of Japanese airplanes over the city. Only a few bombs were dropped, killing one soldier and wounding several civilians. Several soldiers standing in the railway station fired in the direction of the planes with their rifles.

Chinese Routed at Panshan.

The Japanese army of Lieut. Gen. Jiro Tamon captured the city of Panshan at noon today, but the retreating Chinese forces executed an encircling movement and attacked the rear of the Japanese column. The fighting continued until late afternoon, when the Chinese fled.

The vanguard of the Japanese army reached Panshan from Tawa at 10 o'clock last night. Fighting began at once and lasted until after daybreak. The casualties are unknown.

Only a small force of Chinese troops, consisting chiefly of village defense guards, are making a stand against the oncoming Japanese at Kowpangtze. The rest of the troops are in flight.

Japanese Search Train.

I left Mukden at 10:40 a. m. today aboard what was apparently the last train out of that city before the Japanese commandeered the line to transport troops to Chinchow. The train was delayed an hour at Chuluho station while the Japanese searched hundreds of Chinese passengers. In some cases the search extended skin deep, and many Chinese men and women were compelled to remove many layers of winter clothing.

When the train reached Hainiin, Japanese troops there repeated the search, several Japanese soldiers entering the first class coach and looking at me askance, but did not search me.

However, one first class Chinese passenger, named Fuchuan Chou, a graduate of Syracuse university, who is employed in the Mukden office of the American trade commissioner, was searched, despite the fact that he carried letters of introduction from the trade commissioner, C. E. Christopherson, as well as the Japanese consul general at Mukden.

After leaving Hsinmin, the train entered so-called "no man's land," but the territory was peaceful. The stations were guarded by a sort of village militia in plain clothes and wearing arm bands with the inscription, "Righteous and Brave Army."

When the train stopped villagers crowded up and asked, "When are the Japanese coming?" Practically no Chinese soldiers were visible along the road except for a small armed guard aboard the train. At Tahushan, however, where a Chinese railway running north to Tungliao reaches the main line of the Peiping-Mukden line, a number were in evidence.

The train was frequently delayed at station sidings to permit troop trains to pass westward. Only one airplane was seen. It flew over the train while it was standing at Hsinmin and dropped one bomb in an open field half a mile from the railway. Then it returned to Mukden.

Japanese Cut Communications.

According to railway employes at Chinchow, the Japanese cut the railway telegraph and telephone lines at Lucheko station, this side of Hsinmin, about 2 p. m. today, immediately after the arrival from Hsinmin of the first Japanese troop train for Chinchow.

At Tahushan I met James Park, British traffic controller on the Peiping-Mukden railway, who was proceeding to Shanhaikwan.

[Copyright, 1931: By Associated Press.]

PEIPING, China, Dec. 29.—Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang ordered his Manchurian troops to evacuate the Chinchow area today and withdraw within the great wall of China.

"I have taken this action solely in order that the Japanese military may have no pretext for extending warfare and its consequences into North China, especially the Peiping-Tientsin area," Marshal Chang said.

The withdrawal already has commenced, it is understood, and will proceed as rapidly as possible.

News of the marshal's decision was made public after his headquarters announced that the Chinese had succeeded in cutting in behind the Japanese army that is pushing north from Tingkow toward Kowpangtze. His headquarters also announced that several hundred Chinese and at least 150 Japanese had fallen in the fighting in the Tingkow-Kowpangtze district during the last few days.

ANOTHER CITY FALLS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

MUKDEN, Manchuria, Dec. 29.—Steadily pushing forward, the Japanese army today captured the city of Paushan on its drive north from Tingkow to Kowpangtze on the Peiping-Mukden railway.

The capture followed an air raid on the city by three Japanese bombing planes. Then the advance cavalry moved in, followed by the main body of infantry.

The advance today from Tawa was machinelike in precision. Four times the Chinese put up stiff resistance, but four times they were forced to yield before the better trained and better equipped Japanese troops with their airplanes, artillery, cavalry, and infantry.

Try to Surround Chinese.

While the army of Lieut. Gen. Jiro Tamon was driving north a brigade of Japanese troops, including infantry and artillery, was moving against the Chinese. According to dispatches, these troops, under the command of Maj. Gen. Kamura, had reached Hsinmin in four troop trains today from Mukden in a movement designed to hem in the retreating Chinese.

A communique from the Japanese army headquarters at Mukden today recorded the steady advance of Gen. Tamon's column from Tawa, a city which the Japanese captured yesterday. After resting there for the night, the Japanese began their second day's offensive against the Chinese before daylight when the cavalry moved out. The infantry followed at 8 o'clock.

New Chinese Cabinet Named.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Dec. 30 [Wednesday].—Completion of the personnel of the Chinese coalition government and appointment of a new cabinet, including Eugene Chen, leader of the Canton faction, as foreign minister and Huang Han-liang as minister of finance, has been received with general relief in view of the Chinchow evacuation.

It is learned that efforts will be directed toward a settlement with Tokio along the lines Chen proposed on a visit to the Japanese capital last summer, although the new Japanese government may complicate matters. Chen, who sought Japanese help for the rebel government which had been set up at Canton, is believed to be willing to concede treaty guarantees in exchange for military withdrawal.

It is learned that the new government will not insist upon abolition of extraterritoriality on Jan. 1. The general policy will be to strengthen civilian control of the government, reduce military expenditures, and restore peace with Japan.

STATE STRIKES SNAG IN BRIDLE PATH EVIDENCE

Defense Sees Victory in Judges' Ruling.

The prosecution struck a snag yesterday in the graft conspiracy trial of Timothy J. Crowe, president of the sanitary district during the wild spending days of 1927-'28, and seven of his former associates. The setback came after the state had wound up the pay roll padding testimony and started delving into the $1,000,000 cinder bridle path along the north shore channel road.

ATTORNEY FINK.

Attorney Albert Fink, chief of the defense counsel, who had done little cross-examination of the state's witnesses on the pay roll padding testimony, jumped to his feet with an objection as soon as Prosecutor John E. Northup called a sanitary district employé to the stand and announced that he was now going into the evidence on the bridle path.

Judges Call a Recess.

After spirited legal arguments Chief Justice Harry Fisher, who is presiding, and his associates, Judges James J. Kelly and John Prystalski, who are sitting in an advisory capacity, called a recess and went into chambers to decide how far the prosecution could proceed. The decision rendered affects all phases of the contract evidence in the case.

"We adhere to the statement that I made during the argument," said Judge Fisher in rendering the decision, "that we contemplate allowing you [the prosecutor] to prove the actual cost to the district of the building of the bridle path, or of any particular portion of it, such as the total cost of the cinders, as well as to prove the reasonable value of it, so that such inference as may be drawn from any excessive cost you will have the benefit of.

"This we contemplate doing with any work or construction, or with any contract of the sanitary district that comes within the bill of particulars. This much more we shall permit you to do: We will permit you to put on one witness and by him prove the general mode of procedure, simply to enable us to see how it was done. If the total cost of the cinders in this project was $170,000, you may show what the total was, and that it was paid for by vouchers under $500, simply proving the method, and then proceed to prove the value."

Statement from Defense.

After this statement was made Attorney Fink said he was willing to stipulate to these facts, and the auditor employed by the state was then placed on the stand to show his examination of the district records. It was evident from Attorney Fink's statements during his attack on the cinder path phase of the state's case that he does not believe the state in its pay roll testimony has proved a case against the defendants. He said:

"Are we to sit here and waste days and days, as we have to date, on this pay roll business, and to wind up with absolutely nothing that sustains a single allegation of this indictment, when all your honors have to do is to say to the state, 'Put in the proof that the trustees made the false representations first, and then let us see if it was false'?

"It is just the old, old story of conspiracy cases with which your honors are just as familiar as I am. The prosecution just piles up a lot of heat such as in this alleged forgery by Martin Edelstein the other day, and winds up with nothing. Now, if your honors are inclined to sit here and let the prosecutor run all over the lot, and not make him prove the essential things first, why of course, I can't help it I can just suggest it, and I object."

The Prosecutor's Answer.

Prosecutor Northup in reply said that of course the trustees did not "shout to the world" the fact that they were doing things under a false pretense as charged in the indictment, but that this fact would have to be deduced from their actions in paying $1.90 for cinders, which could have been purchased by any one for $1 a cubic yard, and from the evasion of the law by paying for the project in vouchers just under $500 instead of letting one large contract by competive bidding.

The full import of the judicial decision given yesterday will not be known until the state tries to produce some more of its testimony today. Prosecutor Northup was apparently satisfied that the decision does not "hamstring" him so much as the defense attorneys seem to think. The prosecutor believes that under the ruling he will still be able to get in much of his testimony to show the bank accounts of the defendants, and also evidence that they bought their own cinders for the project, as well as many other items of evidence.

The bank account testimony, which may be barred by the ruling, shows that deposits as high as $100,000 were made by district officials at about the same time that similar withdrawals were made from their accounts by district contractors.

The Defense Interpretation.

The defense attorneys seemed to think that the ruling of the judges limits the state to showing what the sanitary district paid for the cinder path project and other contract work, and what the prosecution's engineers say the cost actually was.

As a result the defense agreed o stipulate for the record the fact that the district vouchers show the cost of the cinder path to have been $1,068,000, not including the approximate figure of $265,000 for labor, while the prosecution engineer estimated $292,375 would have been a liberal price for the honest construction of the path.

Judge Fisher during the course of the argument said that the fact that the project was paid for by vouchers just under $500, whereas the job was one large construction project, would not "in itself" have any bearing on the case in view of the fact that the specific bridle path count of the indictment was quashed.

Auto truck hire, 8,007½ days..	291,175.00
Team hire, 617 days.....	7,712.50
Rental of equipment	131,490.50
Repairs to rented equipment..	8,458.73
Pay rolls [not complete].....	265,683.35
Materials, equipment, and expense	201,474.41
Total	$1,068,861.01

The audit shows that Lawrence J. O'Brien, former state representative, who is now in the federal prison at Leavenworth for evading income taxes, obtained approximately $35,000 for trucks and teams on the project. The Sabath Desk and Safe company is credited with $1,719.50 for furniture and the John E. Simmons company with $6,790 for boat equipment.

Defends Cost of Work.

Attorney Fink indicated that the defense on the large expenditure would be that the cost of landscaping and removing of spoil banks was included by the district auditors in the cinder path cost. He pointed out such items as the boat cost and charges for seed as supporting his contention.

Paul E. Green, 1049 Thorndale avenue, the prosecution engineer, gave a detailed chart of the work he found done on the cinder path. He pointed out that 41,142 cubic yards is a large estimate for cinders used, while the auditor shows the district paid for 85,886 cubic yards.

THE MORNING SESSION

In the morning session the prosecution closed the pay roll phase of its evidence with the introduction through Hiram B. Kadish, a certified public accountant, of tabulations and graphs showing the steady rise of the district pay rolls from $5,777,445 in 1926 to $10,242,610 in 1928.

Before the accountant took the stand with his charts and tables, Attorney Elmer J. Whitty, 6339 Ellis avenue, testified. He still is first assistant attorney of the district. He stated that his initials appear on some of the expense vouchers for trips to Beardstown and Peoria, but he explained he thought they had been verified by Al Brodie, former chief clerk of the department, or James Brennan, chief investigator.

While Attorney Whitty was on the stand the judges questioned him as to his responsibility. Judge Fisher asked him some questions, apparently with the aim of determining whether the blame for the law department pay roll conditions should be placed on the head of the department or the trustees.

The questioning by Judge Fisher follows:

Q.—Did it not occur to you that something was irregular? A.—I didn't feel that it was my duty as assistant to question the pay rolls.

Q.—You knew about the "statesmen's ledger"? A.—I knew some vouchers had gone through. (Legislators who did not want their names on the regular pay roll were carried in the "statesmen's ledger," according to previous testimony.)

Q.—When your signatures appeared on vouchers it would give the trustees the right to believe that the vouchers were all right, would it not? A.—Yes.

Silent on His Department.

Q.—Did you ever call any one's attention to what was going on in that department? A.—I did not.

Q.—Mr. Hoyne was your superior and in full control? A.—Yes.

Q.—Was he interfered with by the trustees? A.—Not that I know of.

Q.—Can you tell us of a single instance where you, Hoyne, or any one else called the attention of the trustees to the condition in the department? A.—I know of none.

The tabulations of the auditor were placed in the court record by stipulation between Prosecutor Northup and Attorney Fink. One chart showed that the total pay rolls in 1926 amounted to $5,777,445, in 1927 to $6,283,190, and in 1928 to $10,242,610.

The law department pay roll showed the greatest rise, according to the monthly charts. This department showed an increase from $110,016 in January, 1927, to $372,153 in September, 1928, just before the 1928 fall election. This department showed a drop in the number of employés from 1,907 at the peak, in November, 1928, to 85 in the following month. This was after the pay rolls had been cleared of the hundreds of election workers.

850 Paid Without Working.

The prosecution yesterday entered a stipulation of non-working employés whom it did not have time to call to the witness stand. This list contained the names of 242 persons. Combined with those who have already testified there was a total of approximately 850 pay rollers.

Among the more prominent ones listed in the stipulation are Mrs. Elisabeth Conkey, 7420 Yates avenue, Democratic national committeewoman of Illinois, who received $2,850, and City Clerk Peter Brady, 1018 West 79th street, $2,700.

Others named are Ike Weil, brother of the "Yellow Kid" Joseph Weil, $3,162; Oscar DePriest Jr., son of the colored congressman; Daniel Gallery, 1612 Chase avenue, Evanston; Maurice Joy, professional bondsman, and John Krone, sports promoter.

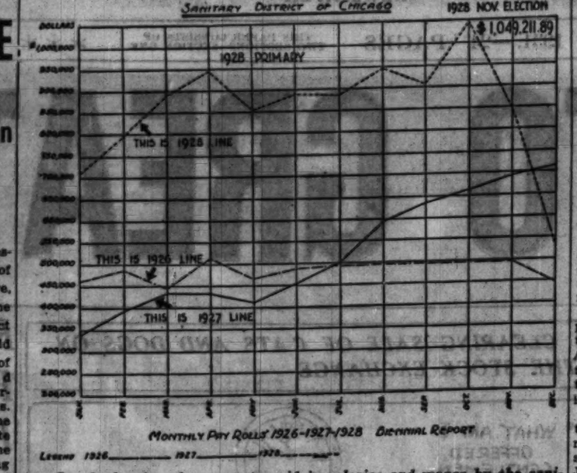
Judge Joseph B. David of the Criminal court yesterday quashed a perjury indictment against Eugene Byrne, former assistant chief of the permanent plants and structures department of the sanitary district. Byrne, when called before the grand jury just before the start of the trial, failed to remember certain details on which he was questioned and his indictment followed. Judge David held that the indictment was faulty.

Connolly to Be Returned.

San Diego, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Waiving extradition, Timothy Connolly, former purchasing agent for the sanitary district of Chicago, arrested here on charges of conspiracy in connection with the sanitary district graft case will be returned to Chicago as soon as arrangements for his departure can be made. Papers for Connolly's extradition were expected here early tomorrow morning and it was said he might start at once for Chicago.

The arrest of Connolly at his home here ended a hunt which started three years ago. It was learned that about a year ago a department of justice agent telegraphed here asking the arrest of Connolly. No immediate action was taken and later when a search was made he could not be found. About two weeks ago James McQueeny, an investigator for the state's attorney in Chicago came here and Connolly's capture was finally effected.

How Drainage Board Pay Rolls Grew as Election Neared



Graph showing the amounts paid in salaries and wages by the sanitary district in each month during the years 1926, 1927, 1928. The peak was reached in October, 1928, just before the election in which three of the trustees were candidates. The pay roll fell to normal shortly after the election. The graph was introduced yesterday in the trial of T. J. Crowe, former president of the district, and his co-defendants.

MADMAN IS SHOT BY POLICE AFTER 3 HOURS' BATTLE

Barricades Self in Home; Crowd Sees Tragedy.

Adam Purecki, 38 years old, a demented veteran of the world war, was wounded and captured last night after fifty policemen had besieged him in his home at 1727 North Artesian avenue for nearly three hours.

During the siege Purecki, bombarded with police tear bombs and bullets, had maintained a desperate resistance, firing and shouting his defiance. A large crowd, attracted by the shooting, collected in the vicinity and several persons were endangered by shots from his pistol.

Struck in Head by Bullet.

Purecki was kneeling on the floor, firing into his front door to keep off policemen trying to get in, and holding a little statue of St. Theresa in his left hand, when a bullet struck him in the head. He was taken to the Bridewell hospital, where it was said his condition was critical.

Purecki was under treatment at government hospitals for a mental ailment early this year. He was released in March and was apparently sane until a month ago, when he began acting strangely again, according to his relatives. His condition became worse when a child was born to his wife eight days ago.

Yesterday he was taken to a physician, Dr. A. E. Malachowski, 1941 North Western avenue, by his nephew, Casimir Pawelko. The physician recommended that he be taken to the Psychopathic hospital.

Drives Family from Home.

Returning home late yesterday afternoon Purecki ordered his family out of the house. His wife left, carrying the baby and leading the three older children. Pawelko then went to Capt. Charles McGurn of the West North avenue station and asked that Purecki be taken into custody. Two policemen, Ambrose Mahoney and Hugo Gara, were sent to the flat, which is on the second floor.

They were refused admittance and they broke down the rear door with an improvised battering ram. As the policemen entered, Purecki, crouched in the shadows of the kitchen, fired at them.

This was about 4:30 p. m. Capt. McGurn, learning of the situation, sent reinforcements and took charge of the siegt himself.

Defies Call to Surrender.

The captain, standing outside the door, pleaded with the crazed man to surrender. Purecki, alternating prayers and curses, shouted: "Come and get me." He fired at intervals through the door and out the windows.

It was nearly 7.45 p. m. when Sergt. McCarthy, seeing that Purecki was about to fire on Capt. McGurn, who was making another plea for surrender, ended the battle.

Purecki, it was said, had grown despondent over his financial condition. He had once owned the little two story building in which he lived, but it is now in the hands of a receiver.

Legislators and City Council Put Approval on Tax Accord pose you hold out enough votes to prevent its passage. There is no other acceptable bill that can be passed.

"From the standpoint of Democratic politics this is more objectionable than any other plan that has been presented. But I feel if you weigh all the considerations, the Democratic party will be big enough to stand up and be counted for a measure of this kind."

Igoe Gives His View.

After speaking Mayor Cermak departed for the council meeting. At his suggestion the next speaker was Representative Michael L. Igoe, minority leader, with whose candidacy for governor Cermak has refused to align himself and who has turned critic, the Cermak forces say, during the special session.

"It requires a lot of nerve to stand out against the pressure behind this bill," said Minority Leader Igoe, "but if we forget the essentials of government, if we give up that which is more priceless than anything else in our governmental scheme, the right to determine our own taxes, we should at least hesitate before doing so and ponder the results seriously."

Senator Courtney told his fellow Democrats that he and others who participated in conferences leading up to the Kelly plan found it necessary to make concessions in order to give any plan upon which they might agree a chance to succeed in the legislature.

Meeting of the Legislators.

Minority Leader Igoe spoke in protest more forcibly at the morning meeting of the legislative committee than he did at the luncheon.

"This is the most violent and most vicious assault on home rule for Chicago ever attempted," he said in passing his vote.

"The plan approved yesterday," said Chairman Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Republican, "is the ultimate. It is a last ditch proposition. Under those circumstances I am ready to vote for it."

Those who voted with him were Senator James J. Barbour and Senator Arthur A. Huebsch, Republicans; Senator Courtney, Democrat, and Representative James P. Boyle, Democrat. Those in addition to Igoe who did not vote were Senator Harold G. Ward, Democrat, and Representatives David I. Swanson and Sol Roderick, Republicans.

Discuss Tax Funding Plans.

This same committee spent the afternoon discussing the opposing proposals of Gov. Emmerson's tax conference and the Chicago Real Estate board, supported by other organizations, with reference to the funding of the 1930 taxes. The conference proposed a six year installment plan of payment, but the opposition has insisted upon funding or "lifting" by means of twenty years bonds.

The committee heard from S. T. Thomason, Harris Keeler, Nathan William MacChesney, attorney for a national association of real estate boards, County Attorney Hayden Bell and others. Then it asked Bell, MacChesney, and Keeler to get together with Montgomery S. Winning, first assistant attorney general of Illinois, and Douglas Sutherland of the Civic federation, to discuss the legal feasibility of the 20 year plan. If the verdict is favorable, they were instructed to prepare a bill for it for the assembly.

Final preparations were being made last night by teacher and parent-teacher organizations to get signatures on petitions asking immediate action by the legislature to avert closing of the Chicago public schools. Following circulation of the petitions through the coöperation of State street stores, churches, the school children, and the teachers there is to be a massmeeting in the Chicago Stadium, 1800 Madison street, on Monday night.

COUNCIL GROUP SAVES JOBS OF 2,000 EMPLOYES

Use Stagger System Until Budget Is Passed.

Fears of some 2,000 city employés that they would find themselves jobless on Saturday, when the new year begins, were quieted yesterday when the city council finance committee approved an ordinance providing that pending adoption of the 1932 city budget all employés shall be kept at work. They will work on staggered schedules, however, to keep expenditures in their departments within the limits set by estimates for budgetary economies.

The measure, which is the continuation ordinance adopted annually to bridge the gap between the first of the year and the adoption of the annual budget, was ordered published by the council yesterday. It probably will be passed at the council meeting next Monday.

Retains Pay Cut Plan.

The continuation ordinance keeps in effect the provision adopted last July by the council, docking all city employés fourteen days' pay every six months. Mayor Cermak sat with the finance committee in considering the measure, and promised that if drastic cuts in personnel become necessary before the budget is passed, authority will be sought from the council.

"The ordinance provides that we must live within our revenues," Mayor Cermak said. "We will try several plans. In some departments we can stagger the working days. In others it may be necessary to put hourly workers on a six hour day. We will let each department work out the plan it thinks best to provide work for all of its present employés and still keep within 1932 budget estimates."

Fill No Vacancies.

The ordinance also directs that all positions now vacant or which become vacant shall not be filled until after the budget is passed, and that expenditures for materials shall be kept to a minimum. If the plan for staggered employment works satisfactorily during the next two months, it may be incorporated in the budget for the full year, it was indicated.

The council passed two resolutions asking emergency action by the legislature for the relief of the unemployed. One, sponsored by Ald. John Toman [23d], asks that jobless property owners be given five years in which to redeem their property which has been sold for taxes at a judicial sale or in foreclosure. The present redemption limit is two years in most cases.

Asks More Relief Funds.

The other resolution, by Ald. James B. Waller [43d], urges the legislature to make emergency provision for additional poor relief funds in Cook county. It quoted an estimate of the governor's relief commission that an additional $15,000,000, over funds already at hand, will be needed for unemployment relief in 1932, and that present funds, private and public, will be exhausted by March 1.

The council authorized the purchase for $84,600 of six new quadruple combination pumpers and hook and ladder trucks for the fire department. Purchase of the new apparatus will save $33,740 in salaries next year, it was said by Acting Fire Commissioner Carmody.

BOY SHOT ACCIDENTALLY.

John Talaber, 12 years old, was shot and seriously wounded last night by a bullet from a rifle in the hands of his brother, Julius, 16 years old. The shooting occurred in the family home at 3021 South Lincoln street. Julius said he believed the weapon was unloaded.

WELFARE WORKERS SEE NEED OF PUBLIC FUNDS FOR RELIEF

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Federal appropriations will be necessary to meet the unemployment situation, Allen T. Burns, director of the Association of Community Chests, and other social workers today informed the La Follette subcommittee of the senate committee on manufactures.

Paul U. Kellogg, editor of The Survey, and Linton B. Wells, executive secretary of the Family Welfare association of New York; Dr. Jacob Billikopf, director of Jewish charities in Philadelphia, and Karl De Schweinitz, secretary of the Philadelphia Community council, and Frank Bane, Washington director of the American Association of Public Welfare Officials, all took this attitude, although some of them, as did Mr. Burns, said they would much prefer to see relief funds come from local governments rather than the federal treasury.

"If you go back to 1928, I should say the need for relief funds is about four times normal. Last year the need was about twice," Mr. Burns added later.

Town in Austria Declares Moratorium; Shuts Schools

VIENNA, Austria, Dec. 29.—[AP]—The industrial town of Steyr in upper Austria has declared a moratorium all its own. It is unable to meet any portion of its liabilities amounting to $150,000. Schools have been ordered closed and communal activities have been suspended. Before the declaration of insolvency, 53 per cent of the people of Steyr were being fed by the municipality.

Population Moves to High Ground.

Glendora, Miss., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Glendora's eleven mile protection levee groaned today against the Tallahatchie river flood and at nightfall hundreds of residents and refugees prepared for any eventuality.

Yesterday the weight of the flood of Panola, Quitman, and Tallahatchie counties crashed 20 feet of the levee here, sending a sheet of water six feet deep through the business section and the lower residential part of the town.

Hundreds of convicts looped a dike around the break, stopping the flow, and today the water had drained off and merchants reopened their stores.

There was still a slight rise in the river at Glendora with the flood stage nearing the crest.

All but the levee workers took refuge for the night in the higher residential section of the city, sleeplessly waiting any emergency.

Other Towns Get Relief.

Sumner, Webb, Asa, Crowder, and other towns up the river in Tallahatchie, Quitman, and Panola counties felt slightly easier tonight with the peak of the flood past them.

The overflow was more than 50 miles wide through the three counties, with the brunt of the battle going on about Glendora.

Famine is stalking through the rural lowlands, but Glendora citizens said no outside aid would be needed in the town. Floating carcasses bore evidence that live stock has perished in great numbers throughout the area.

Los Angeles Recovering.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Highway and repair crews by tonight had succeeded in reopening traffic, patching roads, and restoring flooded areas in most of the Los Angeles area to normal, following yesterday's ten year record rain.

Portions of Long Beach and outlying sections of this city still remained under water tonight, with householders unable to return to their partly inundated homes.

Two suburban highways, in Big Tujunga cañon and San Gabriel cañon, remained unopened, water still running over the Tujunga road, while landslides had closed the San Gabriel thoroughfare.

Snow Covers Rockies.

Denver, Colo., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Snow was general in Montana, Wyoming, Colorado, and New Mexico today, ranging in depth from two to 15 inches, bringing to a close a period of unseasonably warm weather.

Temperatures tonight were at freezing or below, but the snow had ceased falling except for a light fall in some parts of Montana.

AIMEE PROMOTES HER HUSBAND; HE IS NEW MANAGER OF TEMPLE

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Announcement was made today by Mrs. Aimee Semple McPherson-Hutton that F. C. Winters, business manager of Angelus temple for the last 18 months, has been replaced by David L. Hutton Jr., her husband, as business director of the temple.

"My marriage to Mr. Hutton is responsible for the change," Mrs. Hutton said. "There was not enough for both David and Mr. Winters to do, and as David is my husband and is capable of handling the business management, I decided to give him the position."

SCHOOL EXPERTS DISAGREE ON HOW TO TRIM BUDGET

Pare Frills First, Says Prof. Morrison.

BY OSCAR HEWITT.

Two University of Chicago professors of education gave conflicting advice yesterday on what should be done about the 1932 school board budget. They appeared, by request, before a subcommittee composed of Trustees Joseph P. Savage, William D. McJunkin, Walter H. Brandenburg, and President Lewis H. Myers, to recommend ways of meeting a prospective deficit of $8,344,000 in the educational fund account.

Dr. Charles H. Judd urged the closing of the public schools for a month. He would preserve the school system as developed.

Dr. Henry C. Morrison said he would keep the schools open. He advised the trustees to eliminate "the costs which ought to be cut out regardless of the present financial condition of the board." He would follow this by trimming out the less essential functions until the board balances its budget.

Warns of Hazard.

"It is hazardous to trim out school functions which it has taken years to build up," said Dr. Judd. "You cannot save $8,000,000 by that process.

"If you must eliminate $8,000,000—and I am not certain that you must—there is no other way to save $5,000,000 of this sum except to close the schools for a month. Closing the schools will put a burden on the teachers, but it will also awaken the public. People do not know what the schools are accomplishing. No other country is doing so much."

Morrison Would Trim Frills.

"If we trim out of the schools those things which never belonged in it and also some of the essentials," said Dr. Morrison, "we will make progress toward a permanent educational system. If we do not economize now we will jeopardize the giving of essential education later.

"We have had some fancy notions which we have put in the schools in the form of home economics, trimming of hats, and bringing up babies. These, with the clubs and social activities, cut into the teachers' time. Vocational training should not be a part of the school system, unless it brings in revenue.

"The laboratory equipment of the high schools should be cut down. We hand the high school student a compound microscope which he cannot use.

"In these times it is impracticable to take action, but it is not a function of the schools to furnish penny lunches. That is the task of charities. The clinical and dispensary services come in the same class."

Prof. Morrison suggested that the board start trimming at the top by eliminating the Crane Junior college.

Hattan Takes Median View.

Another adviser of the subcommittee was Prof. A. R. Hatton of the Northwestern university political science department. He took a position between the views of Drs. Judd and Morrison.

The subcommittee, before its advisers appeared, decided on reductions in the evening and vacation schools. It also decided to trim appropriations for reference books and the reconstruction of old buildings. Altogether the subcommittee eliminated $800,000 from the budget.

SHOT IN FINGER

ERNEST (PUG) RENTNER.

Ernest [Pug] Rentner, star half back and captain elect of the 1932 Northwestern university football team, was taken to the Evanston hospital last night with a bullet wound in the middle finger of his left hand. He sustained the injury while attempting to remove a bullet from the magazine of a small automatic pistol in University hall on the south end of the campus. Dr. M. H. Hobart of the hospital staff, who attended him, said his condition is not serious. The only fear, Dr. Hobart said, is that of infection and drainage tubes have been placed in the wound as a precautionary measure.

According to Dr. Hobart, Rentner had been showing the gun to friends in the building. One of the cartridges became jammed and it exploded when he hit the magazine against a wall to dislodge it.

ICY BLASTS CUT EUROPE, KILL 15, IMPERIL OTHERS

While Australia Broils at 114 in Shade.

LONDON, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Winter's icy blasts swept a large area of Europe today, bringing death to some of the homeless and underfed, lashing seas to fury and causing discomfort and suffering.

Far in the south, where winter usually is a faint parody of the season in northern climes, the peaks of Madeira were covered with snow. Fifteen waifs were found dead from cold in the Lisbon district.

At the other end of the continent snow plows struggled through drifts that impeded Finns from recording their vote in the prohibition referendum.

Gale Ranges on Baltic.

Between these extreme points London, Paris, and Berlin experienced piercing winds and snow. Blizzards piled up drifts several feet deep in Scottish glens and Yorkshire moors. A gale has raged on the Baltic since Christmas. Almost a hundredweight of amber was cast ashore at Cranz, Germany, by the storm.

Winter's clutch reached over the European frontier into Asia. Reports from Teheran were that Persia was having freezing weather, which had caused many deaths. The cold wave, however, has checked the cholera epidemic, which has caused great havoc.

15 Saved from Storm.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Fifteen men, feared to have been drowned in a shipping disaster off this port, were rescued tonight after spending a day adrift in a howling gale. Nine were members of the crew of the Finnish Steamer Orion, which went aground in a heavy snowstorm. The others were the crew of a lifeboat that rescued them early today.

U. S. PRINT SHOP AN EXAMPLE OF BUREAU WASTE

And It Costs Taxpayers Millions.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The government printing office provides an excellent bird's eye view of the present extent of the paternalism which is costing the American taxpayers approximately the two billion dollars annually that measures the difference between Uncle Sam's income and outgo this fiscal year.

The establishment of the public printer with 5,000 employes, receives appropriations of $3,000,000 from congress. It also does printing to the extent of $10,000,000 for various government departments and bureaus, which is charged against those departments and their budgets. The establishment is the headquarters of the greatest correspondence school on earth. More than 200,000,000 copies of publications, costing 10 million dollars for printing alone, issue annually from the government printing presses, furnishing information and instruction on more than 10,000 different subjects.

They Regulate Everything.

In the constantly expanding range of subjects dealt with in these publications, there is graphically exposed the results of the urge to bring all human habit and activity under the regulation and care of the central government.

Here are monographs on the noble experiment of denying the individual the right to drink alcoholic beverages which accounts for nearly one-half of the amount that Uncle Sam's ledger is in the red. Here are myriads of pamphlets, manifesting the solicitude of the federal government for the welfare of the citizen from the cradle to the grave.

More than 100,000 scientists and other kinds of experts conduct the experiments, researches and studies that go into the government publications, nearly all of which are distributed free of charge. They advise the expectant mother. They tell you how to take care of a baby. They instruct the farmer in the growing and marketing of his products and his wife in cooking, sewing and furnishing the home.

No Topic Too Trivial.

They tell manufacturers and merchants where and how to sell their wares. They tell you how to keep well and how to get well when you are sick. They furnish you dress patterns. They quench your thirst for knowledge of the life history of bed bugs and tell you how and how often to change the bed sheets. They tell you how to make a fly trap. If your taste runs to delicacies, you can learn from Uncle Sam how to prepare caviar for the table and if you are awgary, you can take it from your government that "a folding chaise lounge is the last word in relaxation."

If you are thinking of taking up betel nut chewing, you can learn all about it from a government publication. Other monographs instruct you on the digestibility of tepary beans, on saving babies in Buenos Aires, on "metedos oficiales para reducir la mortalidad infantil," on pumping from wells for irrigation, on the anatomy of the railroad-worms, on the proper method to brush your teeth, on expert shoe polishing, on the art of brick laying, on breast feeding, on the character of paleozoic rocks encountered in a well near Florence, Ala., on dietetic discoveries at Miss Farmer's school of cookery, on the malleability and metallography of nickel, on the nature of language, on the "elimination and toxicity of caffein in nephrectomized rabbits," and on thousands of other matters mentioned in thousands of pages of the catalog of government publications.

Books and pamphlets prepared and published, and distributed by mail at government expense are shipped out of Washington by the ton every day. They are a leading stock in trade of the senator or congressman seeking to ingratiate himself with his constituents. The free seed graft was abolished but the free publication graft flourishes as the green bay tree.

"The United States is the greatest of all publishers," says the superintendent of documents. "It employs thousands of scientists, who are engaged the year round making investigations in all branches of agriculture and household economy, in geology, in mining, in electricity, in chemistry, in astronomy, in engineering, in aviation, in preventive medicine, in forestry, in irrigation, in shipping and railroad problems, in trade and manufacture.

"The results of all these activities of the most comprehensive and effective organization ever known are constantly reduced to print and poured out in an incessant flood from the government printing office at Washington, the largest printing plant in the world."

Boasts on Increased Production.

The public printer, in his last annual report, boasts of the increased production of his plant, not mentioning the increased cost to the taxpayers. He tells of a total of 3,903,932,177 copies of all printed matter turned out during the year, an increase of 501,806,591 copies over the previous year.

"The tremendous growth in the work of the government printing office during the ten years, 1921-1930," he says, "is shown by the increase of 39 per cent in the computed value of its products, which totaled $117,256,250.97 for the ten years, 1921-1930, as compared with $84,263,580.79 for the ten years, 1911-1920."

The printing and binding done for congress cost $2,498,510 in 1930, and "almost exhausted the annual working capital of the government printing office available for that purpose," says the public printer. The Congressional Record, which cost $758,693, an increase of $178,404 over the preceding year, has a circulation of 36,000 copies, of which 520 represent paid subscriptions. Each senator receives 88, each representative 60 copies for free distribution.

There were 8,850,918 copies of bills printed. The printing of testimony at committee hearings held on these bills cost $349,601.

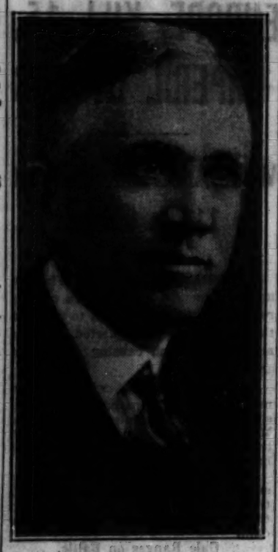
For Congressmen's Friends.

The speeches of senators and representatives printed in pamphlet form for franking to constituents number 16,843,850 copies, costing $67,368. There were 15,157,200 copies of farmers' bulletins mailed chiefly by members of congress which were turned out at a publication cost of $206,919. The agricultural year book, another favorite item in the rural member's bag of tricks, was issued in 400,576 cloth bound copies at a cost of $281,879.

Then there was the 354 page memorial volume "suitably bound in blue cloth with a special hand lettered cover design" and entitled "the list of mothers and widows of American soldiers, sailors, and marines entitled to make a pilgrimage to the war cemeteries in Europe."

The government printing office is now engaged in turning out a monumental 25 volume edition of the writings of George Washington for which congress has appropriated $157,975.

ARMS DELEGATE



NORMAN DAVIS.

NORMAN DAVIS U. S. DELEGATE TO DISARM PARLEY

Third League of Nations Supporter Named.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Norman H. Davis of New York, undersecretary of state in the Woodrow Wilson administration and chief financial adviser to President Wilson and the American delegation in the negotiations culminating in the treaty of Versailles, will be the fourth member of the American delegation to the general disarmament conference at Geneva.

President Hoover announced the selection of Mr. Davis this afternoon and at the same time indicated that the delegation, when completed, would number six, or one less than the American delegation at the London conference for the limitation of naval armament in 1930.

Of the four members of the American delegation to Geneva so far selected three are listed as among the strongest supporters of the league of nations in the United States. Senator Swanson was one of President Wilson's spokesmen on the floor of the senate during the bitter fight to ratify the treaty of Versailles. Mr. Davis was one of the men closest to the President during the peace conference at Versailles, while Miss Mary Woolley and also Mr. Davis are charter members of the Woodrow Wilson foundation.

At the same time Ambassador Dawes, chairman of the delegation, has never been numbered among the outspoken opponents of the league.

BROOKHART ASKS ARMS REDUCTION FOR DEBT FAVORS

Senator Smith W. Brookhart [Radical Rep., Ia.], addressed the Rotary club yesterday in the Hotel Sherman.

"The nations who owe us have used the vast sums they have borrowed for the building up of their armaments," said Senator Brookhart. "We've indirectly been paying for France's huge armaments. If they cancel the war debts, let them first reduce their armaments, and we could reduce ours."

Senator Brookhart also indorsed the proposal that debtor nations turn over to us their island possessions in the North and South American waters, in return for debt cancellation, so that our potential national safety could be enhanced.

The senator expressed doubt that even outright cancellation would do much harm, declaring that the real damage had already been done.

"If we had kept our money at home in the first place there would have been no depression," he said. "The war was not the cause of the depression. It gave the financial crowd an opportunity to make loans with their wartime profits and then to crawl out from under the responsibility by unloading them upon the American public."

Massmeeting Is Called to Aid Wilmette Schools

Members of the Wilmette school board and a committee of citizens, after a conference last night, announced that a massmeeting would be held Jan. 8 to discuss ways and means of keeping the suburb's schools open. Sale of tax warrants, they indicated, would be the most feasible way out of the schools' difficulties.

TWO BEER FLATS RAIDED.

Federal prohibition agents raided two beer flats at 609 South Wells street early yesterday and arrested William E. Tobin, in whose place they found 272 quarts of home brew, and Richard Brannigan and James King, in whose flat 290 quarts of the brew were found.

DEMOCRATS' TAX PLAN 'WHOLLY INADEQUATE,' OGDEN L. MILLS SAYS

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special]—Ogden L. Mills, undersecretary of the treasury and spokesman for the administration in tax reform matters, declared tonight in a public statement that published versions of the long awaited Democratic tax program indicated it was "wholly inadequate" to meet the treasury's fiscal crisis.

However disappointing it may seem, Mr. Mills said, the Democrats' plan for "soaking the rich" cannot be made to produce the revenue that is needed to meet a deficit, which, it is estimated, will reach $2,123,000,000 by the end of the present fiscal year. The large incomes, he said, cannot be made to produce the needed revenue.

"To put the matter bluntly," said Mr. Mills, "what the Democrats propose is to finance not only this but next year's deficit through borrowing and to continue this course. . . . This will not do. There is nothing so important as the maintenance unimpaired as the credit of the United States."

BORAH FOR 20% CUT IN PAY FOR U. S. EMPLOYES

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—To critics of his recent suggestion that the salaries of federal employes receiving over $5,000 a year be cut 10 per cent, Senator William E. Borah, Idaho insurgent Republican, today replied with a suggestion that federal salaries under $5,000 might be cut 10 per cent and those above $5,000 20 per cent.

He declared that it had been estimated that such cut would save at least $100,000,000 a year and would, because of lowered prices, maintain federal employes on the same standard of living.

Democrats Busy on Tax Plan.

Talk of their coming tax program occupied the Democrats in congress today with Speaker Garner declaring that the Democratic plan, in addition to rate increases, would seek to raise an additional 200 million dollars by amending the existing laws so that loop holes by which evasions are now accomplished would be plugged up.

Indicative of the divergency of opinions among the Democrats was the statement of Chairman Collier [Dem., Miss.] of the house ways and means committee, who declared that he would oppose making the new and higher schedule retroactive except as a last resort.

Opposes Sales Tax.

He agreed, however, with Speaker Garner and Representative Rainey [Dem., Ill.], majority house floor leader, that the Democratic program would be centered around increases in the higher income tax brackets, increases in the estate tax, and reimposition of a gift tax.

He would also, said Mr. Collier, be opposed to a sales tax unless that, too, proved absolutely necessary.

TOKIO, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Princess Yi Kon, Japanese consort of the head of the former royal house of Corea, today gave birth to a son. The prince is a major in the Japanese army.

HOOVER ANXIOUS TO CONSOLIDATE BUREAU ACTIVITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Another drive for consolidation of government departments and bureaus will be launched by President Hoover within the next few days, the White House announced today. The President expects, it was said, to send a special message to congress urging immediate legislative action providing for grouping all construction activities of the government under one administrative head and the transfer of the shipping board and all federal merchant marine activities to the department of commerce.

According to a statement issued by the President today, the purpose of the consolidations is to cut the cost of federal government, curtail the growth of independent bureaus, eliminate overlapping and promote efficiency. While refusing to set a definite figure indicating the savings which would follow the consolidations, Mr. Hoover said the grouping last year of all veterans activities under the veterans administration is expected to save from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000.

Asks Early Action.

Stating that "economy absolutely must be the first order in government," the President today said congress should act at once to authorize the consolidations.

"The most constructive direction for economy in federal expenditure beyond a rigid reduction of appropriations and resolute opposition to new appropriations lies in consolidation of government bureaus and general reorganization of the federal government," Mr. Hoover said.

"Outstanding among these reorganizations would be consolidation of all construction activities of the government under an administrator of public works to serve all the departments. Other cases are the consolidation of all merchant marine activities into the department of commerce, the consolidation of th conservation activities of the government; of the public health services, of educational activities and numerous other groups on the same major purpose under single headed responsibility. Such action would result in the elimination of many expensive agencies and overlap resulting in very great economies. These economies would run into many millions.

Opposition Is Likely.

"Great economies would be brought about through the curtailment of the self-expanding capacity of scattered bureaus which could be much better controlled if they were grouped together."

AVIATION NOTES

At a recent meeting of the Air Traffic club a member submitted statistics to show that more persons were kicked to death by mules in Missouri last year than were killed in accidents on scheduled air transport lines in the United States.

During the first eleven months of the year United Air Lines carried 2,205 tons of air mail, which is an increase over the volume carried in the same period last year. An increased volume of express is being carried by the line, due to 50 to 75 per cent reductions in charges.

Transamerican Airlines has announced plans to inaugurate passenger service with multi-motor land planes over its Detroit-Pontiac-Lansing-Grand Rapids-Muskegon air mail route in 1932, preparatory to establishing an amphibion service across Lake Michigan to Milwaukee. The next step will be the placing of amphibions on the Detroit-South Bend-Chicago route.

SECOND AIR LINE CUTS ITS RATES FOR PASSENGERS

Officials of Transcontinental and Western Air system, that carries air mail and passengers from coast to coast along a southern route, yesterday followed their announcement of reduced flying time with a statement that passenger fares will be reduced 10 to 26 per cent.

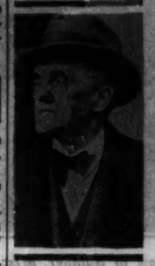
The action follows a reduction of all passenger rates to approximately rail plus pullman charges by United Air Lines, another transcontinental system that operates through Chicago and carries more than 40 per cent of the nation's air mail.

American Airways, the third large air line system that crosses the country even farther south than Transcontinental and Western Air, was reported in New York to be considering rate reductions.

NORRIS ET AL. GO INTO A HUDDLE ON THIRD PARTY

Borah, Johnson, Pinchot Are Mentioned.

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Third party talk has cropped up anew among the members of the senate group of radicals. Word of recent conferences got out today, accompanied by reports that the insurgents so far have three possible candidates under consideration.



GEO. W. NORRIS. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

These are Senator William E. Borah, one of the group; Senator Hiram Johnson [Rep., Cal.], who sometimes plays the insurgent but whose tariff views are said to be too regular to please the extreme radicals, and Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

To date the radicals' plans may be described as nebulous. They accept the renomination of President Hoover as a fact. Their eventual reaction will depend on whom the Democrats nominate.

If the Democratic candidate is Gov. Roosevelt of New York radicals like Senator George W. Norris of Nebraska will be satisfied to support him.

GIRL GUILTY OF GUN TOTING.

Miss Jean Schorman, 21 years old, 1503 East 64th place, was placed on probation for a year yesterday by Municipal Judge John A. Sbarbaro when she pleaded guilty to carrying a revolver.

MILLION DOLLAR BABY IS GOAL IN DIVORCE BATTLE

Father Fights for Fahrney Heiress, 2 Years Old.

The child is Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, 2 years old. Her father, Franklin I. Saemann Jr., 429 Forest avenue, Oak Park, sought a court order giving him partial custody of the child as the first step in his suit for divorce against Mrs. Myrtle Fahrney Saemann, 23 years old.

Before Judge Trude the husband's attorney, Frank Cantwell, charged that Mrs. Saemann's parents, Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Fahrney, 400 North Euclid avenue, Oak Park, were responsible for the breakup of a hitherto happy marriage, and had put obstacles in the way of Saemann seeing his wife and daughter.

Wife Heiress to Millions.

Mrs. Saemann is the granddaughter of the founder of the Dr. Peter Fahrney & Sons company. She inherited several million dollars from her grandfather, and got an additional large inheritance from the $6,000,000 estate of Ezra Fahrney, her bachelor uncle, who died on Sept. 10, 1930. Her wedding to Saemann, who is the son of Franklin I. Saemann, head of a large surgical supply house, took place on June 16, 1928. It was an event of social importance.

Young Saemann and his bride went to New York, where he represented his father's company, Attorney Cantwell told Judge Trude yesterday. The lawyer said their marriage was a happy one until, following the birth of their daughter, the mother took the baby and went to visit her parents.

"A month or so after that, in the summer of 1929," said Attorney Cantwell, "Mr. Saemann received a telephone message from his wife, saying that she was being held forcibly by her parents, and that if he wanted to see her and the baby again he should come to Chicago at once. He took the next train.

Charges Wife Taken Away.

"When he arrived, her parents refused to tell him where his wife and child were. Three months later, after repeated conferences with her family and their attorneys, he threatened to sue out a writ of habeas corpus. He was then informed that his wife's family was maintaining her in an expensive apartment in Detroit, and that his daughter was in another apartment there, not in care of the mother, but of a professional nurse."

Saemann has been permitted to see his daughter only once since then, and on that occasion three detectives stood guard about her crib to prevent his seizing her, the attorney asserted.

Mrs. Saemann's family sent lawyers to New York to interview the Saemann house servants there, seeking evidence of cruelty on which to base a divorce action, and his client has been trailed and harassed by detectives since the enforced separation, Attorney Cantwell charged.

Files Suit for Divorce.

Saemann filed his suit for divorce, charging desertion, after he was convinced that interference by her family had made a reconciliation with his wife impossible, the attorney said.

"None of these matters is charged in the divorce bill," said Attorney Matthias Concannon, representing Mrs. Saemann. "I don't believe they are for the court to consider."

"It certainly is a matter for the court," replied Judge Trude. "I have always held that the father should have the right to the affections and company of his child."

Saemann asks a court order permitting him to see his daughter "at any reasonable hour," and also seeks the custody of the child for two months each summer. Judge Trude continued the matter for further hearing.

Arrested on Charge of Stealing 125 Bathtubs

Alleged to have stolen 125 bathtubs, Isadore J. Pollock, 35 years old, 947 Lafayette street, was arrested last night by Sergts. Lauderdale, Roach, and Roberts of the Rogers Park station. Pollock took eighty-eight of the tubs from a building under construction at 6228 Kenmore avenue, it was charged, and the others from several new structures. Most of the loot was recovered from dealers to whom he was alleged to have sold it at low prices.

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Judith Wood, one of the movies' 1931 "baby stars," suffered a fractured nose and facial and body bruises in an automobile accident late last night. She was removed to Osteopathic hospital where surgeons today declared Miss Wood probably will not suffer permanent blemishes.

MOSCOW POLICE ARREST 'GUTTER RAT'—OLD IDOL

Chicherin, Once a Foreign Chief, Found Beggar.

BERLIN, Dec. 29.—Moscow police arrested a drunken beggar lying in the gutter only to discover at the police station that the broken man is a former favorite of the soviets, Georges Chicherin, at one time commissar of foreign affairs. The story was told in a Moscow dispatch to the Berlin Neue Berliner Zeitung.

Chicherin was also prominent in the days of the czar. He volunteered to serve the soviets and succeeded in inducing several countries to resume relations with Russia after the revolution. Overworked, he became ill.

Nobody dared to give a job to this highly gifted man who had exhausted his savings. Then, racked by pain, he succumbed to drink. The Berlin paper declared Chicherin was taken to an asylum and that soviet authorities have decided to reward his services by giving him a job in Crimea.

HAD BRILLIANT CAREER.

Chicherin resigned as soviet commissar for foreign affairs in July, 1930, after a brilliant career as a statesman. He was of noble birth, but became one of soviet Russia's most able representatives. He engineered the repudiation of the old régime's debts, and his diplomatic moves kept Europe guessing for years.

Chicherin was on his way to becoming a physical and mental wreck in 1927. At that time he was described as being afflicted with a disease which had reached a hopeless stage. He was weakened by diabetes and sores covered his legs. He himself predicted the end of his political career.

At that time he boasted that he had imposed recognition of the soviets where it was least wanted. He proclaimed his hate for England and prophesied a great war which would shake the world and destroy the British empire. When seen by a correspondent last July, Chicherin's face was drawn with suffering.

Bandits Terrorize and Rob 20 Patrons of Roadhouse

Kankakee, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Four armed men entered Larry's Spick and Span roadhouse, three miles north of Kankakee on route 49, and terrorized and robbed 20 patrons tonight. Lining their victims up against a wall, the robbers took their jewelry and money and then tied them, hand and foot, with cords. They also looted the cash register. Lawrence De Marrah, owner, estimated the total loss at about $3,000.

DANIELS PLEADS FOR A DANIEL TO HEAD THE PARTY

Wants Strong Man to Lead to Victory.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A 1932 presidential candidate, who embodies liberal and progressive views and has "no vestige of standpatism or pink Republicanism," was urged upon the Democratic party today by Josephus Daniels.

JOSEPHUS DANIELS

"For," said the secretary of the navy in the Wilson administration, "the situation next year will not be unlike that of 1912. Now, as then, the people are going to elect a President who embodies liberal and progressive views.

"If, in 1912, the Democrats had nominated what is called a conservative—a misnomer for a reactionary—Roosevelt would have won. But the Democrats picked Wilson, a great progressive, and they won.

People Demand Change.

"No one who is known as a 'standpatter,' or who acquiesces in 'standpatism,' can win in 1932. Nor can we win with a 'pink Republican,' which is another name for reactionary Democrat.

"The people are on the march; they see conditions are bad; they demand a change. The party in power, by allowing 6,000,000 men to go without jobs, has, in the words of the scriptures, been weighed and found wanting.

"The Republicans next year will have no more of a chance than did that great and good man, Taft, in 1912. It seems that the only question left for the Democrats to decide is the identity of their candidate."

And there Mr. Daniels stopped. He was unwilling, at the moment, to venture a prediction as to who would be nominated, but——

"The Democratic party is fortunate in having available candidates who meet the specifications and who incarnate progressive principles. Particularly, we have Franklin D. Roosevelt of New York and Newton D. Baker of Ohio."

Sidetracks Prohibition.

Mr. Daniels, always dry, himself mentioned prohibition:

"The country is so eager to find its way out of economic distress that the people won't be interested in prohibition. People are thinking about bread and the man who talks about booze—whether more or less booze!—does not get an audience."

Describing President Hoover as a man whom "the people respect and like," Mr. Daniels none the less sharply criticized the President for what he called delaying positive action to relieve economic conditions.

MURDER TRIAL OF NEGRO SNARLS MARYLAND COURT

Lacks Power to Direct Venue Change.

Annapolis, Md., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—In a lengthy opinion the Court of Appeals of Maryland today asserted that a Negro charged with the murder of four persons could not receive a fair and impartial trial in either of two eastern shore counties in which the case had heretofore been assigned for trial.

At the same time the state's highest tribunal found itself without legal warrant to grant the Negro's appeal from a decision of the Circuit court for Worcester county, where the case originated, to have the trial held at Cambridge, approximately seventy miles away, in Dorchester county.

On the basis of this latter finding, the Court of Appeals ordered the case returned to the Worcester county court.

Negro Held in Baltimore.

The Negro, Euel Lee, has been held for safekeeping in the Baltimore city jail since last October, shortly after his arrest on charges of killing Green Davis, a chicken farmer, and his wife and two young daughters.

Bernard Ades, counsel for the International Labor Defense league, was retained by Lee as counsel. He asked for a change of venue from Snow Hill, near the scene of the murder.

The Worcester county court granted the change to Dorchester county and Gov. Albert C. Ritchie had decided to send a company of militia to protect the Negro and his counsel when the case would come up for trial at the Cambridge court. Then the petition to remove the case away from the eastern shore was filed with the Court of Appeals.

Ritchie Backs Move.

While remaining aloof from any move which might be interpreted as dictating to the judiciary, Gov. Ritchie threw the whole force of his administration into the task of securing the removal of the case from the eastern shore on the grounds that its transfer to Baltimore or some western shore county would expedite its trial and circumvent mob violence.

Today's opinion said:

"In the opinion of this court the conditions evidenced demonstrate that the securing of a fair, unprejudiced jury from the county selected as the place of trial is unlikely, and that to attain the object of the constitution and statutes the cause must be removed for trial to some other portion of the state where local prejudice may be avoided."

On Dec. 4, nearly two months after the murders charged against Lee were committed, Matthew Williams, a Negro slayer, was lynched by a mob in Salisbury, the metropolis of the eastern shore.

ELUDES PRISON FOR 13 YEARS ON 'LOST' MITTIMUS

After evading punishment for thirteen years by the juggling of records, James Young, convicted robber, will go to prison at last as the result of an accidental discovery yesterday in the state's attorney's office. As a result of the discovery Sergt. John J. O'Connor yesterday forestalled Young's release from jail on bond on a recent robbery charge.

The records, the policeman found, show that Young, then about 21 years old, was sentenced to serve six months at Pontiac by Judge Marcus Kavanagh for robbery with a gun on Dec. 16, 1918. A stay of mittimus was granted to permit an appeal. On the expiration of the stay a new mittimus was then issued, but somehow it was "lost." At least it was never served and Young, at liberty after signing his own bond of $10,000, was not taken to Pontiac.

When informed of the case yesterday Chief Justice Harry M. Fisher ordered a duplicate mittimus issued on the 13 year old charge and decreed that Young, now using the name of Anthony Grosso, be held without bond on the current charge until further investigation had been made. Young was questioned by O'Connor and admitted the records had been juggled to help him out of prison. When asked how it was arranged he said: "My attorney put the fix in."

Bank Employe Recovering After Attempt at Suicide

Stanley J. Hall, 31 year old bank employe and Dartmouth graduate, was on the road to a recovery yesterday after an attempt at suicide. Also he effected a reconciliation with his wife, who lives at 2606 Eastwood avenue, Evanston, and is the daughter of Attorney Henry E. Cutler, president of the Wilmette board of education. Hall set fire to his automobile Monday evening and then endeavored to shoot himself in the back of the head, he admitted to police yesterday, but the fire burned him and caused his hand to be deflected as he fired, the bullet entering his neck.

FINLAND FIGHTS BLIZZARD TO VOTE ON PROHIBITION

No Disorders; Will Count Ballots Tonight.

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Everybody was surprised by the voting today in the consultative referendum on prohibition, for, despite a blizzard and a snow, the turnout was better than the most sanguine had expected.

Figures from 32 of the 52 Helsingfors districts indicated about 37 per cent of the voters trudged through the snow to the polls.

This was far better than in parliamentary elections. Finland takes two days to do its voting, and in parliamentary contests a 35 per cent turnout is never exceeded on the first day of balloting.

More Men Than Women.

In some Helsingfors precincts where the wealthier classes live the percentage was as high as 48.9. In working class districts it was much lower, in some cases being only 18 per cent.

More men have voted than women. This was especially marked in working class districts, where the women apparently were apathetic.

Figures from other cities were slow in arriving, but shortly before midnight it was learned that 32 per cent of the voters went to the polls in Viborg, 40 per cent in Sortavala, 33 per cent in Savonlinna, 25 per cent in Kakisalmi, 28 per cent in Oubou, 28 per cent in Torneo, and 43 per cent in Hanko.

This was regarded by political observers as surprisingly high throughout in comparison with first day voting in other elections.

Will Count Ballots Tonight.

Beyond the mere number of those casting ballots nothing was available tonight as the count wil not begin before tomorrow at mid-night.

No ballots are tabulated in their precincts, but all are sent sealed to the central office in Helsingfors where a staff will work in three shifts day and night, without any letup for New Year's day.

No trouble was reported any where in Finland.

The voters have the choice of three means of dealing with prohibition—maintain it, repeal it or modify it. The issue has cut across party lines as that, with the exception of the socialists, no party has issued mandatory instructions.

GANG RE-ENACTS CAFE SLAYING OF POLICEMAN

Chief of Detectives Schoemaker early today took Dorothy Evans and Marcella Royce, with their four men companions, to the Beach View Garden cafe at 804 Wilson avenue, where all reenacted their parts in the killing of Policeman James J. Caplis during a holdup on Dec. 21. The six have all admitted being in the robbery, but each denies firing the shot that killed Caplis. Two other members of the band are being sought.

At the detective bureau showup last night the four men under arrest were viewed by robbery victims and three of them were identified as participants in other holdups.

Witnesses said that Nicholas Bruno was in robberies of two offices of the Prudential Life Insurance company, at 2205 Marshall boulevard and 1608 Milwaukee avenue, the last one on Dec. 23. Several hundred dollars were obtained by the robbers. Bruno, Frank Freeman and Jack Burlison were pointed out as a trio who held up the Postal Telegraph office at 333 South Wells street on Dec. 4 and obtained $9. Tony Pape was the only one of the gang not identified last night.

Assistant State's Attorney Walker Butler and Robert L. Donigan are to represent the state today when a writ for the release of the four youths and their girl companions is returned before Chief Justice Harry Fisher of the Criminal court. True bills charging them all with murder were reported returned by the grand jury yesterday.

BOY SLAYER WINS NEW STAY FROM DEATH IN CHAIR

Freeport, Ill., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—The execution of Russell R. McWilliams, 17 years old, condemned to the electric chair for the murder of William S. Sayles, a Rockford street car motorman, during a holdup, was ordered delayed today by Supreme Court Justice Oscar E. Heard. Justice Heard allowed a writ of error requested by the youth's attorneys and ordered that the writ be made a supersedeas.

McWilliams pleaded guilty on Aug. 28 to the slaying of Sayles. State's Attorney William D. Knight of Rockford then demanded the death penalty because of the "cold bloodedness" of the murder. Circuit Judge Arthur E. Fisher sentenced McWilliams to die in the electric chair on Dec. 11, but on Dec. 7 Gov. Emmerson granted a thirty day stay.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Declaring that people are looking for "jobs, not jags," Senator Henry F. Ashurst [Dem., Ariz.], one of the senate's driest drys, today refused to act as a member of a senate judiciary subcommittee named to consider the Bingham resolution for the repeal of the 18th amendment and other measures designed to modify the dry laws.

SEN. H. F. ASHURST [(C) U. & U. Photo.]

Senator Ashurst's action supported the recent report that dry senators were trying to tie up anti-prohibition measures at the very start by refusing their assistance in giving the bills a hearing.

Senator George W. Norris, insurgent Republican of Nebraska, chairman of the judiciary committee, appointed another dry, Senator Hugo Black [Dem., Ala.], to fill Senator Ashurst's place.

HOUSE TO GET ONLY ONE VOTE ON DRY QUESTION

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The house will be allowed one vote and no more this session on the question of prohibition under a plan announced today by Majority Leader Rainey.

The Illinois Democrat said the wet forces would be notified they could not have a roll call on a referendum on the 18th amendment and a ballot on the return of light wines and beer, too.

Explaining the procedure under which the prohibition vote would be had in the house, Rainey said the judiciary committee, preponderantly dry, would not favorably report a measure calling for a referendum on the 18th amendment or for modification of the dry laws.

"The wets will have to bring the bill to the floor through the petition of 145 members," Rainey said. "They will have only one vote, and that either on a referendum or light wines and beer."

EXPLAINING WHY FATHER PIPER IS NOW PIPING LOW

neighbors in to show them his own features emerging, as he fancied, in the baby's face. He proposed taking the infant down to the cabaret to show him to the boys, but Mrs. Piper wouldn't hear of that. Nevertheless bliss reigned in the Piper home at Hobart, at least until Dec. 23.

At 6:45 o'clock that morning Mr. Piper arrived home and was horror struck. His wife lay on a day bed in an apparent sweon. The crib was empty, except for a cold nursing bottle. With fear tugging at his heart, Mr. Piper shook his wife until she awakened.

Memory Fades in Chloroform.

"I was listening to the radio," she said. "From behind the chair some one flung a chloroformed rag over my face. I can remember nothing more."

Mr. Piper set up a cry for police. His next door neighbor, Patrolman Frank Traeger, came over in his bedroom slippers and summoned his chief, Fred Rose, out of bed. The chief sniffed Mrs. Piper's breath for chloroform and immediately began questioning her sharply. She became confused and the patrolman, with Mr. Piper, begged the chief to be easy, pointing out that she was distraught.

For twenty hours the case remained a police mystery. Mr. Piper sat moodily in his chair, gnawing his nails and unable to sleep. The eve of Christmas came and Mrs. Piper finally persuaded the trumpeter that he could best ease his pain by going to work. Mr. Piper left for the cabaret with a heavy heart.

A Journey to Chicago.

Within an hour of his departure Patrolman Traeger was summoned to the Piper home. Soon after dark he and Mrs. Piper left for Chicago. They arrived at Mrs. Porter's home and asked for the mother and baby.

"I didn't know what I was doing when I gave him back to you the other night," sobbed Mrs. Piper. "My husband has gone frantic. He will kill himself and me, too, if he finds out how I deceived him. To prevent two murders you must give the baby up."

When Mr. Piper returned home from work next morning the baby was back in his crib.

"My little Christmas present," said Patrolman Traeger, "but I can't tell you how it was done. We detectives have our professional secrets."

For a few hours Mr. Piper's joy knew no bounds, but the detective's secret could not be kept. On Monday the baby's mother arrived in Hobart, accompanied by Dr. Doty and a lawyer. Mr. Piper was told the truth.

There was an empty cradle in a Hobart home last night and a vacant chair in the bandstand at the North Pole cafe. No jazz music disturbed the repose of Hobart, but from the porch of the Piper cottage came the plaintive notes of a cornet playing an old lullaby, "Sweet and Low."

COUNTY BOARD KEEPS JACOBS AS EFFICIENCY MAN

J. L. Jacobs will retain his position as county efficiency expert at his usual salary as a result of a vote of the county board yesterday. The salary is $50 a day for every day he is employed. His work is directed by the president of the board, Emmett Whealan. The vote yesterday was made in the course of routine business and carried without discussion. There was no effort to cut Jacobs' salary 15 per cent to conform with the uniform pay roll slashes for all other county employes.

CZECHS SAY RUSSIA FRAMED UP WAR PLOT CHARGED TO ENVOY

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Karl Vanek, member of the Czecho-Slovakian legation at Moscow who was accused of plotting an attack on the Japanese ambassador to Russia, was cleared by his government today as the victim of a "trumped-up and highly improbable" charge.

"The soviets, for some mysterious reason," a foreign office communique said, "appeared to desire to compromise Szecho-Slovakia in the eyes of the Russian public."

The communique said the affair resembled a similar incident "enacted by the soviets" last June, when an attaché of the Czecho-Slovakian legation designated merely as "B" was forced to make certain admissions under threat of disgrace to his family. "B" also was recalled to Prague, the communique said.

Vanek denied that he ever had proposed an attack on any diplomat. He said he never had aimed to foment war between Japan and Russia and never tried to pry any secrets from a soviet citizen, previously identified as "Citizen G."

He admitted that he had availed himself of the Russian's services to obtain theater tickets and some antiques which he wanted to buy.

Czecho-Slovakia has not yet recognized the soviet government, but Foreign Minister Benes has been negotiating with Foreign Commissar Litvinoff of Russia for a trade treaty.

Russia Denounces Czech.

MOSCOW, U. S. S. R., Dec. 29.—(AP)—President Petrovsky of the central executive committee in its closing session yesterday denounced the alleged plot of a member of the Czecho-Slovakian legation to attack the Japanese ambassador to Russia.

"As proved by the plot to organize an attempt on the Japanese ambassador to Moscow," he said, "international intrigues are being woven for creation of conditions to attack us. Let those who are preparing to attack us know that should this happen the toilers of the soviet republic would rise as one man to protect their country."

DAIRY PROTESTS REJECTION OF ITS BIDS BY COUNTY

Milk Contracts Awarded at Higher Prices.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The action of the county board finance committee on Monday in awarding county milk contracts at prices from 3 to 7 cents a gallon higher than the bid of the Wagner dairy was protested yesterday by James, Frank, and Joseph Wagner Jr., owners of the company. The committee's action was approved yesterday by the board.

"I intend to institute either a taxpayer's suit or a mandamus action against the county board to find out why low bids were not accepted," said Joseph Wagner.

"The Wagner Dairy company would have made a profit of $5,000 on the Oak Forest infirmary bid, yet the Capitol Dairy company gets the contract at what must be around $100 profit a day, as there is little labor involved in delivering milk at that institution."

Prices on Contracts.

The contracts awarded are for the months of January, February and March. The Capitol Dairy is to supply the Oak Forest infirmary at a cost of 26⅞ cents a gallon, and the county hospital at 27¾ cents a gallon. The Quigley Dairy will furnish milk for the county jail at 30 cents a gallon, and the City Sanitary dairy will supply the juvenile home at 26 cents a gallon.

On each of these the Wagner Dairy company bid 23 cents a gallon except on Oak Forest, where the Wagner bid was 20 cents a gallon.

"They said Illinois milk was superior to the milk we get from Indiana and Wisconsin, but we are supplying both state and federal institutions with milk," said James Wagner. "We have a retail trade in Chicago on which we are adding a new route each week, under the same regulations and inspections as other Chicago milk."

Indiana Milk Sold, He Says.

Joseph Wagner, as manager of the dairy company, charged that the Capitol dairy was obtaining milk for supplying wholesale contracts by purchases at Teagarden, Ind. One of the reasons urged on the county commissioners for rejection of the Wagner milk bid was that the Illinois dairy farmers should be favored against Indiana farmers.

The Wagner brothers announced that when the county board again advertises for bids on the same milk supplies for the second quarter of 1932 the Wagners will again submit bids and will stress the fact that for four times their bids have been rejected although their acceptance would have saved the county at least $25,000.

Twin Brothers Sentenced to Prison at Same Time

Connersville, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Arnold and Arlie Steele, 20 year old twin brothers, were fined $10 and costs and sentenced to serve four months at the Indiana state farm on charges of larceny today.

WAUKEGAN MILK PRICE IS CUT TO 12 CENTS A QUART

Milk prices in Waukegan and North Chicago will be reduced one cent on quarts and pints on Jan. 1. Announcement of the reduction, bringing the price per quart to 12 cents and per pint to 7 cents, was made by Rollo Davis, president of the Waukegan local of the Pure Milk association, following a meeting yesterday.

Davis said that from 20 to 25 per cent of the 200 dairy farmers in Lake county will be forced out of business as a result of the reduction.

"These 200 farmers produce 45,000 pounds of milk a day," Davis said, "and this reduction will cost them $144 a day in income. Reductions in the price of milk paid farmers will total $63,000 a year. When you consider that Waukegan raised only $75,000 for charity the importance of a mere handful of 200 farmers making a contribution of $63,000 can readily be seen. A year ago farmers were getting $2.87 a hundred pounds. This reduction cuts them to $2 a hundred pounds."

"We're waiting for GENERAL BUSINESS to PICK UP"

POPULAR FALLACIES OF BUSINESS

AMONG the thousand reasons given for our present business inactivity is one that grows out of a great popular fallacy.

Aren't too many of us watching and waiting for "general business" to pick up when "general business" as an entity is only a myth? "General business" is not made up of the corporations of the country, of the big boys on the stock exchange. "General business" is made up of the 450,000 corporations, big and little, and of the five millions of us who are engaged as partnerships, firms and one-man shops. We constitute the real business structure of the United States.

Now, if each one of us, no matter what our job, would forget the easy golden years of 1928 and 1929, and start in to build up our own individual business, wouldn't the country feel the stimulus immediately? Isn't it the honest truth that few of us today are exerting ourselves to the utmost? Some are, and their business is even better than in 1930 and 1929. But aren't most of us still at cruising speed when what we need is full steam ahead?

Suppose the business of the country is off 20 per cent! How many an individual has accepted a 20 per cent increase in quota with enthusiasm and gone out and brought that quota back! Now if you, and we, and every one of the five millions of us would stop nursing a fallacy, would stop looking for a magician to pull a rabbit out of a hat, and start tomorrow morning to build up his individual business, a brick at a time, why then, "general business" would soon show his head. Before long he'd come galloping down Main Street, dispensing business everywhere to everyone.

It's a fallacy to think we must wait for business to come back; the sensible, constructive, American thing to do is bring it back.

For twenty years Nation's Business has combated fallacy. In our January number we approach the task with new zeal. Editorially, and through advertisements like this, we shall expose to the light of fact and analysis the important fallacies that hamper business progress today. You'll want to follow this series of advertisements, and you'll want particularly to read our January number, now out. You'll find a new tonic in it—a new direction to a constructive service which only Nation's Business renders. You may purchase the January issue for 25 cents at your news-stand—or we'll send Nation's Business to you regularly for three years for only $7.50.

WHAT POPULAR FALLACY MISREPRESENTS YOUR BUSINESS

This advertisement, one of a series on the popular fallacies of business, is designed to serve business by creating a better understanding of its problems. As a new feature of its twenty-year-old fight against erroneous thinking, Nation's Business publishes each month a "Gallery of Popular Fallacies."

Every industry, every business, has its popular misunderstandings—real estate, advertising, medicine, architecture, consssuction, Write me personally of yours. They will be discussed currently in Nation's Business and, through courtesy of the National Broadcasting Company, over a nation-wide radio hook-up.

DIVA FINDS U. S. SADLY CHANGED AFTER 10 YEARS

Ladies No More, All Like Men, Says Tetrazzini.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Mme. Luisa Tetrazzini, back in New York after an absence of ten years, finds that "ladies" are no more, that women are all like men, that they think like men, that they drink like men, that they have lost their privileges, that they are upsetting business, that they are forgetting their homes.

Every time she leaves the quite setting of her Italian villa and rubs shoulders with the world, she is impressed with the change that has come over women since her golden days in the opera. At 60 she has come to the conclusion that home and a peaceful life are best.

But this does not mean that she feels her singing days are over. As long as she lives she hopes to sing, though she considers this her professional farewell to America. Tetrazzini is graying and stout now, but she is full of spirit and vitality.

"Ah, New York is wonderful, always wonderful!" she cried. "How I love it, back in the old days with Caruso, and again now with all these new skyscrapers and the sun on the Empire State building. And all my old operatic friends and some of the new ones coming to see me."

Stars of Today Different.

The stars of today are different, Mme. Tetrazzini finds, and while admiring their voices, she can see no peer for Patti or Caruso.

"Ah, Caruso; there was the great artists of all times," she cried. "It was not the voice, it was the heart. He was the great artist. He was complete. Such quality, such fine. And so modest."

Mme. Tetrazzini clasped her hands over her heart. For fifteen years she sang with Caruso. They appeared together before the czar in St. Petersburg. They sang together in Buenos Aires, New York and London. And once he asked her to marry him. That was twenty years ago. But she did not think that two such artists could have lived in harmony. Now she is not so sure.

She keeps her mementoes of him—cuff links, a watch and a scarfpin. She does not believe that any one else should sing "Lolita."—that was Caruso's song. In the same way she says that she will never sing, "Home, Sweet Home" because it was Patti's song, or Tosti's "Good-Bye" because it belonged to Melba.

Woman's Sphere Limited.

Mme. Tetrazzini is firmly convinced that the sphere of woman is distinctly limited and that outside of the home there are only a few things she should do. If she is born an artist, there is no question about the course she must pursue.

"Perhaps I am old fashioned," she said, "but a woman in power in an office is dangerous, for the emotions enter into her dealings with her colleagues. She is not fitted for many things she tries to do nowadays, particularly the ambitious young American woman. It is horrible, what I see. Men are no longer courteous to women. No, there are no more ladies left in this world."

61 BOY SCOUTS GET EAGLE RANK IN HONOR COURT

Sixty-one Boy Scouts, the largest number ever to receive the honor at one time, were given Eagle badges at a court of honor held in the Hotel Sherman last night. Two of the number were Sea Scouts and received quartermaster badges.

The badges were presented by Gen. LeRoy T. Stewart, chief Scout for Chicago. Ceremonies were conducted by the court of honor commission, headed by Samuel G. Gorsline, and including G. E. Gordon, the Rev. E. W. Symonds, J. E. Bergeson, S. R. Jensen, J. W. Murphy, and E. A. Schmidt.

Mothers of the boys attended, and were presented with miniatures of the badges. The 275 Eagle Scouts of Chicago who had previously reached that rank were also present.

LENZ, LIGGETT CUT INTO LEAD OF CULBERTSON

Win Five Rubbers of Nine Played.

New York, Dec. 30.—[Special.]—Commander Winfield Liggett Jr., a disabled veteran of the world war, made a successful debut as Sidney Lenz's partner in the latter's 150-rubber contract bridge match with Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson last night.

When play halted early this morning the Culbertson's lead had been reduced 520 points. Their margin was still the highly formidable total of 16,320 points, however.

Jacoby Watches Substitute.

Commander Liggett is a retired naval officer who has been considered one of the finest bridge players in the country for many years. He and Mr. Lenz paired together to win many auction championships, and since contract displaced the older game he has been equally successful.

Mr. Jacoby was on hand to see his substitute take his place. Smiling and in much better humor than he had been at the close of the previous night's session when he severely criticized both Mr. Lenz and Mr. Culbertson, he tempered the remarks which he had made about them, but insisted that he was definitely through with the match.

He declared that Mr. Culbertson must be ranked as one of the five leading practical and analytical players of the game, while as for Mr. Lenz "it would be presumptuous for me not to hold him in high regard, both as a gentleman and as the grand old man of bridge."

Refuse Public Exhibition.

A proposal to hold the last session of the match in a public amphitheater with the hands reproduced on a large scoreboard for the benefit of charity was turned down by Mr. Lenz on the ground that such an affair would be beneath the dignity of the game.

Mrs. Frank A. Vanderlip and Mrs. David Sarnoff pleaded with Mr. Lenz that he agree to the match for the benefit of the New York Infirmary for Women and Children.

Progress of the Play.

When play resumed last night the Culbertsons were 16,840 points in the van on 103 rubbers. Progress of the play was as follows:

Rubber No. 105—Five hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 16,690.
Rubber No. 106—Six hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 15,290.
Rubber No. 107—Five hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 14,715.
Rubber No. 109—Six hands, won by Lenz; Culbertson now plus 15,775.
Rubber No. 111—Three hands, won by Culbertson; Culbertson now plus 15,845.

MAYOR WALKER'S MISSING AID IS FINED $50,000

Imposed for Failure to Heed Graft Summons.

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Supreme Court Justice Churchill imposed a fine of $50,000 on Russell T. Sherwood, missing business agent of Mayor James J. Walker, today for contempt of court in failing to answer a subpeona to testify before the Hofstadter committee. This is half of the maximum under the law, and will swallow up all of Sherwood's possessions, amounting to about $30,000 in value, which the committee's investigators have discovered and attached in anticipation of the penalty.

Justice Churchill adjudged Sherwood in contempt yesterday and promised to fix the fine speedily. Samuel Seabury, counsel to the investigators, asked that the figure be high, saying that a big penalty might induce Sherwood to return, and that in any event those who are keeping him away from the committee should be heavily penalized.

Accuses Mayor.

Mr. Seabury reiterated that Mayor Walker is one of those who are keeping Sherwood out of the jurisdiction. Sherwood, who shared a safe deposit box with the mayor, was the mayor's personal accountant and his private business agent, according to Mr. Seabury.

The hunt for Sherwood began this summer, when the mayor was in Europe. He was discovered in October in Mexico City, and two of the committee's staff went there and served a subpoena upon him. He told them that he considered it illegal, since he was not in the United States.

Marrying Clerk May Lose Cash.

Another development growing out of the investigation today was a move on the part of the city controller to confiscate $257,929 which James J. McCormick, deputy city clerk, admits having received in tips for performing marriage ceremonies in the municipal building chapel.

The fee for a license is $2, and the marrying commissioner also is entitled to $2, but McCormick, shown to have more than 30 bank accounts about town and far more in them than his salary accounted for, attributed part of his wealth to large gratuities.

Controller Charles W. Berry wrote to the corporation counsel pointing out that Section 1515 of the city charter forbids salaried employes from taking tips, and asking if a suit could be supported to sweep McCormick's $257,929 into the city treasury as a forfeit.

Fairfield, Ill., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Angus C. Moats, 60 year old farmer of near Mt. Erie, is in the Olney sanitarium, not expected to live, from wounds inflicted last night by four robbers who took $5,000 from him. Moats, afraid to place his money in banks, kept a small safe in his home.

Barrett Reported Much Better After Operation

The condition of Charles V. Barrett, member of the board of review, who underwent an emergency operation for appendicitis on Sunday, was reported much better late yesterday by his physician, Dr. Thomas J. O'Donaghue.

SONS' CUSTODY TAKEN FROM MOTHER; GIVEN TO GRANDPARENTS

New York, Dec. 29.—[Special.]—After a year long legal battle fought through the Westchester and New Jersey courts, Edward C. Anness, oldest member of the New York Stock exchange in point or service, and his wife today won the custody of their two grandchildren, Peyton Randolph Anness Jr., six, and Edward John Anness, five, from the children's mother, Mrs. Helen Donovan Anness Patrick.

The decision was handed down by Supreme Court Justice Graham Witschief in White Plains.

Mr. and Mrs. Anness began the battle for custody of their dead son's children a year ago. They charged that their daughter-in-law, who, following the death of the children's father, had married a lifeguard, was an unfit person to care for them.

Justice Witschief declared that his chief consideration in awarding the children to their grandparents was the evidence that Mr. Patrick had been convicted of drug addiction and had been convicted or had pleaded to various minor offenses.

PARK VISITORS SHOW INCREASE FOR YEAR 1931

Field Museum Also Reports Gain.

Visitors at the parks and at the Field Museum of Natural History showed a marked increase in 1931, according to the annual reports issued yesterday. Executives credited the depression for the quickened interest.

More than 1,500,000 persons visited the museum, surpassing the 1930 record by 200,000, according to Director Stephen C. Simms. Among the additions to the exhibits, Mr. Simms commented particularly on the life size restoration of a swamp forest of the coal age. The exhibit was the gift of Ernest R. Graham.

Report of South Parks.

In the south parks, 18,000,000 persons made use of recreational and educational facilities, according to Supt. George T. Donoghue. This is an increase of 25 per cent over 1930.

Between January and December, 2,000,000 persons used the shower baths provided in the parks; and 1,500,000 visited the south park beaches during the summer. Contracts were let for $3,500,000 worth of improvements during the year, among these the model yacht harbor at 51st street, the outboard motor boat harbor at 59th street, the orchestra shell in Grant park and the south park's part of the outer link bridge. More than 100,000 plants were grown in the propagation houses and 58,414 shrubs and trees were grown for park uses in the nursery.

Increase at West Parks.

In the west parks, 12,648,000 persons engaged in supervised activities, according to the report of President W. R. James. This is an increase of approximately one million over last year. More than 2,835,700 used the free shower baths, 1,388,000 visited the parks' outdoor pools during the summer; 700,000 visited the conservatory; 200,000 played golf on the Garfield and Columbus park courses; 154,046 used the tennis courts.

Libraries in the 20 parks in the west park system served 400,000 persons; classes in handicraft, singing and dancing had an attendance of 260,000 children, and the assembly halls were used by 420,000 during the year.

FORMER PATIENT SUES SCHIRESON, ASKING $50,000

Charges Face Operation Increased Suffering.

Old Doc Henry J. Schireson, self styled plastic surgeon who lost his Illinois medical license because of malpractice, was sued for $50,000 damages yesterday by a man who declares that Schireson sold him the idea for a facial operation to cure a skin disease. The operation, a painful ordeal, was not the least beneficial, he charges.

HENRY J. SCHIRESON.

Ernest J. Knapp of Three Rivers, Mich., is the complaining witness in the suit filed in Circuit court yesterday by Attorneys Harold W. Hawes, 105 West Monroe street, and Lawrence H. Neindorf of Three Rivers. Knapp charges that he spent $1,000 for the "cure," but that his facial disfigurement was increased.

Suit Names Eight Others.

The suit names, in addition to Schireson, eight other men and women connected in March, 1930, with the establishment then called the "American Institute of Facial Rejuvenation," at 190 North State street. This corporation has since been dissolved.

Five of the men named are licensed physicians, according to J. E. Edwards of the state department of registration and education. Edwards said that complaints have been filed with the department asking that the five be taken before the medical committee to show cause why their licenses should not be revoked.

These men, according to the suit, are: Theodore Bernstein, Harold Miller Golden, Ray Raymond, Lazarus N. Choler, and Earl K. Lungford. The others named are Arthur C. Christensen, a "contact" man for the institute; Rose W. Roberts, allegedly Schireson's secretary at the time of the operation, and Mary Ambrose, reception clerk.

Fraud and Deceit Charged.

Schireson, the complainant charges, was known as "Mr. Franklin" about the institute. It was he, Knapp says, who told him his disfigurement, the result of acne, could be completely cured by an operation.

These claims constituted "fraud and deceit," according to the declaration of the suit, drawn by Attorney Hawes. "The defendants knew [at the time the promises were given] the nature of the plaintiff's facial disorder and knew that said disorder was incurable," the document says.

A sample of the treatment, as revealed by the suit, consisted of applying a hot medal rod to the scars on Knapp's face, "causing terrific pain and suffering."

The treatment occurred during March, 1930.

BANDIT ROBS RESTAURANT.

A gunman entered the Rakilos restaurant at 26 West Monroe street yesterday and forced the cashier, Burdett Wilbur, 302 South Leavitt street, to hand over $35.

EDWARD COVETS A ROADSTER AND LOSES HIS GIRL

Until recently Edward Hansen, 19 years old, 1435 West 105th place, was a frequent visitor at the home of George Thomas at 7941 Saginaw avenue. Hansen was interested in Thomas' daughter, Leona, 19 years old, and took her to parties and shows. He also displayed an interest in Thomas' shiny yellow sport roadster.

Mr. Thomas, a cement contractor, often lent his roadster to the young couple for their dates. A month ago it was stolen. Hansen expressed his sympathy to Mr. Thomas. A few days after the theft Hansen drove up to the Thomas home in a shiny black sport roadster. He gave Thomas and his daughter a ride. "It's too bad about your car, Mr. Thomas, but you can ride in mine now," he said.

Two weeks ago Hansen, who is a filling station attendant, was arrested for speeding. He was unable to produce records showing his ownership of the automobile and it was subsequently revealed that it was Thomas' car, repainted black. Hansen confessed that he had obtained duplicate keys and had stolen the car.

Judge Walter Stanton listened to the story yesterday in the Criminal court. He placed Hansen on a year's probation on a charge of petty larceny when Thomas and his daughter said they didn't wish to prosecute.

"But the romance is over," said Thomas. Leona nodded assent.

Chicago Couple Captured with Carload of Alcohol

Geno Palmeri and Arthur Grievy, Lake county deputy sheriffs, halted an automobile in which a man and a woman were riding on Deep Lake road near Antioch early today. In the car were found 135 gallons of alcohol. Taken to Waukegan and questioned by Sheriff Lester Tiffany, the couple said they were Jack Meyers, 29 years old, 515 Briar place, Chicago, and his wife, Joan, 23 years old. Mrs. Meyers was released on bonds of $2,000 after a hearing before Magistrate Harry Hoyt, but her husband was held in jail.

Hungarian Screen Beauty Seeks Hollywood Divorce

Hollywood, Cal., Dec. 29.—[Special]—Lucy Doraine [Mrs. Helena Kovacs Riethmueller], Hungarian screen beauty, today filed suit for divorce against Dr. Richard H. Riethmueller, surgeon and author. She accuses him of desertion. They were married here in 1928. Miss Doraine, famous as a European film star, formerly was wife of Michael Curtiz, movie director, who now is in Hollywood.

FEWER CRIMINAL CASES REVERSED BY HIGH COURT

State's Attorneys Hear Review of Year.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Trial courts and public prosecutors are increasing in efficiency as measured by the action of the Supreme court on appealed criminal cases, according to a review placed before the Illinois State's Attorneys' association yesterday at the closing session of its annual meeting in the Palmer house.

John W. Evans of Decatur, state's attorney of Macon county, who presented the report, said that during 1931 the lower courts were upheld in two-thirds of the criminal cases taken to the high bench. Out of 70 criminal appeals, 46 verdicts were upheld and 24 were reversed. Three-fourths of the work of the Supreme court originates in Cook county.

"The records show," said Mr. Evans, "that this is the highest percentage of cases affirmed since 1921."

Jury Case Held Important.

Considered from the point of view of court procedural reform, Mr. Evans rated the Bruner case as most important of the year. This was the case which led to a Supreme court decision that juries are judges of the fact and not of the law, overthrowing ancient Illinois procedure under which juries had been judges of both law and facts. It was brought about through a test case laid down by Judge Harry M. Fisher of the Chicago Criminal court, whose action in setting the new precedent was upheld.

Another important finding of the year to which attention was directed was the one in which the Supreme court declared unconstitutional the act allowing women to serve on juries. The grounds on which the court held the act invalid was that it carried a referendum clause, under which it was approved by popular vote. The Supreme court held this an unconstitutional delegation of the lawmaking powers. In essence, the finding punctured one phase of the "buck passing" habit in the legislature which showed signs of growing.

Only Four Rum Law Appeals.

"Only four liquor law cases were passed on by the Supreme court," reported Mr. Evans, "although the same number of cases appear in the lower courts as in the past. It indicates that many legal phases of the prohibition law have been settled by supreme decisions."

Amendment of the gun toting act was recommended by William D. Knight of Rockford, state's attorney of Winnebago county. He suggests changes to clarify provisions regarding the necessity of showing intent to commit crime, when a gun is carried in an automobile. Other recommendations of the legislative committee reported by Mr. Knight were:

The enabling of criminal prosecutions on information; monthly court terms; reclassification of crime.

To have juries instructed orally by the court and to give less than twelve jurors the power to return verdicts.

Wirt Herrick of Clinton is the new president and E. J. Coyle of Carrollton the new secretary of the association.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

NOW OR NEVER.

Arthur Sears Henning's striking article on the federal bureaucracy as a tax eater interprets the President's message of yesterday in terms of the concrete. The President asserts an unquestionable and momentous truth when he says: "The most constructive direction for economy in federal expenditure, beyond a rigid reduction of appropriations and the resolute opposition to new appropriations, lies in the consolidation of government bureaus and general reorganization of the federal government." On the same day Vice President Curtis declares that many millions of dollars could be saved by the cutting out of duplication in government work, and among important economies he urges the reduction of government printing, a huge waste of which the public knows virtually nothing.

Mr. Henning goes into figures and they are staggering. He calls attention to the fact that while in the last 15 years the population has grown 16 per cent, the number of federal employes has increased 37 per cent, and expenditures on the civil functions of the government have increased nearly 300 per cent. Citizens who yield to some plausible urge or special interest to demand a new federal service or a new federal expenditure and congress which yields to them would better think that over. In terms of the taxpayer's dollars Mr. Henning notes that the expenditures of the presidential office have now reached $1,625,000 a year, and that of congress over $9 millions, or about $57,633 for each senator and representative. His analysis of these expenditures we need not go into here, but readers of his article will conclude that very substantial retrenchments would be justified.

The waste of duplicated work in the innumerable bureaus is a still larger subject, but every one who is acquainted with conditions in the government services in any degree will support the President's and Vice President's assertion that the cutting out of overlapping work and the consolidation of the bureaus which produce it would save the overburdened taxpayers of the nation literally hundreds of millions of dollars annually. Besides consolidation there should be elimination of a great many of the activities which the federal government has undertaken in recent years, activities which overlap services better performed by states and communities, and which are no proper responsibility of the central government as wisely conceived by the founders of this republic.

All this is no new discovery. Consolidation of government offices has been studied and urged for years. The rapid approach of federal fiscal affairs to bankruptcy, as well as the business depression, have given this long needed reform a new lease of life. Yet the history of government in all countries warns us that bureaucracy has tremendous powers of resistance. Each bureau has its friends who favor economy in every respect except at its expense. Each bureau has plausible arguments not only for its existence but for its expansion. The spending of public money is the chief resource of politics, and the victims, the taxpayers, direct and indirect, are only half aware of their misfortune. The result has been the shelving of plans however well designed and urgently needed, and even in this time of critical need, economy, consolidation, and elimination, they will be defeated unless American citizens express themselves in a way which the most powerful influences of bureaucracy and politics must respect and obey.

This is a time in which victory may be hoped for by the people if they will fight for it. But the battle is only begun. It is a battle essential to national prosperity and American freedom. To lose it means the eventual destruction of our institutions and our welfare.

BAILIFF WEIL.

In a recent news report, and in an editorial based upon it, reference was made to several individuals named in the testimony of the timekeeper of the sanitary district law department as associated with gangdom. One of these was the brother of Yellow Kid Weil, Bailiff Ike Weil. Further inquiry has convinced THE TRIBUNE that the reference to Bailiff Weil and the implication of the article and editorial respecting him were erroneous and an injustice to him which THE TRIBUNE is glad to correct. Bailiff Weil has served for many years and is now serving in the courts of Cook county and, so far as our information goes, without responsible criticism. That he is related to a notorious character is not fairly to be held against him. It is his misfortune and not his fault, and THE TRIBUNE has no disposition to draw unjust inferences from it or encourage it by others. Bailiff Weil has a right to be judged on his own record and THE TRIBUNE has found nothing discreditable in the latter.

So far as Bailiff Weil's connection with the sanitary district pay roll is concerned, he asserts that he performed service for it and is ready to stand upon the facts when called upon.

THE WAGE ISSUE IN RECOVERY.

The expediency of reducing wage rates has been a question of more and more urgent importance as the depression has persisted. It has now, in several major industries at any rate, become a matter not merely of expediency but of necessity. With dividends drastically reduced or passed and with bond interest in danger, the railroads have been compelled to propose to their labor a reduction in wages, and the continued paralysis of the building industry has brought the same issue to a decision.

Fair minded labor undoubtedly realizes that there has been a more general and determined effort among employers in this depression than in any preceding to postpone and if possible avoid wage rate reduction. This is a substantial gain for labor which promises a return to the standard sacrificed in this emergency when economic conditions make it possible. There has been no loss of the ground gained by labor in the recognition that the American standard of living shall be maintained as far as controlling conditions permit, as a principle of the welfare not only of labor but of industry and American society generally. This principle has been acknowledged by responsible employers as well as by labor, the government, and the people, and it has been applied as long and as far as the great stress of business conditions made possible, in some cases farther than the interest of an industry and even that of its employes has justified.

The persistence of the depression, however, has forced a reluctant decision, conspicuously in the railroad and building industries. Railroad labor is confronted by the danger of further unemployment and the necessity of making sacrifices to avoid a financial predicament that would postpone for a long time a restoration of conditions permitting higher pay. The building trades face a persistent paralysis of construction which only a substantial reduction of building costs can cure.

This situation in building is indeed, or should be, clearer than in that of the railroads. Transportation is a continuous process and the difficulties which embarrass and deplete it have registered their results gradually. The railroads, with their diminishing revenues, have struggled on. Employment, though diminished, has continued. The railroads have had to operate. In the case of building the situation is different. Building goes by jobs. When a job is over and there are no more jobs to be found, the issue before labor is sharp and immediate. There is not the long process of detericration which conceals from railroad labor its own concern in the descent. In Chicago the building construction industry has reached a blank wall. It cannot budge so long as construction costs are what high wages have made them. Material is down, but the saving involved has not brought new orders.

Railroad labor needs more foresight even in the present acute emergency, though it does not have to look far now to see what is ahead. But building labor faces the full force of present conditions. Building jobs are not to be had today or tomorrow at present costs.

NOAH WAS A NATIVE SON.

The coach of the Tulane university football team now knows that what he should have taken to Pasadena was the swimming team. It's going to be water polo in the rose bowl for the Tournament of Roses game New Year's day between Tulane of New Orleans and the University of Southern California. The high mists of the sun kissed climate have flooded all the Los Angeles region. If a citizen slips on the street he must be brought up by a diver and resuscitated. Never was such a mist seen elsewhere. Two more days of it and Californians will have a new sales line: "Why go to Venice?"

The rose bowl where annually the golden glow of a California sun shines on the rose tournament game, whether it happens to be raining or not, is under water. Pumps are working on the lake, but the water is coming in faster than it can be pumped out, and the reports of the game are bound to deal with the breast stroke and the Australian crawl. Something new in sports may come from the golden California climate.

The federal government is spending $165,000,000 to provide water from the Colorado river for southern California. Many citizens in other states have regarded this as a most uncalled for disposal of public funds. How right they now seem to be! There would have been a tidy saving for the federal treasury if the government had minded its own business. If California gets any more water the native sons will become pelagic.

The Tulane boys who have been on what might otherwise have been called the ground for the last week or ten days say that they miss the golden sunlight of the south. It is another stroke of perverse fate that the team invited to the tournament game had to be from the south. But it might have been worse. It might have been the Florida team. Neither California nor Florida would have survived that. One would have passed out in rage and the other in ecstasy.

Editorial of the Day

[Des Moines Register.]

In presenting the first issue of the new quarterly "Liturgical Arts," the publishers announce the purpose of fostering "good taste, honest craftsmanship, and liturgical correctness" in the design of both modest and ambitious churches.

Until recently, the magazine points out, the missionary phase of church activities in the United States has required a preoccupation with spiritual matters that made concern for the material temple extremely difficult. And while the periodical is apparently Catholic in origin, much the same circumstances have surrounded the development of Protestant architecture.

In fact, the Protestant denominations have probably been slowest to develop a definite religious architecture, as well as a religious art. Not alone because Christian art had its genesis in what corresponds with the modern Catholic environs, but also because the reform movements purposely distracted emphasis from the material and sought to magnify the spiritual factor.

Nevertheless, the passing of what "Liturgical Arts" calls the missionary phase is being demonstrated in almost every denomination and cried by a constantly growing concern for the house of worship. There have already arisen in this country some notable examples of church architecture, and a greater encouragement of religious art will not likely be far behind. Whatever the goal be, the trend is definitely in the direction of more conspicuous artistry.

TREATMENT FOR BURNS.

THE treatment of burns and scalds, after very great improvement within the last ten years, has become pretty well standardized. However, there are still some, on the one hand, who use carron oil and who, on the other, fail to use tannic acid. Dr. E. I. Lloyd has a method which differs somewhat from that in general use.

To begin with, he is in no hurry to start local treatment. He says in a severe burn nothing is gained by any dressing to exclude the air. The skin nerves are too much injured to feel the burning which causes most people to apply quickly a protective dressing to mild burns. In the case of a severe burn he leaves it uncovered until the period of shock has passed. To overcome the effects of shock he gives morphine hypodermically or by mouth, and he uses fluids freely by mouth and by injection. He especially warns against the use of carron oil. If the burn is a mild one there is not the same objection to applying sterile vaseline or heated cream, but carron oil is seldom clean enough to make it safe.

As soon as the stage of shock has passed Dr. Lloyd gives attention to the burned area. He cuts away all charred tissue and all ragged edges. He punctures all blisters and removes the dead skin thereof. If it is necessary to give an anesthetic for the purpose of clearing away this débris he does not hesitate.

Next, a 2½ per cent solution of tannic acid in water is sprayed over the burned surface. This is repeated at intervals of one hour until about seven applications have been made. This causes the burned area to be covered by a leathery coat of tanned tissue. This completes the treatment for the time under all ordinary circumstances.

Later, the tanned layer comes away. After that a simple vaseline dressing is applied. Should anything go wrong after the tanned covering has formed, Dr. Lloyd makes some openings in this covering through which the secretions ooze.

The essential point that he makes as to this after dressing stage is that no wet dressings, no fomentations, and no gauze coverings are to be applied. All such do more harm than good. After the application of the tannic acid the wounded member—leg, arm, or whatever it be—is kept under a circus tent arrangement called a cradle and, while there, is subjected to light therapy from an incandescent lamp. This method of treatment is far less trouble than the methods used before the world war, and the results are far better.

Most of it, as used by Dr. Lloyd, is in fairly general use in the treatment of severe burns.

DON'T TAKE TO MOVIES.

A Reader writes: What is the danger of people bringing children with whooping cough into the movies?

REPLY.

The most dangerous of all ordinary contagious diseases under present conditions is whooping cough. It far surpasses typhoid fever, and diphtheria and scarlet fever are of trifling importance as measured by the deaths caused. It is contrary to law for a child with whooping cough to go to the movies. It would be possible to get more open air privileges for children with whooping cough if public sentiment and private conscience would prevent abuse of the privilege by taking infective children to the movies and other meetings.

DARK PASSAGEWAY.

Chicago, Dec. 23.—[Friend of the People.]—A month ago new lights were installed on Harper avenue between 57th and 59th streets. At this location there is a courtway, which is city property, necessitating four houses to be set back from the main street about 100 feet. Formerly this passageway was illuminated by the city, in view of the fact that it was city property. When the new lights were installed no provision was made for lights at this point and the result is total darkness every night, which makes it exceedingly dangerous. P. R. E.

An investigation of conditions here shows that this courtway was formerly illuminated by the city because of the fact that some thirty years ago this piece of property was dedicated to the city and assigned to the use of the bureau of small parks, but has never been used by this bureau as it is too small to be available for playground purposes or other public benefit. It differs but little from any large courtways found in many large apartment buildings now constructed around unavailable space. There is no traffic other than pedestrian and then only for the convenience of the residents at the rear end of this property. For the above reasons I do not believe that the department is justified in lighting this property.

W. A. JACKSON,
Commissioner of Gas and Electricity.

MAKER IS LIABLE.

Chicago, Dec. 22.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Kindly advise what steps to take to collect interest on real estate bonds bought at the bank. Do I have to make a claim in order to hold my rights on the bonds and interest? This bank is open. The coupon reads 7 per cent interest in case they are defaulted. I see no reason why the bank does not collect the rent and pay the interest. E. C. B.

The mere fact that you bought the bonds from a certain agency, such as a bank or investment broker, and that the bond may be payible at the office of such agency, does not mean that you can collect from the agency or that failure of the agency reduces your legal rights. You should continue to look to the maker whose name is signed to the bonds and to the pledged security. These should have been your principal reliance from the first.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

TO ORGANIZE A CLUB.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—I intend to organize a neighborhood workingman's social club, not for profit, and limited to about thirty members. 1. Is it necessary to have a charter for the club? 2. If a charter is taken will the club be subject to taxes of any kind? 3. Is it permissible to have two resident members on the club premises? 4. If the club is organized and in operation without obtaining charter are members subject to arrest and prosecution? A. H. S.

1. No.
2. If they own personal property they will be subject to personal property tax.
3. Yes, as far as the facts stated are concerned.
4. No. You can secure printed forms and information by writing to the secretary of state, Springfield, Ill.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may. E. S.

"SUICIDES SWEEP JAPAN."—The Trib. As we reflect on suicide, both in Japan and in other places much nearer home, we are driven to the old and unanswerable conclusion, "What's the use?" With automobiles snorting and plunging at you all over the place, whether you're a stiff necked pedestrian, sternly repeating, "Half of the road is mine," or whether you're driving one of the durned things, it's all the same. And when there's hootch made out of stuff the government has poisoned to keep you from drinking it, anti-freeze radiator alcohol, not at all intended as a beverage; preacher dry sleuths running around with shotguns, and bandits and gunmen in every alley, why commit suicide? Wait, brother, your case is liable to be taken care of by outside agencies almost any time.

And anyhow! Why suicide now? The world is all topsy turvy and all that, but it was never more absorbingly interesting than it is today. What's going to happen next? "Whom knows?" asks Cyril, laughingly.

There have been times in the history of the world when suicide could be logically excused. There were dull, uneventful years, when nothing happened and everybody was bored to tears. And old G. Death is much better than being bored to tears. But look at today! Gosh! there's something doing every minute! It's better than any circus. Grandfather lived a sweet, gentle life down on the farm and got up in the morning and slopped the hogs and fed the horses and milked the cows. Then he hitched old Dobbin to the shay and drove all over in the field of clover on his golden wedding day. Horrors! What a life!

Today—well, today is just one damthing after another. There's this thing has happened and that thing that's going to happen. We may get a dividend on some of our stock and we may be fired any minute. Who knows? Or who cares? What is life, anyhow, if it isn't interesting? Even if one is reduced to a crust of bread. What a kick there must be in having a crust of bread—if you haven't anything else. Anyhow, why suicide?

So remain in your seats, la'dees an' gen-tul-mun! Re-mem-buh, the big show is not hol-lof o-vah and the most a-ma-zing, as-tound-ing, thril-ling, and excit-ing part is yet to come! Stick around.

PERIODIC COMMENT.

I have not done with love, though love has bowed
This bright head for an hour too long and bleak;
Nor am I vanquished by the small, winged Greek
Whose cruel sport has humbled many proud;
Nor shall I beg, since begging is not meet
For her who wears a queenly arrogance;
And if some day, through some bewildering chance
We meet, my love, you'll find me cool and sweet.

For other loves shall quickly take your place
And other hands this chastened flesh caress,
And other lips explore this tinted face
And probably I shall not love them less.
But while they last, these heartaches are an ill
That temporarily upset me, still.

DAVIDA.

MR. MOSES (the Rep. Sen. from N. H.), author of the w. k. phrase "sons of the wild jackasses," has turned down an offer of $15,000 for a fifteen minute talk once a week over the radio. But, naturally, fifteen thousand bucks is pretty small for Sen. Moses. The Democrats would be willing to pay him fifty thousand.

ANYHOW, the talk of men with good jobs quitting them and going on strike is cheering in a way. We thought that every man that had a job nowadays worked at it all day and sat guard over it all night with a double barrel shotgun for fear somebody would steal it from him. Add "Good News of Good Times."

"GOVERNMENTS," declares Sir Harry Britain, speaking for England, "can't barter human beings." He was speaking on the proposition timidly advanced by individuals here and there in the U. S. A. that if Great Britain can't pay her war debts she might turn over some of her possessions close to this country. That sounds, indeed, noble, but how did Great Britain get possession of British Guiana, for instance? That part of Guiana once belonged to Holland, but it was turned over to England in a war settlement. The human beings there were bartered then. Why not barter 'em some more?

THEY USED to get together at watch night meetings on New Year's eve and weep over the dying year, which had left them so many sweet memories. But this year the most popular eulogy over 1931 will be "Git the hell outten here, you big bum!"

A GENTLEMAN is suing for divorce in Chicago on the ground that his wife kicked him in the face. Men are more and more finicky every pa sing year. Even if she had just kicked him in the tummy he would probably ask for a divorce just the same. Honestly, gels, there's no pleasing 'em.

NO MATTER what the occasion they always drag in the climate. We've just received a Christmas postcard from Los Onglaize. Now, a Christmas postcard is supposed to convey Christmas greetings and naught else. But listen to this verse that was printed on the Los Onglaize Christmas card under a picture in colors of roses as big as cabbages growing all around:

CHRISTMAS GREETINGS FROM CALIFORNIA.

Where roses bloom and climb the whole year round,
Memories of your snowcrowned trees my spirit thrills,
May joy this day within your heart abound.

Just a Christmas greeting! But notice the mention of roses blooming the whole year round. And the dirty dig about our snowcrowned trees. Hey, Los Onglaize, can't you even send a Christmas card without dragging in the climate?

THE JAPS continue marching on Chinchow. They want it for a New Year's gift. They could have had it for a Christmas present, but the Japs don't believe in Santa Claus. Nor in the League of Nations. R. H. L.

The Lesson of the Day

Times were not so good in 1857. In fact, just seventy-four years ago, prostration and panic were spread all over the world; but subsequent records show recovery—complete if not speedy. The subjoined article is reprinted from Harper's Weekly, vol. 1, page 642 of the issue of Oct. 10, 1857:

It is a gloomy moment in history. Not for many years—not in the lifetime of most men who read this paper—has there been so much grave and deep apprehension; never has the future seemed so incalculable as at this time. In our own country there is universal commercial prostration and panic, and thousands of our poorest fellow citizens are turned out against the approaching winter without employment, and without the prospect of it.

In France the political caldron seethes and bubbles with uncertainty; Russia hangs as usual, like a cloud, dark and silent upon the horizon of Europe; while all the energies, resources and influences of the British empire are sorely tried, and are yet to be tried more sorely, in coping with the vast and deadly Indian insurrection, and with its disturbed relations in China.

It is a solemn moment, and no man can feel an indifference [which, happily, no man pretends to feel] in the issue of events.

Of our own troubles no man can see the end. They are, fortunately, as yet mainly commercial; and if we are only to lose money, and by painful poverty to be taught wisdom—the wisdom of honor, of faith, of sympathy and of charity—no man need seriously to despair. And yet the very haste to be rich, which is the occasion of this widespread calamity, has also tended to destroy the moral forces with which we are to resist and subdue the calamity.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

DECEMBER 30, 1915.

LONDON.—It was announced at Lloyd's that the insurance rate on all cargoes passing through the Suez canal will hereafter be treble the present rate. The war office would say nothing on the subject, but it means beyond doubt that the gravest apprehensions are felt and that the presence of Turco-German forces near the canal must be a certainty.

WASHINGTON.—Fear that President Wilson is running amuck in the Ancona controversy with Austria has brought forth from Democratic leaders in the senate a pointed suggestion that he advise with that body before taking any further step of a vital nature. It is now the general opinion in official circles that Austria's forthcoming note will not comply with all the demands made by the President.

MINNEAPOLIS.—Thomas L. Shevlin of Minneapolis, millionaire lumberman and Yale football coach, died at his home here of pneumonia. He contracted a cold while coaching the Yale football squad last fall. He was 32 years old. He was considered one of the greatest ends that Yale ever had.

DECEMBER 30, 1901.

CHICAGO.—John Alexander Dowie is about to shake the dust of Chicago from his carriage wheels and go to live in Zion City, Lake county, where taxes are lower. "I am tired of this unjust taxation," shouted Dowie to his followers in the Auditorium. "Chicago differentiates between Zion and the other churches and I will stand it no longer." As the preliminary step to his change of residence, Dowie has reorganized his church, given up the old Central tabernacle on Michigan avenue, and established fifteen minor tabernacles in various sections of Chicago.

CHICAGO.—Hundreds of people surged around the Second Presbyterian church, Michigan avenue and 20th street, last night, eager to hear the address by Booker T. Washington. Men and women, white and black, pushed and pulled in an effort to pass through the broad doors at the same time. The address of Mr. Washington was a plea for the education of the Negro.

A LAKE FRONT IMPROVEMENT.

Chicago, Dec. 27.—Thank you for showing the taxpayer where part of his money is going by your printing in the rotogravure section Sunday a picture of the extension of Lincoln park. Already a white elephant, what is the difference between it and other public waste that THE TRIBUNE has been excellently showing up recently? And why expend public funds and increase the debt for a play place at a time of suffering for want of the necessities of life?

The picture shows "Clarendon beach, now far from the water's edge," as you state it, which was one of the finest beaches in this part of the United States. All its bathhouse and equipment becomes useless because of the fill in—and, Mr. Taxpayer, please look how far out into the lake the fill extends.

Golf grounds are hardly necessary when the poor are hungry. No excuse can be offered that this is an unemployment project, for the total number employed is nothing in comparison with the cost to the people. Sandsuckers employ few people.

A highway for traffic is wrongly located through a beauty spot and should be over west where traffic can take to it from both sides. This is a most important point. Why bring all the cars over to the lake front where we are trying to keep the water available to the people? Furthermore, we are not going so fast as we were in 1929—no, and not for some time are we likely to, nor will there be so many driving cars; so let's slow down, as THE TRIBUNE articles warn, and cut out waste. Chicago has gone from one extreme to the other. Mr. Wacker spent 20 years or so in getting things under way; and then, once under way, there is no reasoning in the spending. Let's get back to earth—and that right quickly, too. CITIZEN.

PROMOTION FOR HIM, OF COURSE.

Great Falls, Mont., Dec. 21.—Not that we lean over backwards in matters which touch upon our city's unfavorable publicity, but because an editorial in your paper of Dec. 15 entitled "The Deification of M. Lenin" said:

"Fortunately for Prof. Hart, he is not a Russian writing of Lenin. If he were, he could expect a one way ticket to Great Falls, Mont., and an appointment as assistant professor of free hand drawing in the high school."

The article is no doubt well written and must have a public interest to be placed in your paper, but I am unable to get the connection wherein reference is made as above quoted, and would appreciate some little explanation in order that I may answer the numerous inquiries which we are receiving here regarding the same. R. C. BRICKER,
Secretary, Great Falls Chamber of Commerce.

JOBS FOR AMERICANS.

Chicago, Dec. 15.—In substance I agree entirely with the letter of C. A. L. that American citizens should be given preference by employment managers. However, I would not discharge those now employed and would employ those who have made application for their first or second papers. Employment managers should insist that those now working and those seeking work have or make application for papers immediately.

In Europe 90 per cent of the employes must be citizens.

JEROME W. JUREWICZ.

THE GLAD TIDINGS.

Chicago, Dec. 25.—I wish to congratulate THE TRIBUNE on the front page for Christmas day. At first I thought I would not look at the paper today, just forget blood, murder and sudden death for one day, at least. And then when I glanced at the headlines I felt filled with joy and sat down to read the glad Christmas tidings. A READER.

Chicago, Dec. 26.—I desire to congratulate and thank you for your very appropriate Christmas day edition. The many interesting seasonal features are greatly appreciated. ALMER PENNEWELL,

MRS. C. H. CHALLEN.

PROPOSED REMEDY.

Joliet, Ill., Dec. 22.—May I suggest to you the following remedies which might be used to aid taxpayers in the present crisis?

Declare a moratorium on road building for one year. Use the state's share of the federal road fund and any excess fees over bond issue requirements from the sale of state license plates to complete projects now under contract.

Take all the gasoline fees, even increase the tax to 4 cents if necessary, and for one year turn the gasoline tax collections back to the counties each month. Start in January by giving every county its share of the gasoline tax up to 90 per cent of its 1931 automobile registration from the particular county. Specify that the county in turn each month must give the money to the city, county, and school boards for use of paying salaries.

Enact legislation forcing the combining of many of the taxing bodies, eliminating a lot of job holders. BILL HART.

SELF-MADE TROUBLES.

Benton Harbor, Mich., Dec. 21.—Your editorial "Who Lost the War?" certainly said a mouthful. However, I cannot help a sneaking suspicion that our financial straits and entanglements are our own fault, in some respects.

During the war our manufacturers were eager to sell war supplies to the allies. The allies bought tremendous quantities and paid for them with money borrowed from our bankers. In the course of time we had a big stake in an allied victory and when it appeared that Germany might win we were forced to jump into the dog fight in order to save our stake and make the world safe for prosperity. At the close of the war we saw our chance to muscle into German business and industry, and there was nothing wrong with that; but now our security had been sadly weakened by the Versailles treaty, the reparation racket, and the economic depression.

Thus we put Germany on the frying pan in an attempt to save the money we had bet on the allies, and now we have to pull her out again because of the money which we bet on Germany. H. N.

NEW YEAR'S EVE GIVES IMPETUS TO FRUIT SALES

Bottled Drinks Also in Heavy Demand.

BY PAUL POTTER.

Plans for a multitude of home parties to ring out the old year and ring in the new tomorrow night have increased the demand for fruits and bottled drinks.

Even sprigs of mint were found to be in favor for the finishing touch on clinking glassfuls of good cheer. Syrups were being moved into channels of consumption at an accelerated rate along with essences and cordials.

Old standby fruits of the holidays have been in such demand in the Chicago area that representatives of California, Florida, and Texas fruit growers reported shipments of citrus fruits approaching the heyday sales of 1928.

In the list of foods and drinks in heavy demand are oranges, lemons, grapefruit, grapes or grape juice, pineapples, apples, apple cider, ginger ale and near beer.

Dairy Products in Demand.

Milk distributors expected that the usual rise in sales of cream in proportion to milk would take place tomorrow and Friday mornings. The anticipated use of eggs for breakfast, for cakes or for eggnogs also caused a rise of a cent or two in Chicago egg market quotations Monday.

"Dairy drinks have lost very little of their popularity," said one distributor. "And I don't mean buttermilk, either, although this is coming to be a wintertime as well as summer beverage. But we could not help noting the trend toward toddies, Tom and Jerries, eggnogs, or milk shakes. Both ice cream and egg sales this week will show it."

"When people have learned the superior mixing and flavor lending qualities of grapefruit juice, they will see why we have reported an increased popularity in this citrus fruit juice," declared Sam Teague, manager of the Florida Citrus exchange, 1425 South Racine avenue.

"I would say that some 65 per cent of all our oranges, and a higher percentage of lemons, are consumed in the form of juices now," declared L. M. Hewitt, manager of the California Fruit Growers exchange at the same address.

Cherries Used in Drinks.

From the cherry growing areas of Michigan and Wisconsin came word that 1931 cherries have been made available in cans or bottles, not only for pies and pastries, but are being used in holiday beverages. To make two quarts of spiced cherry toddy, try this:

1 No. 2 can pitted cherries.
3 tablespoons lemon juice.
1 cup boiling water.
3 tablespoons sugar.
1 quart grape juice.

Drain cherries from juice and chop them. Soak orange rind, lemon juice, cherry juice water and sugar for 15 minutes. More sugar may be added if needed. Add grape juice and spices and simmer for 15 minutes. Serve hot or chill and serve with shaved ice.

MINT JULEP.

1½ cups sugar. Ice.

CIDER PUNCH.

3 oranges, juice. 1 quart grape juice.
3 lemons, juice. 1 cup sugar.
1 quart cider. 2 quarts water.

Add a little of the grated rind of orange and lemon to the juices and stir in the sugar and cider. Place in punch bowl over block of ice and serve in sherbet glasses. Makes about 4½ quarts.

WASSAIL.

2 tbs. allspice. 2 lemons, juice.
1 tbs. ground cloves. 1 cup sugar.
2 quarts cider.

Remove cores from apples and cut in rings. Bake until tender but not too soft. Add spices, fruit juice and sugar to the cider and bring to boiling point. Put the baked apple rings in a punch bowl and pour the hot cider over them. Serve hot.

HOUSEHOLD HINTS.

To keep the color, flavor and food value of green vegetables, such as string beans or asparagus, put them into boiling salted water and cook until just tender in an uncovered saucepan.

Eating a hunk of pie.
He stuck in his thumb, pulled out a plum:
"What a big payroller am I!"
—Apologies to Mother Goose.

BY WILLIAM IRVIN.

A new year is at hand, so now is the time to begin thinking up resolutions to break. It's best not to wait too long about breaking them, either, lest they become a habit. Who was it that said, "The bigger they come, the quicker they break them?" Never mind. That's another story, anyhow, but it recalls the story of the man who once resolved to eat no more steaks smothered in onions.

Well, when his two weeks were up his chef forgot to remind him, the chef having made a resolution to mind his own business, which he was so busy breaking that he didn't have time to do anything else. Believe it or not, the man went right on doing without his steaks smothered in onions, until one day his doctor looked him over and said, "My man, you're at the breaking point."

And that brings out another danger—that of making resolutions not easily broken. Anybody can make a resolution, but can just anybody break one? Certainly. So you see that if one hasn't the will power to break it he'd better think twice before making a resolution, because once a resolution becomes a habit, well—you're just Frankenstein, that's all. A resolution should be a beautiful, fragile thing—like Haviland china—and with precisel the same sound effects, on cement.

There's Table Manners.

All this, of course, has nothing to do with food, but we're coming to that. There may not be enough to go around, but we're coming to it just the same. We might pause a moment, however, to look at little Jack Horner, parked over in the corner sticking his thumb in pies. He ought to be in a corner, but still, he's a smart kid, picking up plums here and there.

This opens up the whole question of table manners. It's liable to stay open, too, because we can't think of anything with which to close the subject. We do think, though, that some attention should be paid to the matter of putting the elbows on the table, eating with a knife, reaching for things, and kindred breaches of table etiquet. We couldn't go any further than this, however, because we've always believed that a napkin under the chin is worth two in the lap and that tilting back in your chair is a good way to break your neck. It's your neck, isn't it?

Problem of Centuries.

The other breaches might well be made the subjects of resolutions, although they are condoned in certain circles. [But such circles.]

Some of them have perplexed mankind down through the centuries, as witness this letter from a Roman centaur to his wife in 800 B. C. "Dear Maggie: Is Hector still putting his elbows on the table? If so, how are the tacks holding out? They ought to cure him eventually. By the way, did you get my armour back from the shiner's and——" But this is enough of the letter to give you a general idea.

Then there is the whole field of eating, maybe it's a field of barley, which could be explored in finding something to make a resolution about. We might resolve, for instance, to eat more spinach and less spuds. For instance, mind you. Or we might resolve to eat more white meat than dark. Or we might resolve to ——.

CHICAGO TO EAT MILLION POUNDS OF FOWL FRIDAY

New Year's Prices Tend to Be Lower.

BY EVERETT SWINGLE.

Nickels and even dimes are being saved on each pound of the approximate total of 1,000,000 pounds of holiday fowl which Chicagoland households will consume for New Year's if one compares prices with those prevailing one year ago in retail markets.

This was true for Christmas, for those who shopped wisely even though picking the best fowl. Prices this week in the wholesale trade indicate that little change is apparent except that they might be slightly cheaper. Turkeys of large size, 15 to 20 pounds, are exceptionally plentiful, as the demand is for birds weighing 10 to 12 pounds, on the average.

Turkeys 33 to 35 Cents.

Retail stores are selling fresh turkeys—those which have been only in storage in transit, for 33 to 35 cents a pound. Ducks will be popular, although not exceptionally plentiful at 25 to 28 cents a pound, retail, with geese averaging three cents a pound less. Roasting chickens will be about 23 to 25 cents a pound for the best, with hens two to three cents less per pound.

Chicago differs from cities in the east in the selection of fowl for Thanksgiving, Christmas and New Year's. The turkey is the festive bird beyond doubt in such cities as New York and Boston for Thanksgiving, while Chicagoans at that time buy a greater portion of chicken, duck and goose.

But for Christmas and New Year's, the eastern cities find Chicago's population bests them per person in the matter of eating turkey. Charles E. McNeill of the Chicago Poultry board yesterday explained what Chicago housewives did to the market this week by their buying as they did last week.

Purchases Are Heavy.

"An evident scarcity of ducks and geese of all sizes and also of small turkeys and young hens indicated that purchases of those last week were heavier than usual," said Mr. McNeill. "As a result young hens are selling 1½ cents a pound more wholesale than young toms, which usually run heavier in weight per bird."

Wholesalers were offering turkeys at 28 to 29½ cents a pound for the best on the market. Ducks of the best quality yesterday were 20 cents a pound and geese 16 cents a pound wholesale. These prices differed little yesterday in a comparison in cities from coast to coast.

PILGRIMS WHO CAUSED MONDAY TO BE WASH DAY

It's the fault of our Pilgrim forefathers that Monday, the most unsuitable day of all the week, is the traditional "wash day" in the American home, says Miss Helen Bishop, head of the home management department at Iowa State college.

The Pilgrims landed on Sunday and the next day they washed. Since that time Monday has remained the habitual wash day. European housewives have no such tradition to uphold and wash whenever household circumstances warrant it, says Miss Bishop.

Disorder of the house, interference with personal activities and poorly planned meals are some of the things which make the family and the housewife's dislike the thought of Monday.

After the Sunday interlude, when general work is suspended, family members often have work which requires their immediate attention. If Sunday has been a day of rest, recreation and sociability the house will be in more or less disorder and the food supply depleted.

Washing on some other day of the week permits advance planning and preparation of appetizing food which will make the family welcome the wash day dinner.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Happy New Year! Yes, a happy, happy new year when it comes to this food business. May the next 366 days omit dish water coffee, burned toast, too rare beefsteak, and all of the lumps in mashed potatoes. May they also provide plenty of the good old standbys and add zest to the three daily menus with some interesting new concoction.

But don't resolve tomorrow night to test a whole array of new ideas on the family appetite in 30 or even 60 days. That will spoil it all. Act when the spirit moves you and you'll be surprised at your own creativeness. There are many suggestions to make when it comes to adding interest to recipes. But I will speak of only one, and that is color in foods. Scientists and dietitians predict that this subject will receive more attention in 1932.

Food to Match Service.

To satisfy the color consciousness of the modern housewife, government scientists are now providing food to match the breakfast, luncheon, or dinner service. If it is blue for the first meal of the day, let the cereal be blue, or again if the pattern on the dinnerware is red, why not red potatoes?

This is possible through the comprehensive list of permitted coal tar colors which includes two blues, four reds, one orange, five yellows, and three greens. The latest blue to be placed on the list is brilliant blue "FCF." The dye has been tested by the Federal Food and Drug Administration and found harmless.

"Everyone," says H. T. Herrick who is in charge of the color certification laboratory of the administration, "finds more zest in tasty foods which are pleasing to the eye. Nature colors grain, vegetables, flowers, and fruit lavishly and furnishes man many vegetable dyes now in common use. But nature is not infallible and sometimes slights a color. Then the scientist is called in to fill the deficiency so that the highest aesthetic demands of the public will be met."

Allows Use of Dyes.

The food and drug act permits the manufacturer to color his foods with pure and harmless colors. The act allows the use of pure and harmless dyes only, and it requires, further, that no color be used to cover defects or deficiencies in pure foods.

Before the food and drug administration approves a dye, it must pass the most rigid tests by government chemists to prove that it contains nothing harmful to the health. As a final test, the color is fed in large doses [many times more than would be used in human food] to animals. Sometimes fish are placed in a solution of the dye. If any of the tests give indication that the dye has harmful effects upon animal life, it is not allowed on the government's permitted list.

The concern of the food and drug administration is to protect every person who consumes foods or drugs. In general, when artificial colors are used in any food product, a statement to that effect appears upon the label. This is for the buyer's additional protection.

Color may be used in almost any food but it is most effective, perhaps, when applied to frostings, candy, cake, cookies, salads, and in the decorations for open sandwiches.

Following are listed two recipes, one a frosting and the other a candy, which call for coloring matter:

ORNAMENTAL FROSTING.

3 egg whites. Vegetable coloring.

Boil sugar and water until syrup forms a long thread when dropped from the tip of the spoon. Pour sirup gradually on beaten egg whites, beating constantly. Then add cream of tartar and vegetable coloring and continue beating. When stiff enough to spread, put thin coating over the cake. Beat remaining frosting until cold and stiff enough to keep in shape after being forced through pastry tube. After first coating on cake has hardened, cover with a thick layer and crease for cutting. If frosting is too stiff to spread smoothly, thin with few drops of water. With a pastry bag and variety of tubes, cake may be ornamented as desired.

TURKISH DELIGHT.

2 cups sugar.
Red and green coloring.
Juice and grated rind of 1 lemon.
Juice and grated rind of 1 orange.

Soak the gelatin in cold water. When the sugar and hot water, in saucepan, reach boiling point, add the gelatin and simmer 20 minutes. Add flavorings. Divide mixture into two parts and color one red, the other green. Strain into bread pans that have been rinsed in cold water. Candy should be at least ½ inch deep. When cold turn out onto a board and cut into cubes. Roll in powdered sugar. Arrange in boxes checkerboard fashion.

Household Hints

Put a paper bag over the mouth of the chopper to keep the crumbs from scattering when using a meat chopper to prepare bread crumbs.

MINNESOTA HAS NEW VARIETY OF HUBBARD SQUASH

Bigger and better hubbard squashes may henceforth be grown in Minnesota with a new variety, the new Brighton hubbard, being introduced by vegetable breeders of the Minnesota agricultural experiment station. Dr. F. A. Krantz and A. E. Hutchins, Minnesota university farm, who developed the new variety, describe it as follows:

The new Brighton hubbard is intended to meet the demands for a large, green hubbard. Besides having a desirable size, averaging about 20 pounds, attractive shape and color, it possesses in addition, high quality and yield. The flesh is mealy, uniformly thick over the surface, with a well filled neck. Compared with six commercial seed lots of hubbard squash, the new Brighton hubbard gave the highest yield, outyielding five of the seed stocks by 25 per cent.

COLDS THAT DEVELOP INTO PNEUMONIA

Persistent coughs and colds lead to serious trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with two-fold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and inhibits germ growth.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by high medical authorities as one of the greatest healing agencies for persistent coughs and colds and other forms of throat troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. (adv.)

DR. T. L. GILMER, NOTED SURGEON, TEACHER, DEAD

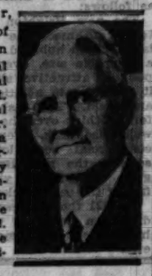
Word was received in Chicago yesterday of the death of Dr. Thomas Lewis Gilmer, dean emeritus of the Northwestern university dental school and oral surgeon at St. Luke's hospital since 1892. Dr. Gilmer died of a cerebral hemorrhage Monday night in St. Vincent's hospital in Los Angeles. He was 82 years old. The body will be brought to Chicago for burial.



DR. GILMER.

Dr. Gilmer's daughter, Mrs. Virginia Ames, was at the bedside. Dr. Gilmer had gone to Arizona for the winter. He and his daughter were in Los Angeles for the holidays when he was stricken. His Chicago home was at 400 Deming place.

Long Professional Career.

Born in Lincoln county, Missouri, Dr. Gilmer had a long and distinguished career in teaching, writing, and the practice of dentistry and medicine. After attending the public schools until he was 15 years old, he went to the New Hope academy, near his home, and the Woodhull academy at Scottville, Ill. He married Ella M. Bostick of Scottville in 1863.

Dr. Gilmer received a D. D. S. degree from the Missouri dental college in 1881 and an M. D. degree from the Quincy College of Medicine in 1885.

Dr. Gilmer was chairman of the original group which organized the dental school at Northwestern university in 1891. He was dean of the school from 1915 to 1918. In 1918 he became dean emeritus and was succeeded in the active deanship by Dr. Arthur D. Black, the present dean.

Surgeon Here Since 1889.

Dr. Gilmer had practiced oral surgery in Chicago since 1889. He was a member of the University club and belonged to several medical and dental societies. He was a yachtsman and the owner of several boats.

The earliest record of Dr. Gilmer's ancestors dates back to Craigmiller castle in Scotland in 1374. The Gilmer family in Scotland, England and America has had many lawyers and surgeons. The first of the group in this country was George Gilmer, who practiced medicine in Williamsburg, Va., in 1731. His son was also a physician and a close friend of Presidents Jefferson and Monroe.

Expenses of administration, debts, income taxes and amounts advanced cut the $1,477,716 estate to $1,019,774.

NEW MINIMUM PRICE SCALE IS SET BY BARBERS

A new scale of prices for barber service in Chicago was announced yesterday by Dr. B. M. Squires, arbitrator for the United Master Barbers' association and local 548 of the Journeymen Barbers' union. Haircuts for men and women, under the new scale, will be not less than 50 cents, according to Squires' announcement. Haircuts for children will be not less than 25 cents, and the minimum price for shaves 25 cents. No maximum price was mentioned in the statement. The aim of the so called reduction, it was said, was to avert "indiscriminate price cutting."

RADIO STATION MUSICIANS TO QUIT TOMORROW

Slim Hope Is Seen of Averting Strike.

Final plans were drawn yesterday by the Musicians' union and the Broadcasters' association in preparation for the strike of radio station orchestras and musicians tomorrow night. Only one hope remains for averting the strike, which already has been called by James C. Petrillo, president of the Chicago Federation of Musicians.

That is the possibility of intervention by Joseph N. Weber, president of the National Federation of Musicians, who will arrive in Chicago at 9 o'clock this morning to confer with officials of the Chicago union. This possibility was considered remote, however, since Weber has previously indicated his approval of Petrillo's action.

Stations to Fight It Out.

Following a meeting of the members of the Chicago Broadcasters' association, Attorney Joseph B. Fleming announced that the stations remained firm in their stand to refuse all demands of the union.

"We will fight this through," Mr. Fleming said. "Reports that stations are treating individually with the union are unfounded. We will present a unified front and fight it out."

At a meeting this morning representatives of the association stations will complete their program to meet the strike.

"The broadcasting stations will continue to function," Mr. Fleming said, "and will give service to the public. The strike has been forced on us and we will not permit it to impair our service. The stations operate under a federal license requiring service of a certain type and specifying that the stations must operate at certain hours. We will continue full service."

Prepare Counter Demands.

A list of counter demands to the union requests have been prepared by the Broadcasters' association and will be presented today. The main point stressed will be the demand for a formal contract, heretofore not in use, one of the chief points of which will be the creation of an arbitration board for all controversies.

At their meeting yesterday the broadcasters emphasized that Chicago radio musicians are already the highest paid in the country and that a change from the present seven day week to a six day week with seven days' pay, as demanded by the union, means a 15 per cent pay increase. A radio musician's day is five hours.

The broadcasters said they will demand an end of the union requirement for the use of musicians at the union scale for nonskilled work. In all stations men are employed to handle electrical transcriptions, merely turning records. They are paid at union scale for five hours when half the time they have nothing to do, the broadcasters assert.

ALDERMEN O. K. APPOINTEES TO HEALTH BOARD

Bundesen, Schmidt and Dombrowski.

The city council yesterday approved Mayor Cermak's appointments of Dr. Herman N. Bundesen to be president of the reorganized board of health and of Dr. Louis E. Schmidt and Dr. Edward F. Dombrowski to be members of the board.

The action placed in control of the health activities of the city two physicians, Dr. Schmidt and Dr. Bundesen, whose connections have been severed with organized medicine, as represented by the city, state and national medical societies.

Dr. Schmidt, a leading physician in the city, was expelled by the Chicago Medical society because the Illinois Social Hygiene league, a philanthropic organization of which he is president, had a financial connection with the Public Health institute, an organization which the medical societies have pronounced unethical because it advertises for patients.

Dr. Dombrowski, the third member of the board, was graduated from the Loyola university medical school in 1914, served his internship at St. Mary's hospital, and since then has been engaged in the general practice of medicine at 1530 North Damen avenue.

The board of health was reorganized recently in an ordinance which abolished the post of health commissioner held by Dr. Bundesen. He receives the same salary, $10,000 a year, in his new post as he did in the old one. The other two members serve without salary.

The will of Selig Morris, one of the earliest residents in the Chicago Jewish colony, was admitted to probate yesterday by Oscar S. Caplan, assistant of Probate Judge Horner. The estate is valued at more than $1,000,000. Mr. Morris, who died Dec. 15 at the age of 84, was brought to Chicago by his parents in 1856. He was in the iron and metals business. His home was at 1110 Independence boulevard.

Bequests of $52,000 were made to various Jewish institutions and charities. They included $25,000 to the Congregation Anshe Sholom, 745 Independence boulevard; $5,000 each to the Hebrew school of the congregation, the Chicago Jewish Charities, the Marks Nathan Jewish Orphan home, and the Chicago Jewish Home for the Aged. An additional $5,000 was left in trust for the Jewish charities to be paid upon the death of a granddaughter, Sallie Marks, and $2,000 was bequeathed to the Moses Montefiore Hebrew Free school.

Mrs. Bessie Morris, the widow, receives $200,000 and the remainder of the estate is left in trust for seven children—Mrs. Sadie Marks, Mrs. Emma Elpin, Mrs. Annie Maremont, and Moses, Louis, Benjamin, and Abraham Morris. A grandson, Joseph Epstein, is to share in the trust fund if he marries within the Jewish faith.

Sagas of Seas, Sail and Steam, Here for You

With Much of Britannia and the Waves.

BY AL CHASE.

"Home from the Sea," by Sir Arthur B. Rostron [Macmillan].

"Tramps and Liners," by T. W. Van Metre [Doubleday-Doran].

THIS season has been strangely lacking in outstanding books on the sea. Only a few have bobbed up during the year above the mass of fiction, biography and travel, and most of these have been in recent weeks. The three mentioned above are perhaps the best of their kind, with the briny autobiography of Sir Arthur H. Rostron easily the most entertaining.

His "Home from the Sea" is a stirring saga of the deep from the days of sail down to present era of ever larger liners. Sir Arthur wields a lusty pen with humor and a working knowledge of that newspaper quality known as "human interest," and the result is a buoyant biography, full of thrills and picturesque personalities.

His chapters about the great and near great, titled and just plain citizens who crossed and recrossed the Atlantic with him are both pointed and pungent. His outspoken comments on queens, princess, dukes and on down to ordinary you and me are both humorous and illuminating.

He was captain of the Carpathia when it rescued 706 of the 2,000 aboard the Titanic, and his chapter on this great ocean epic is a vivid and enthralling picture of the sea's greatest tragedy.

Sir Arthur's chapter on "The Americans" will give the Yankee reader an especially warm and friendly feeling for this robust British captain.

Every one who's crossed the Atlantic will revel in this book, even if they never rose to the heights of the poorest of the liners. It's an unusual autobiography of one of the sea's most picturesque figures.

In "Spanning the Atlantic" F. Lawrence Babcock has done for the floating hostelries of the ocean what Jefferson Williamson did last year for the hotels on land, a book also published by Knopf. Mr. Babcock's volume is more than a mere history of one line; it's a well written and well illustrated story of a great marine development, from the days of tiny sailing ships down to the as yet unnamed "No. 534."

The latest great Cunarder, now on the ways at Glasgow, will be more than a thousand feet long and will accommodate 5,000 passengers. The ship's power will be about equal to 160,000 galley slaves rowing in unison. The original "mammoth" Britannia of the Cunard line could be held, hull and superstructure, in one of the new ship's three funnels.

Mr. Babcock, by the way, generously mentions Sir Arthur Rostron and his Titanic rescue, but always excepts that salty old sea dog's name.

"Spanning the Atlantic," like "Home from the Sea," will interest any one who has done any oceaning as well as the fireside traveler. It's an entertaining and well written chronicle of trans-Atlantic shipping, full of interesting details of ships and passengers.

T. W. Van Metre, professor of transportation at Columbia university, has written a companion volume to his "Trains, Tracks and Travel," published a few years ago, which is well named, "Tramps and Liners."

He pictures carrier vessels from the slave driven galleys of Roman times to the days of giant trans-Atlantic liners. He has a chapter on "What Makes Them Go" which tells of sailing ships and then on down to the modern turbo-electric liners of today.

There's a chapter telling how ships are built and also on the loading and handling of liners and tramps. Another chapter takes the reader from hull to bridge, showing him places which even a seasoned globe trotter probably never sees.

It's one of the best illustrated books of the sea we've enjoyed reading—with 136 photographs and line drawings. It's an informative volume, with authoritative data gathered by a man who knows the sea, and told so interestingly and simply that it'll be read by youngsters as well as grownups.

In "The Romance of Transport" Capt. Ellison Hawks, Britain's sportsman, traveler, and author, has covered a vast and picturesque field with a thoroughness and keen insight into the interesting angles of his subject that make his volume a fascinating one to both grownup and youngster. He spans the centuries of travel, from sluggish primitive methods down to dashing modern transportation with its liner, limited and airplane, with a surprising combination. The book, printed in England, by the way, contains a colored frontispiece and 167 delightful illustrations. A worth while volume.

"Sea Dogs of Today," by A. J. Villiers [Holt], is not a second "By Way of Cape Town" or "Falmouth for Orders" but to any one who loves deep water happenings it'll prove an eminently satisfying volume. It's not a chronicle about the modern sea dog, as the title would indicate. It's a collection of facts and thrills of the sort going back many years. There are tales of shipwrecks, mutinies, and sheer adventure on both sailing ships and steamer, and with the shellback being pictured by an author who knows he's old life first hand. At the end is a list of all the windjammers now sailing the seven seas. Britain, strange to say, hasn't a one left.

By Mae Tinée.

Good morning!

The cast is peopled with able and personable players who, with the exception of the man who plays an asinine police sergeant, manage their rôles in a fashion to keep suspense sustained. This player's inadequacies we'll blame on script and direction. Police officers detailed on important cases, must SOMETIMES act as if they had ordinary human comprehension. But cinema strong-arms-of-the-law seldom behave as if they possessed even the sense that God gave geese—and you know geese.

The action centers in the murder, at a house party, of a blackmailer who was one of the guests. Suspicion, of course, attaches itself firmly to every member of the group. To the aid of the police inspector—played with considerable intelligence by Thomas Jackson, and his assistant, the aforementioned sergeant,—comes a writer of murder mystery novels. He puts his fictional theories to a test, and shows the law a thing or two. Jameson Thomas plays this clever author. You will remember him as the café owner in that splendid English production, "Piccadilly." Give him a chance and he's great! This rôle, however, offers him little opportunity to display his histrionic prowess.

Direction is spotty—fine here, amateurish there. Sound, etc., stack up well. As a whole, "The Devil Plays" passes muster as an entertaining baffler. [Though can't say much for the title!]

STORY—The story isn't any too new, but the acting, scenery and charming music make the picture enjoyable. The tale told is of a damsel who loves a poor but handsome musician, Hans Ritter, against the wishes of her father, postmaster general of the village, who picked a wealthy farmer as his son-in-law. Hans writes an opera and dedicates it to Anna, and finally goes to Vienna to market it. The postmaster burns Hans' letters to his daughter, who finally succumbs to the persuasion of her father and weds Leiseitner on the day the man she's honing for wires news of the acceptance of his opera, money that's been advanced on it, and his arrival that evening. Scheming Papa reads the telegram aloud as a message of congratulation from Hans and goes to break the news at the railroad station. The heart-broken lover wanders off in the darkness. His opera is a great success, but he himself is not to be found. A body containing his papers is fished from the river. . . . Do you think he's been drowned, alannas? If so—well, see pix. There's lots more to the story.

See you tomorrow!

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

HERE comes Channing Pollock, a playwright of the Old Guard, and always a sound workman, vigorously leading a counter-revolution in the drama. His "The House Beautiful," which appears at the Harris theater as the fourth offering in the Dramatic league's season, flaunts the white plume of sentimentality and ideals, and declares war against the jeering hosts of modern cynicism.

This play might be called an "Everyman" of the American suburbs—and an "Everywoman," too. It deals with the adventure in home building of an average married couple; with their steadfast faith in the sweet and simple aspects of life; with their resistance to cheapening and corrupting follies; with their contentment and their sorrows; with their failure to achieve riches and their complete conquest of happiness. It carries them from the honeymoon to the grave, and gently wafts them off to heaven, as a man and a woman who have plugged along, and done their best, and kept their hearts clean and their heads up.

Mr. Pollock tells this story as a propagandist and an allegorist. Apparently he decided that Mr. and Mrs. Everyman of the U. S. A. are wonderful enough, in their plain, sentimental way, to serve as the theme of a morality play; and that he would write it as a challenge which no sneering sophisticate could escape. So he was not content to paint a quiet, realistic picture of a happy home life in the suburbs; with the bravado of a crusader he slapped the romantic color on thick.

Accordingly "The House Beautiful," ingeniously staged in many scenes, alternates between realism and fantasy. Mrs. Everyman regards her husband as a knight in shining armor, and the audience frequently sees him visualized in medieval and chivalric glamour. The whistle of the train that summons him to work is for her a trumpet calling him to battle for his lady fair; and in this phase of her dreams you hear a mystic fanfare of Tennysonian echoes. The play is elaborately tricked up with devices of this kind. Mr. Pollock has employed them as if bent upon enjoying a thoroughgoing romantic spree.

These fairy tale aspects of "The House Beautiful" might be somewhat ridiculous if Mr. Pollock had not contrived to make the actual life of his two central characters winsome and appealing. Moreover, Mary Philips plays Mrs. Everyman—her real name is Jennifer—as exactly the kind of woman who can insist that her husband is a knight of King Arthur's Round Table and still keep the respect and affection of her neighbors. However, I found the view of Mr. Everyman's son less cloying and more inspiring. That sound young man spoke his father's epitaph in a line that told the full story: "He was a square shooter."

Miss Philips and James Bell dominate the performance, carrying the two central characters from youth to age with fine skill. However, they seem to grow old too fast, for they are worn out and ready for Paradise in the early 50s. The others in the cast are right for their rôles, and in the matter of interpretation the subscribers to the Dramatic league have nothing to complain of.

"The House Beautiful" has an emotional quality that you cannot escape, no matter how skeptical you may be over knights in shining armor. The play insists upon decency and honor and the virtues of the American home—therefore it is, in this bawdy theatrical era, a distinct novelty.

BEG YOUR PARDON!

State Senator Guy L. Smith [Rep.] of Pana, Ill., was incorrectly listed in yesterday's TRIBUNE as the sponsor of W. A. Potts, an attorney of Pekin, Ill., as a sanitary district pay roller drawing $416 a month. Former Senator Ben L. Legion Adds to Fund to Feed Hungry Pupils

Will Seek Cash Among Various Posts.

A contribution of $25 to the Hungry School Children's fund was received yesterday from the Square post, No. 232, the American Legion. An accompanying letter from the post commander, Nate T. Felt, follows:

"Paul G. Armstrong, commander of the Cook county council, the American Legion, through the child welfare committee, is starting a drive among the Legion posts in the county to raise funds to provide food for the needy school children.

"This we believe is in line with our activities in child welfare and Square post, No. 232, is happy to have this opportunity to contribute $25 to this worthy cause. We hope that every post takes a hand in the campaign."

A money order for $4.50 was received from room 215, the Carl Schurz Evening school, 3600 Milwaukee avenue. A letter in a childish hand declared: "May this contribution aid you in making a few more youngsters healthy and happy!"

Joseph Levy, of the Charles Levy Circulating company, 1626 West Lake street, wrote: "Inclosed please find our check for $8.15 for the Hungry School Children's fund. This money was collected among our employés today in a spirit of Christmas and we know it will help in a worthy cause." The letter was dated Dec. 24.

From Mrs. N. P. Pond, Knorr sanitarium, in Rochester, N. Y., came a check for $5. "L. T." contributed $100. One dollar came from Mendota without a name attached.

Minneapolis, Minn., Dec. 29.—(AP)—One man, in the opinion of Prof. Julius W. Pratt of the University of Buffalo, deserves most of the credit for the territorial expansion of the United States.

That man, Prof. Pratt told the American Historical association here today, was Rear Admiral A. L. Mahan, naval officer, historian and close friend of the late President Roosevelt. The movement for expansion, Pratt declared, primarily was one of the intellectuals rather than the business interests of this country.

"If the new imperialism was economic," he said, "there is no evidence that it got its initial impulse from the business world. It was only after the victories in the Philippines and the West Indies that business men awoke to the apparent opportunities presented there. The impulse came, apparently, from intellectuals rather than from business men."

The Rev. Dr. Edmund A. Walsh, vice president of Georgetown university, Washington, D. C., attacked soviet Russia. He asserted that since the revolution of 1917, it has confiscated church property and imprisoned bishops, priests, and other church workers "in defiance of every law except its own, which is based on the theory that religion is opiate to the people."

Within the area now under soviet power, the Roman Catholic church, in 1917 had 614 churches in operation, 581 chapels, 810 priests, 7 seminaries, and 8 bishops, Dr. Walsh said. Now, he asserted, there are 182 churches, no chapels, no seminaries, 110 priests at liberty and 200 in prison, with 2 bishops at liberty and 3 in prison.

"Two hundred priests languish in prison—the remainder of those formerly in service have perished from privation and starvation or have been exiled and executed," Dr. Walsh said.

BY EDWARD MOORE.

THOUGH Mme. Pampanini did not join the Civic Opera company until the season was comparatively well advanced, the best advice that can be given this morning is not to fail to attend one of her performances before the season is over. She is both a singer and a personality of the stage, and each to a marked extent.

Of all the Cho-Cho-Sans that have appeared here for twenty years and more, hers is by far the most tragic. Vocally she classifies as a lyric soprano, but there is power enough in her voice when she chooses to let it go to put her near to being dramatic. As to quality, she can bring out about as many colors at will as Fritz Kreisler can on the strings of his violin. They range from a lovely, wooing caress of tone to a harsh scream of rage.

For this Cho-Cho-San was acting physically and vocally every minute of the time. Even "Un bel dì," a solo wherein most sopranos choose to stand still and project all they know of the art of technical singing, became in her version a miniature drama. It may thereby have become less of a song, but it certainly was a great deal more of a show.

She bubbles over with exuberance and she is not in the least averse to displaying it. When she laughs there is no mistake about what she is doing; her soba can be heard to the back of the auditorium. This may not be altogether what a Japanese girl would do, but it is something that the ear approves and the eye follows with constant interest, so it is better. Still better, she is canny in the ways of the stage. She knows the value of rhythm, of contrast, of climax, and she plays them deftly and unerringly.

Wherefore "Madame Butterfly" became more exciting last night than it has been for a number of years.

Her surrounding cast had its high spots and a few lower ones. One of the highs was Mr. Hackett's Pinkerton. Never in my hearing has he given a performance of it that had such good singing, such ease of manner, or such a well rounded impersonation. It was fully fit to rank with Mme. Pampanini's Cho-Cho-San.

Hotels and Night Clubs Making Plans.

CHICAGO has swung into preparation for bidding 1931 a last farewell. The parting, it is indicated by the number and kind of parties being chalked down on the Yew Year's eve schedule, will be accompanied with less grieving than in many a year.

Reservations at hotels, clubs and cabarets give some assurance that revelers will dine and drink in one manner or another to the passing of the old year without sadness or regret. And to make the celebration within the reach of most, many downtown hotels have set an "all expense" price, including food, dancing and entertainment, much below that charged last year. This ranges from $2.50 to $10 or more.

A choice of three rooms and as many bands is offered by the Congress hotel, the scene of many gay parties in the past. The Morrison hotel plans to hold a celebration in the Cameo room, where for $2.50 guests may dance and dine the old year out. The grand ballroom, the Bal Tabarin and the College inn at the Hotel Sherman already have been chosen by many making reservations for New Year's.

The Stevens hotel reported that reservations are twice those of last year, so they have made plans to hold the party in the exhibition hall in the basement and call it an "Ally-Opp" party with dancing and entertainment. Reservations at the Blackstone and the Drake hotels were reported up to normal.

The Palmer house, following its usual custom, will have no public celebration on New Year's eve. The five public dining rooms will close at 9 p. m., as usual. But the entire fourth floor, including the grand ballroom and the red lacquer room, has been leased by the Interfraternity club of Chicago, which has its permanent home at the Palmer house. Other private rooms have also been engaged for the evening.

The Club D'Orient will hold a dinner dance in the crystal ballroom of the Hotel Knickerbocker with a cotillion from 11 to 12, and supper at 1 a. m. The Alphi Chi fraternity will also hold a dinner-dance at the Knickerbocker. At the Shoreland the Casa del Mar Country club will give a dinner-dance.

Capacity crowds are anticipated at Planet Mars, where there will be Texas Guinan, an eight course dinner and imported favors. Colosimo's and the Frolics expect capacity crowds, as are other night clubs, such as the Vanity Fair, Club Alabam and the Rubaiyat.

Not all the New Year celebration, however, will center in hotels and night clubs. Religious services will be held in many churches, while throughout the city watch parties will be held in many a home.

Special New Year's services will be celebrated at St. James church, East 29th street and South Wabash avenue, for the benefit of the old parishioners of the church, Friday morning, beginning at 3:30 o'clock, according to the Rev. Father James P. O'Donoghue.

A proclamation calling upon all Salvation Army officers and workers to observe watch night at midnight New Year's eve, was issued yesterday by Commissioner W. A. McIntyre, territorial commander, who declared:

"While I realize that the strength of all Salvation Army officers has been taxed to the utmost during the last few months because of the great demands made upon them for relief, yet I hope all will pause sufficiently long from their administration of service to distressed humanity to invoke the blessings of Deity upon the work of the army, and pray for renewed vigor for the work of the coming year."

Reviving the ancient custom of keping open house on New Year's day, afternoon and evening, the 16 departments of the Y. M. C. A. in the neighborhoods outside the loop will be open to visitors. Various programs will be given.

Between 300 and 400 children of the Municipal court clerk employés will be entertained at the first annual Joseph L. Gill Christmas party to be held in Kimball hall today.

Teachers Vote for Dry Law, Tax Reforms

Hear Present Methods Hotly Attacked.

Springfield, Ill. Dec. 29.—(AP)—Campaigns of propaganda for enforcement of prohibition laws and for centralization of tax assessing responsibility will be carried out by Illinois teachers during 1932, delegates to the 78th annual meeting of the Illinois State Teachers association decided today.

Officers for next year were elected at the afternoon session when the members approved a slate drafter by the nominating committee last night. The new president who will succeed John A. Hayes, of Peoria, is J. R. Skiles of Evanston.

The campaign to enforce prohibition and to inculcate doctrines of temperance will be carried out in the school rooms of the state. The drive for centralizing responsibility for tax assessments, however, will be carried directly to the legislature.

Censuring some Chicago members of the general assembly for "playing politics" during the present special session, the association by unanimous vote approved a bill now before the house of representatives for the abolition of the Cook county board of review and assessors and providing for the substitution of a centralized board.

Robert Keenan, Chicago high school teacher, declared that "fraudulent and crooked assessments made under the present system have destroyed Chicago's credit and almost forced hundreds of school teachers to starvation."

In another resolution the teachers advocated improvement of tax assessment and collection machinery in all counties, through the centralization of authority. They defeated a proposal for the elimination of township school treasurers and township trustees.

Voting on the resolution favoring the 18th amendment and conducting of an education campaign in its behalf, threw the meeting into turmoil.

A standing vote showed more than two-thirds of the delegates for the resolution. Many of those who voted against it were women. The resolution as passed follows:

"The Illinois State Teachers' association stands in favor of the 18th amendment to the federal constitution and the laws enacted thereunder. We urge vigorous and impartial enforcement and pledge our support to an active educational compaign in the schools in behalf of the habits of living for which the 18th amendment stands."

Such an Education campaign in the schools of the state was authorized under a law that was enacted in 1897 and that has remained on the books ever since.

The teachers also will urge on the legislature, the appropriation of more money for state normal schools, creation of larger school districts and teachers' pension laws.

Officers, in addition to Mr. Skiles, elected today were: George O. Smith of Princeton, first vice president; V. B. Jefferies, Charleston, second vice president; W. C. Handlin, Lincoln, third vice president, and Miss A. Luella Hill, East St. Louis, executive committee.

The annual Fathers and Sons' luncheon of the Yale Club of Chicago was held yesterday in the Bal Tabarin at the Sherman hotel. John R. Winterbotham, Jr., president of the club, presided, and Hopewell Rogers, John S. Wilbur, captain of next year's football team, and Prof. Elliott Dunlap Smith of the university faculty spoke.

Rogers said the nine students sent to the university under the club's Yale Scholarship Trust fund had made a higher average grade of 83.3 while other scholarship students made 79.4 per cent. More than one-third of all students at the university are working their way wholly or partly through school, he said.

Wilbur urged the fathers to start their sons in training for football careers at 6 years. Prof. Smith explained the new residential house plan that will go into effect in the fall of 1933 at the university.

SCHOOL CHORUS SINGS WITH STOCK'S ORCHESTRA AGAIN

Musical contributions from the Chicago public schools to the Chicago Symphony orchestra were the same yesterday afternoon as in the pair of concerts ten days ago. That is to say, the chorus from the high schools sang in Beethoven's Choral Fantasy and Lambert's "The Rio Grande" with the orchestra and Winifred Macbride as piano soloist, and also three unaccompanied songs under the direction of Dr. J. Lewis Browne. Likewise a band from the All-Chicago High School Symphony orchestra assisted Mr. Stock and his men in Glazounow's "The Kremlin." But for some reason not altogether easy to explain, it all sounded about twice as effective as it had before.

Mr. Stock included a different set of orchestral music, all of a wonderfully expressive and persuasive holiday character. There was the Pastorale from Bach's "Christmas Oratorio," the Dance of the Angels, from Wolf-Ferrari's "La Vita Nuova," Dukas' "The Sorcerer's Apprentice," a group of three by Pierne, Moussorgsky and Rimsy-Korsakoff, brief and brilliant, and finally the merry marking, booming, crashing "Kremlin," of which mention has already been made.

The Bride's Boat

By Coralie Stanton and Heath Hosken

SYNOPSIS.

Kit Lenoure, receptionist in a London family hotel, accepts the offer of a post in the Grand Africa hotel, Soydoret, Kenya. Theo Sable had gone there two years before when Kit had broken her engagement to him. But Kit still wanted him more than anything in the world. She sails on the "Bride's Boat." Jess North, her cabin mate is going out to be married. Lal Crowhurst, the biggest landowner about Soydoret and a most attractive bachelor, is on the boat. He is attentive to Kit. Soydoret proves to be a paradise with many serpents and terrible powers of demoralization to weak natures. Jess is married to Noel Graham, who manages Crowhurst's coffee plantations. Kit adopts herself to her new surroundings. Theo Sable, who has taken up big game hunting, arrives in Soydoret. Kit and Theo are overjoyed to have found each other again. But there are unexplainable changes in Theo that Kit can't understand. Ariel Grieve, the widow, who, scandal has it, owns Lal Crowhurst, also has her tentacles around Theo. A dance and entertainment, to wind up the season, is given at the hotel. Next morning Ariel Grieve is found dead from an overdose of a sleeping drug. She left a letter obviously written to a man she was in love with and who had let her down. Every one suspects Crowhurst. Theo is accused of cheating in a card game. He declares his innocence, but Kit alone believes him. He leaves next day on a hunting trip. Jess Graham calls on Crowhurst, and tells him that she overheard Ariel Grieve threaten to kill herself when Theo Sable told her of his engagement to Kit. Jess gains a promotion for her husband by promising not to reveal what she has heard.

INSTALLMENT XXXIX.

A GOOD GAME.

"But, Mr. Crowhurst," Jess said, "I have got a conscience! And why should you bear the blame?"

"My shoulders are broad enough," he said, and now his voice was cool and amused. It was only a question of money, and enough money. And that meant nothing at all. "After all, I daresay you are making a mountain out of a mole hill. And——" he stared straight into her eyes, and his voice was glacial again—"you must remember that Mrs. Grieve is no longer here to say that she was a very good friend of mine. I intend that she shall rest in peace."

"Mr. Crowhurst, how wonderfully good and splendid and generous you are!"

"I am particularly glad you came this afternoon," he said, ignoring her words, and smiling as if nothing but a trifling chit-chat had passed between them. "I wanted to tell you how much I think of Noel. He is doing splendidly, and I feel he is not getting so much out of his work as he ought to. As I shan't be here much for a time, I'm going to hand over a lot more responsibility to him. In fact, I've come to the conclusion he's just the man I want to manage the whole place here. Will you ask him to come over and see me as soon as he gets back?"

Kit was startled when she saw two men's figures cantering in the distance.

Crowhurst did not proceed with his preparations for leaving Moon Fields to go to his estate at Njeri. He had intended traveling by the early morning train, as it was risky to attempt the whole journey by car, the rains being exceptionally heavy this year.

He came to the conclusion that he would rather stay and keep a watch over Jess Graham. He felt safe enough about her. They understood each other. She knew well enough that his sole consideration was Kit Lenoure; to keep the knowledge from her that Ariel Grieve had died for love of Theo Sable. Jess knew that her husband's advancement, her own comfort, the continuance of the hundred and one favors from him that made her life easy, depended on her holding her tongue. She had everything to lose and nothing to gain by speaking.

Still, he felt nervous just after the first shock. He would stay. His presence would emphasize their bargain. She was mischievous, as well as greedy and selfish, he knew. It was better to keep an eye on her. After all, with a woman, one could never be quite sure. Only with one woman in a million. What a perfectly unmoral little animal she must be, keeping this knowledge to herself all this time! Even worse than he had thought her. And clever—yes, very clever, in her way.

Well, as it happened his interests marched with hers for the time being. He was really very pleased with Noel Graham. The young man was that rare bird, an enthusiast in his work. It was his only hobby. That and adoration of his wife made up his world. And, in spite of an unpromising looking physique, he seemed quite tough. And he had the right way with the natives. It would be quite a good move to have a young general manager on the estate. Crowhurst's most trusted man, who had died last week, had been elderly and an enemy of modern methods.

Well, he was going to try it, anyhow. Noel Graham would have a much bigger salary and Jess a much larger house, with some official servants and a fine official car; not to mention a fat entertaining allowance for distinguished visitors who came to inspect the estate when the proprietor was away. And if Graham failed to make good, then he must find some other way of bribing her—or, ought he to call it payment?

So he settled it in his mind. And Jess, who, on the boat, had boasted that her future husband was the manager of an enormous estate, without having the slightest idea who employed him, was on her way to justifying her ambitious assertion.

Kit found the time drag, as they grew less and less busy at the Grand Africa. She made as much work for herself as she could, persuading the housekeeper to let her undertake a general refurbishing of the vacant bedrooms, putting up gay Japanese wall papers with her own hands, making curtains to tone in, and painting and polishing vigorously. The result was such that Capt. Blair said they would certainly have to raise the prices.

Of course, there were always a few visitors coming and going, and the settlers who were building their bungalows, and one or two residents much as one finds in every hotel in the world, and no doubt would at the north pole, if a hotel were built there. But, as a matter of fact, the other, smaller hotel, was fuller, as the commercial travelers and clerks and Indian and Chinese merchants stayed there.

The Bishop of Umtala and his family had gone, after causing great excitement by being marooned in the "suk" a swampy region of close growing, dank vegetation to the northwest, towards Uganda. They had mistaken their tracks, coming back from a visit to outlying villages and missions, and had got stuck. They were in considerable danger, as the rain was incessant and torrential, and it took a large rescue party to extricate them. Kit was sorry when they left. She had made another family of friends.

She was still able to ride, however, as the main roads and some of the tracks were still passable. She enjoyed that more than anything else. Whenever the horses were not engaged she exercised them regularly, and Capt. Blair sent the Indian syce as her escort. As much as she could she avoided the gayeties of the club and the bungalows. There was a coldness between her and most of the inhabitants. They thought her unreasonable and vindictive in her manner because of their attitude towards Theo Sable. Some said that she behaved most unsuitably for a girl in her position. The menfolk were uniformly kind and sympathetic, but, of course, the women had the last word in all social matters.

"Have you any news of Sable, Miss Lenoure?" Crowhurst asked Kit.

She was standing beside him, where she had never expected to be again, by the screened windows of the big room at Moon Fields, with the blazing fire sending out its delicious scent, mingling with the perfume of flowers and of the stinging earth fragrance that came from outside.

She had met him unexpectedly while out riding. The syce conducted her to a point from which there was a particularly fine view of Mount Elgon in its glistening fresh snows. The afternoon was brilliant; the air unbelievably clear; the colors of the flowers and creepers and trees glowed with a gorgeousness that went to the head like wine.

Kit did not know that she was on the Moon Fields estate, and was startled when she saw two men's figures cantering on a grassy upland in the distance. They saw her and came and joined her. Crowhurst was with his secretary.

Shortly afterwards, as he was pointing out the various landmarks, one of those sudden transformation scenes took place. Clouds gathered from nowhere and it began to rain. He insisted on Kit riding back to Moon Fields, a matter of a quarter of an hour.

Youngster Needs Chairs and Tables of Suitable Size

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

"It's a man's world," women have a way of saying. According to the advertisers it isn't. They're always telling us that women have the spending of some high proportion of the money men make—I've forgotten the percentage. So the statement that this is a man's world, is open to discussion.

But that it is an adult's world no one can deny. Look about you. Certainly as far as size and convenience go it is an adult's world.

This has been the point of the last two daily articles. After writing them I happened to come across something I clipped from the White House conference bulletin. If you think perhaps I am overstating things when I speak of the need of scaling the house down to the child, you may be more convinced if I quote for you. A year ago at the White House conference on child health and protection there was a division studying the home and the child. In its report this statement was made:

"The child—beloved as he is—is often an alien in his home when it comes to any consideration of his special needs in the furnishings and equipment of the home. He belongs nowhere. He must accommodate himself to an adult environment—chairs and tables are too big and too high for him; there is no suitable space for his books and his toys. He moves in a midst world with nothing proportioned to his needs. Often this results in retarding his physical, mental and social development."

So, here is one more way made clear to us in which we can give our children a square deal.

Bright Sayings of the Children

Kenneth, age 4, was much excited upon seeing Santa Claus on a street corner down town, and exclaimed to his mother, "Take me to him, I want to see his claws."

Girl, Disappointed with Boy Friends, Awaits Perfection

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Ruth is 22. Never won a beauty contest prize; not hard on the eye, either.

"Why," cries she, "why is it that I can't meet a fellow who comes up to my expectations? By this I mean one who has a more serious thought in mind than petting, drinking, and parking on the boulevard until 12 p. m.?"

To present Ruth further as she presents herself: She's not an old crab. She's not a high brow. She's not hard to get on with. And what she'd like is a boy friend who's enjoy her company, talk about some of the interesting things that happen in the world, go to shows and have a nice, jolly good time with her. She's employed in an office during the day. At night she attends evening school. But time is fleeting—and the evenings could stand a little more fun in them. And would have them, too, if only Mr. Up To Expectations would hurry along.

We'll have to look into the "expectations" before we can make any progress for Ruth. As a matter of fact, that's exactly where I find the cause and the cure for so many of these lonely evening girls. The girls are all right—but their expectations are just a little lopsided. With so many girls there is a straight line of demarcation drawn where boys are judged. The boy is either on this side or that. He's too backward or he's too bold.

The idea that some of them possess a mixture of emotions and behaviorisms concocted from both sides of the fence is forgotten. The idea doesn't occur that one girl can take hold of the raw material known as male and make a petting, drinking, parking fool out of him, while another girl can take the same raw material and make him pretty nearly respond to her expectations. The girl's part in the game is the thing that is so frequently overlooked.

You girls sit austerely in the judge's box and view without leniency this sex you can't get along without. You have a pattern cut out for boys, even to the conversational seams, and if it doesn't fit your fancy it's out with the whole bunch of men. Suppose you turn the pattern the other way and see if a tuck in your self-centeredness wouldn't help. If a reef in your slightly superior mentality couldn't bear taking in. If you compromised with the material [by which I mean the men, of course] you couldn't get more fun out of life.

EMBARRASSING MOMENTS

A Track Contretemps.

Imagine a track meet, the event the high jump. I sail down the runway [like liquid motion], a quick step, and jump—and crash down I come on top of the crossbar breaking it, and carrying it along with me on this unexpected trip. Greetings from the ground and giggling glee from the spectators both hit me at the same moment. It is tough to want a cigaret and to be in training at the time.

Blonds Are Growing Lovelier Every Day and Every Evening

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

It seems to me, as I look the crowds over, that our better looking blonds are getting beautifuller every day. Or, shall I say—every evening? I've been looking them over at the night haunts of late. And, my goodness, but they are lovely!

Hop out between the acts at a first night, or a second or third, and it's one blond stunner after another. The brunettes, the browns, and the reds are there, too. But it is of blonds I write, just now, and the perfection to which hair itself and coiffures have risen. It shouldn't be, but it's more apt to be news when blond hair has that satiny sheen over which poetic lines have been penned. Brunettes have an easier way, it seems to me, of raising a hair luster and sustaining it. Or, so it used to be. No longer, however. There is about our latest blond showings a vitality that warms the eye.

I'm wondering if the more formal attitude of the waving iron hasn't something to do with it. You see very, very few heads at smart evening places wearing the look of a recent marcelling operation. The waves are so wide set, the indentations so gentle that the impression is rather of no waves.

Tidy little curls may decorate the back row of hair—but there's none of the manufactured look about them. More often you see just a thin, flat little pencil roll, a rolled hem, so to speak, for the back hair rim.

Also, I note already the vogue for platinumed locks is more than slightly on the wane. That platinum dip was too expensive to be kept up, for one thing, and it was brutally frank in its revelations if its extravagance wasn't pampered. Too, when it began to be duplicated in cheaper lines, it lost.

The blonds that I saw decorating the scenery may have had their rinses, but they are not sizzling in effect. More often they're tone softening. And then, the luster of hair adds to the soft quality. One of the great difficulties with blond hair, heretofore, has been to overcome that dried out look, a bleached out look of the locks. But the girls have learned the trick now of combining a soft, growing blondness with a dash of lustrous health.

DORIS BLAKE ANSWERS

Wants His Pin Back.

"Dear Miss Blake: Would it be right for my friend to write to his former girl and ask for his frat pin?

"SILVIA."

The girl should return the pin. If she doesn't, then she should be asked.

He's Not Serious.

"Dear Miss Blake: The boy I love left me twice. He says he loves me. Shall I forget him? N. C. P."

Maybe he does love you, but isn't ready to be serious.

Miss Bosworth to Wed Son of Josiah Stamp

IT isn't often that we have an opportunity to announce such an interesting engagement—that is interesting to the general public for of course every engagement is of vital interest to those concerned—as that we are announcing this morning, for the bride-to-be is a popular Chicago girl and her fiancé is a member of an illustrious English family.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Bosworth of Evanston are making public the engagement of their daughter, Frances, to Dr. Trevor Charles Stamp, son of Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp of Tantallon, Park Hill road, Shortlands, Kent. The announcement is being made in the London papers tomorrow, so Lady Stamp cabled Mrs. Bosworth yesterday. Dr. Stamp is a graduate of Gonville and Caius college, Cambridge, and is a member of the Royal College of Surgeons of England and of the Royal College of Physicians of London. His father is one of England's best known economists and served on both the Dawes and the Young plan committees.

Miss Bosworth is a graduate of Mount Vernon seminary in Washington, D. C., and made her debut in 1927, after which she traveled extensively in Europe and other parts of the world. Her sister, Della, was married to an Englishman in September of last year, Gordon Lawrence Padley of London, and it was while Miss Bosworth was going abroad to visit her sister last spring that she met Dr. Stamp. The marriage is planned for April and Sir Josiah and Lady Stamp will accompany their son to Chicago for the event.

Makes Debut at Casino Club

Miss Edith Behr, one of the most popular of the season's debutantes, was formally presented to society last night at a dinner dance given by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Leslie Behr, at the Casino. The debutante, in a white and gold metal cloth gown and orchid corsage, received the 200 young guests with her mother, who was in white eggshell crêpe studded with rhinestones. The ballroom, decorated with Christmas greens, made a lovely setting for the party.

Later in the evening another of the season's buds, Miss Marjorie Horton, daughter of Mrs. Samuel P. Rinaker, was introduced at a ball given by Mr. and Mrs. Rinaker at the Blackstone. The Blackstone ballroom, which has been a different disguise every night during the holiday season, was transformed into a street in Montmartre for the Horton party. The debutante wore a white crêpe gown with a blue crêpe jacket and orchid corsage. Mrs. Rinaker wore a black velvet dress and poinsettia colored slippers.

So tonight's calendar of festivities for the debutantes are the dinner and dance party Mr. and Mrs. Alfred T. Carton will give for Miss Margaret Chapman and Miss Anne Byron Smith and the ball that Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Graf will give at the Blackstone for Miss Barbara Graf. The Cartons' dinner will be at the Casino. Miss Graf made her debut at a tea at the Women's Athletic club early in the season.

Among the 500 guests at the ball will be the Grafs' house guests, Miss Rosalie Wells of St. Louis, Frederick C. Norman of New York, and Albert T. Johnson of Columbus, O.

A debutante luncheon will be given today by Mrs. Edward T. Jeffery for her granddaughter, Miss Virginia Boering, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Doering Jr. Miss Doering started out to make a formal debut this winter on account of going to college, but she is taking part in all the festivities for the "debs" during these busy holidays.

Miss Mary Pomeroy Green of 1149 North La Salle street will be at home from 2 until 9 o'clock on New Year's day to her friends and those of her sister and nephew, Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Trost of Ojai, Cal., who are visiting her.

A number of Chicagoans have received invitations from Gov. and Mrs. Emmerson to the New Year's day reception to be held at the executive mansion in Springfield.

Cornellians of Chicago and the suburbs will meet tomorrow at the University club for the annual fathers and sons luncheon of the Cornell University Club of Chicago. Ross W. McElvaney and Stewart A. Cushman have planned a program of entertainment the feature of which will be "Chick" Sale, a mainstay of the Cornell Musical and Savage club several years ago, whose repertoire of songs, stories and mimicry is a Cornell byword.

The Lake Forest Academy's "get together" luncheon is today instead of yesterday, as announced in yesterday's paper. It is to be held at the Fellowship League club.

Edward W. Browning Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Browning of 1309 Astor street, is spending his Christmas vacation from Dartmouth in Boston as the guest of Judge and Mrs. Samuel W. Greene.

Dramatic League Gives Breakfast for Mr. Channing Pollock.

The Casino could not have accommodated another person at the breakfast given yesterday by the Dramatic league for Channing Pollock and we understand that a number of persons wishing to attend could not secure reservations so it is perfectly safe to say that the affair was a huge success in every way. After the delicious breakfast had been consumed [we know so many women yesterday rejoiced upon how nice it was to have a 12 o'clock breakfast instead of a late luncheon in these busy days] Mrs. Clarence Hough, chairman of the various committees, introduced Mr. Pollock, who gave a very interesting talk on the future of the theater.

Mr. Pollock interspersed his very severe condemnation of the present theatrical condition of the drama and his optimistic and idealistic prediction of what the drama will be tomorrow, with numerous humorous stories and anecdotes which kept his audience in a good humor although once he did wax rather slightingly of drama leagues in general and of their taste in art, which probably did not "set too well" with the members of the Chicago Dramatic league.

Also at the speaker's table were Mrs. Rockefeller McCormick, Mrs. John Elliott Jenkins [Alexandra Carlisle], Miss Elisabth Risdon, Mme. Eugenie Leontovitch, Mrs. Hough and some of the theatrical men staying in town now.

Mrs. Marvin E. Miner Jr., president of the league, was unable to be present owing to illness. Among those at the party were Mrs. Robert E. Peacock, Mrs. David S. Cook, Mrs. Benjamin F. Affleck, Mrs. Paul Shorey, Mrs. Frank J. Loesch, Mrs. Townsend McKeever, Mrs. Bruce MacLeish, Mrs. Howard L. Willett and her daughter, Jane, who confessed to having danced at Miss Louise Clarke's ball at the Blackstone until 6 a. m. but who looked as fresh as a daisy nevertheless, Mrs. George Matthews, Mrs. Charles J. Canfield, Mrs. Frederick T. Hoyt, Miss Isabel Gillespie, Mrs. Potter L. Smith, Mrs. Orville Thompson, Mrs. Walter Peacock, Mrs. Edmund Andrews, Mrs. Franklin Miller, Mrs. William E. Wright and Mrs. Vernon B. Herbst.

Mrs. Ralph Greenlee of Highland Park had a party of 100 young people at the Drake supper dance last night for her daughter, Marion, who is home from Sarah Lawrence college, and her son Ralph. Miss Mary Kay Downs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence A. Downs, was hostess to a group of friends at the same affair.

Mr. Piccaver is leaving the company on Jan. 1, because he will not accept a reduction in salary.

World Striving to Read Future, Educator Says

BY KATHERINE KELLEY.

"If we must influence children, let it be toward open-mindedness and tolerance. I think we can work out a new education that one's own good also is the world's and the world's good is one's own."

Carleton Washburne, superintendent of the Winnetka public schools, concluded his remarks yesterday with that statement. He spoke on education abroad before the City Club of Chicago. Mr. Washburne spent much of the last year in foreign countries for the Julius Rosenwald foundation.

"We can develop the individual to fit into society as it exists and give him the stimulus and freedom to think out new ways," Mr. Washburne said.

Mr. Washburne said the world war and the Russian revolution as well as the economic depression have increased the desire to see if education can be used to bring about a better society.

He wanted to see what was planned by foreign educators.

"We didn't ask them 'What are you doing?' but 'What are you going to do in education?'" Mr. Washburne continued. We asked if they wanted to educate their children with the purpose of perpetuating the present order, or if they wished to create a new society, or if they wished to develop each individual so he could work out a better society.

"In Japan they wished to perfect the existing social order. In Russia, they said: 'We certainly do not want to perfect the present order. Heaven forbid. We want a society in which no man will be able to exploit a human being for his personal profit.' The third answer came in England. They held the tacit belief that when they got through educating, there would be the desire to go on developing the present order.

"In India, Gandhi told me: 'The main purpose of education is the development of the individual. It seems to me citizenship is more dependent on character than on literacy.'

"In Germany, Einstein told me: 'I don't care what form society takes. I'm interested in the development of the individual. If given certain ideals, the form of society is of secondary importance.'

"In China there was a disposition for a compromise. I was told they did not want the existing order, but in general could see the direction in which they wished to develop, along one of the lines of people's nationalism, people's sovereignty, or people's welfare."

Many of the leaders believed, Mr. Washburne said, that education should teach that the state comes before the dictates of one's own conscience. Japan was almost unanimous in this, chiefly because, he asserted, there is in that country no such thing as a conscience separate from the state. In Russia he said the question of intuitive conscience was answered with: "Where does one get the question of right and wrong?" And in China, Arabia, Poland, leaders said "we have been too individualistic."

"But Gandhi," Mr. Washburne resumed, "said one's inmost conscience comes first. In England many were favorable to individual conscience. And when I asked these leaders if they wanted to develop a spirit of internationalism to such a point that if conflict comes between one's own country and the world, they would put the world first, the question was as meaningless as in such countries as China, Russia and Arabia.

"But in France, where I arrived with prejudices, I found that the intellectuals' and teachers' views are international rather than chauvinistic.

"In Germany Einstein said, 'Patriotism is a beautful name for an ugly thing' and preferred to think in terms of humanity. Gandhi said the well being of people must come first. It was strange that in nearly all my questions Gandhi and Einstein, so different in background, should agree.

"I asked if history should be taught objectively as science or if certain ideals should be inculcated.

"German teachers declared: 'You can't teach objectively.' Russia didn't think there was any such thing as objectivity, and reminded me that publishers in the United States issued different textbooks for the north and the south. But a labor leader suggested a solution, that had been voiced only by two others, that history should not be national history but racial, with the discussion of the really important developments.

"As for discussions in schools, in Japan they said children came to school to learn, not to talk, and in Germany, that the teacher is a public servant. But Einstein believed that in school children should be allowed to go as far as they could in discussion. 'If they knew what they were talking about.' This also was characteristic of England."

College Students Do More Serious Reading, College Librarian Says

College students are showing an increasing interest in reading, and in reading books on subjects that have previously been said as shunned by them. That is the belief of Samuel W. McAllister, associate librarian at the University of Michigan. He addressed a session of the American Library association convention at the Drake hotel yesterday.

"Biography seems to be kept very busy even including such titles as 'Royalty and Social Leaders,' which falls in a class that has been supposed to be avoided by all men college students," he said. "Men students also favored 'Pauline, Favorite Sister of Napoleon.' Other popular works were 'The Poor Man's Court of Justice' and 'Your Job and Your Pay.'"

Mrs. E. D. Hubbard, Muriel McCormick, to Reopen Theater

Palm Beach, Fla., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Mrs. Elisha Dyer Hubbard, the former Muriel McCormick, will guide the destinies of the Palm Beach playhouse throughout its second season of 12 plays at the height of the Palm Beach colony's winter season. She founded the theater and supervised its construction and 11 week inaugural season last year. She returned here yesterday to resume preparations for the Jan. 12 opening.

"I do not expect to shoulder as many responsibilities as I did last year," she said today, "but a corps of trained co-workers will do their utmost to make this season more satisfactory and more pleasing than was last year's highly successful experience."

Mrs. Hubbard has not decided whether she will take part in any of the plays this season.

Performances will be given five times a week.

Irish Crochet Lace Is Back in Vogue Again

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—Irish crochet lace, long banished to pillow slips and baby covers, was last season returned to fashion by the Paris dressmakers. They, however, used this exquisite but sturdy lace with a certain timidity, employing it chiefly for blouses and occasional touches on dark silk frocks. This season—the midseason which forecasts spring—sees the bolder employment of Irish crochet. It is used to make whole frocks for informal evening.

The dress in our sketch today is made of this lace, which by some process unknown to me is yellowed so that it looks like antique lace. The effect is altogether ravishing, particularly since the foundation slip of the dress is pale yellow satin.

The skirt of the pictured model, which is from Lucile Paray, is generously bedecked with narrow gathered ruffles, a trimming Paris likes very much for evening dresses this season. There is a panel of the lace extending from the fitted hip yoke to the hem, and at the sides flanking this panel and around the back the lace skirt is filled in with ruffles. There are seven ruffles at the bottom of the skirt and two below the hip yoke, which rise in back to suggest the bustle.

The bodice has a rather high V shaped neck, bordered by a band that descends in front to the waistline. The bodice is shirred on to this descending band at the sides.

Waukegan Bank Debtors Take Witness Stand.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.

Hard luck tales were spun from the witness stand in Judge Edward Shurtleff's court at Woodstock yesterday as State's Attorney A. V. Smith sought to prove that the Waukegan State bank was insolvent in the fall of 1930.

State Auditor Oscar Nelson is on trial, charged with misfeasance, on the ground that he knew of the insolvency of the bank and failed to protect the depositors by ordering the institution closed at that time, instead of allowing its assets to be dissipated during the succeeding nine months before he did close the bank.

A dozen witnesses called by the state's attorney told of owing the bank money, and of being unable to pay. They are the first of 200 similar witnesses to be called by Col. Smith, he announced, and the state's attorney asserted the witnesses would show that the bank was insolvent at the time alleged.

Must Give Witnesses' Assets.

The scope of the proof to be submitted assumed a monumental task after a ruling yesterday by Judge Shurtleff that it would not be sufficient for the state merely to have the witnesses state how much they owed and that they were unable to pay. The judge held that the state must prove the facts by ascertaining the witnesses' assets and liabilities.

The judge has also held that the state, in order to prove Mr. Nelson guilty of misfeasance, must show first that the bank was insolvent, then that the auditor knew of the insolvency, and finally that he acted willfully and corruptly in failing to take steps to improve the bank's condition or to close the institution and liquidate its assets.

"Hard Luck" Witnesses.

The "hard luck" witnesses examined yesterday, with one exception, said they had no ready funds with which to pay their debts to the bank. But on cross-examination by Mr. Nelson's counsel, David R. Joslyn and R. K. Welsh, they all stated they had assets of some nature, which were "frozen" because of the economic depression, and that they all expected and intended to pay their loans when conditions were better.

The one exception was John Lindberg, Waukegan carpenter contractor, who under examination by Assistant State's Attorney George McGaughey testified that he owed the bank $1,350 in October, 1930. But under cross examination Mr. Welsh brought out that Lindberg had paid his debt in full to the bank's receiver. Later Col. Smith said that he had not known the witness had paid the debt, due to an error by an accountant on the state's staff.

Oscar Soderquist, Waukegan real estate man, admitted owing the bank $3,750 and that he had no money to pay the debt. On cross-examination it was shown he owned 640 acres of summer resort land near Hayward, Wis., 40 acres of land on Mobile bay, Ala., and a property in downtown Waukegan.

Opposing Views on Testimony.

The state contends this testimony goes toward proving impairment of the bank's condition, while the defense holds financial paper such as Soderquist's notes to be good.

One witness, A. H. Frank, a Waukegan rooming house keeper, testified he owed $800 to the bank. His income during the last year has been $30 a month, and when Col. Smith asked the witness what he did with the money, Frank replied: "Mostly I et it."

Two additional witnesses, who were bookkeepers in the bank, identified various records. The witnesses were Richard Sherer and Ralph Sackman.

Sherer identified entries relating to a $500,000 transaction which Col. Smith in his opening statement charged was "fictitious and fraudulent." The witness said he had been instructed to make the entries by Norman O. Geyer, the Chicago banker who assumed the presidency of the Waukegan State bank, and who is under indictment with Mr. Nelson, George Woodruff and others in another case charging conspiracy.

Story of Transaction.

Sherer did not describe the transaction, nor was it described in other testimony yesterday, but it was learned that the Waukegan bank had received a credit of $500,000 from the National Bank of the Republic of Chicago, and had posted collateral to secure the credit. On the books of the Waukegan bank the transaction was recorded as a deposit.

However, attorneys for Mr. Nelson pointed out that immediately upon his having learned of the transaction the auditor directed the bank to correct its books and list the item as a loan or to regain possession of all the securities posted as collateral.

The Waukegan bank immediately complied with Mr. Nelson's demand and listed the item as a loan.

STUDENT, HOME FOR HOLIDAYS, IS KILLED BY AUTO

Sister Hurt When Hit Crossing Drive.

Bernie Friedland, 18 years old, 218 North Central avenue, was killed and his 16 year old sister, Evelyn, was seriously injured last night when they were struck at 51st street and the outer drive by an automobile driven by Frank M. Hatch, 1241 East 70th street. Friedland, a student at the University of Illinois, was home for the holidays. The sister attends Austin High school.

The brother and sister had walked down to look at the lake and had just stepped onto the drive when they were struck. The girl was taken to the Illinois Central hospital.

County Toll Mounts.

Friedland's death and that of four others yesterday raised the Cook county toll for the year thus far to 1,287. The victims.

Julius Brunhild, 73 years old, 2538 Bosworth avenue. Died in the Illinois Masonic hospital of injuries suffered on Dec. 17, when he was struck at Belmont and Greenview avenues by a cab driven by Francis Murphy, 2463 Ainslie street.

Amante Spizzirre, 38 years old, of St. Louis. Died in the Frances Willard hospital of injuries suffered on Dec. 24 when a car in which he was riding was struck by a Baltimore and Ohio train at Central avenue.

Barney Voskuhl, 65 years old, 1637 Hollywood avenue. Died in the Edgewater hospital of injuries suffered last night when he was struck at Foster and Ravenswood avenue by an automobile driven by Glen Tero, 5636 North Artesian avenue.

Unidentified man, about 65 years old. Died in the Keystone hospital soon after he was struck last night at Cicero and Dickens avenue by a car driven by Arthur Matson, 4509 North Albany avenue.

Farmer Is Killed.

Herman Wille, 45 years old, a farmer of near Ridgefield, in McHenry county, died in the Sherman hospital at Elgin yesterday from injuries received earlier in the day when he was crushed as a motor truck he was driving skidded off the highway and crashed into a tree near Ridgefield.

Mrs. Martha Childress, 76 years old, 2223 South Ridgeland avenue, Oak Park avenue, was seriously injured in an auto collision in Milwaukee. She was riding in an auto driven by her son-in-law, George Wittey, with whom she lived. Three others in the car were less seriously injured.

COTTON OFFICIAL WANTS U. S. KEPT OUT OF BUSINESS

New Orleans, La., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—An attack on politics on the farm board and on the government in business was made before the convention of the American Association for the Advancement of Science here today by S. Locke Brough, official representative of the New Orleans Cotton exchange.

"The government should not interfere with the activities of the cotton exchange, replacing them with bureaus governmentally financed," he said. "That destroys initiative. The supreme requisite to the recovery of cotton is a free market and one that is unhampered by political artificialities.

"It is extraordinary to me that an institution brought into being and developed in service because of economic necessity should be made the butt of so much political demagogy.

"Help us, if you please, by the enunciation of principles; prohibit certain things if they are wrong, and if we are dishonest then eliminate us by extinction; put us, in other words, where we belong, but do not try to eliminate us by indirection and, insidiously, by this law, that law or the other law, restricting our activities, replacing them with bureaus governmentally financed, because, when you do that beyond a certain point you destroy initiative, suppress the individual, and bring about a lowering of standards of Americanism that cannot but be harmful to the country at large."

FEAR SLUMP MAY CLOSE GARRETT BIBLE INSTITUTE

Trustees Warn of Need of Financial Relief.

The depression, particularly the slump in real estate values and rents, may force the closing of Garrett Biblical institute, Chicago's oldest theological school and the principal training center for the Methodist Episcopal ministry in the middle west.

Trustees of the institute met yesterday and issued a warning to alumni and friends of the institution that unless some plan for financial relief is put into effect, the school may be forced to close its doors, opened in 1855. Dr. Frederick C. Eiselen, president of the institute, said that for educational purposes alone the school needs $11,000 a month in excess of its present income, or approximately $90,000 by Aug. 1, the end of the school term.

Part of Bonds Defaulted.

The school is on the Evanston campus of Northwestern university, but the most of its endowment consists of properties in downtown Chicago, most of them on Wacker drive. Those properties are covered by a $2,500,000 mortgage bond issue floated in 1925, and payment of interest and a portion of the principal on these bonds was defaulted on Dec. 1.

The depression caused a serious reduction in the income from this endowment property, Dr. Eiselen said last night. The trustees recently forfeited a 99 year lease on one plot, at the southeast corner of Wells street and Wacker drive, on which promoters of the La Salle club agreed a few years ago to pay an annual rental of $47,500.

The projected skyscraper club building was never built, and the only income from this and several other properties nearby is as open air parking lots. Rents from the Occidental building, at Washington street and Wacker drive, another institute property, have dropped from $120,000 to $60,000 a year, Dr. Eiselen said.

The Wacker drive properties are largely part of the original endowment of the school, given in 1865 by Mrs. Eliza Garrett, widow of one of Chicago's early mayors. Included in the gift was the plot at Lake street and Wacker drive, then the site of the Wigwam, in which Abraham Lincoln was nominated for President in 1860.

Garrett institute has approximately 450 students. Although the school is a Methodist Episcopal institution, it draws its students from some 25 denominations. It is the third largest Protestant theological seminary in the country, being exceeded in attendance only by the Union Theological seminary in New York and the divinity school of the University of Chicago.

In recent years it has been found necessary to limit enrollment, since tuition fees cover only a small part of the expenses. Other causes of the present financial stringency go back a number of years, Dr. Eiselen said. Among them he named the necessity of moving the campus and constructing new buildings in 1915, and the failure of a drive by Methodist churches in 1923 to raise $225,000 for completion of the institute's administration building, which added $20,000 in interest charges to the annual expenses.

Safety Pin Is Removed from Windpipe of Child

An open safety pin became lodged in the windpipe of Hazel Bradford, 7 years old, 3253 Garfield boulevard, last Saturday. Her condition was discovered by her parents yesterday when she experienced difficulty in breathing. Dr. Robert W. Lennon of the county hospital staff removed the pin and the child was reported as none the worse for her experience.

IS IT PEACE, OR IS IT WAR? BRITAIN ASKED BY GANDHI

India Leader Seeks Talk with Viceroy.

BOMBAY, India, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Mahatma Gandhi telegraphed Viceroy Lord Willingdon today asking whether the recent "anti-terrorist" ordinances extending the powers of the governments in Bengal, the United Provinces and the North-West Frontier province mean an end to peaceful relations between the government and the Congress party. The ordinances permit magistrates to impose death sentences upon persons convicted of subversive acts.

He asked also whether he might see the viceroy to get his help and advice in reaching a peaceful understanding.

It was expected that the viceroy would receive him because a renewal of the boycott against British goods would paralyze the country and ruin business.

Reports to Congress Party.

The mahatma sat in a circle of members of the Congress party working committee this afternoon reporting on the round table conference and doing his utmost to find a formula for peace in this tense political atmosphere.

Vallabhai Patel, president of the Indian nationalists, favors a policy of peace until at least the national congress meets at Calcutta in March to decide the final issue. His brother, Vithalbhai, however, ridiculed Gandhi's program and asserted:

"You can't change the heart of the enemy by suffering. The congress must either win freedom or retreat from the field. As for me, I shall fight the British government until I die."

PESHAWAR, India, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Anti-British "Red Shirt" tribesmen continued to offer themselves for arrest today and ninety-two were taken into custody in Peshawar. Thirty-two volunteers were arrested at Bannu and some at Kohat, bringing the total arrested in the North-West Frontier province to 1,128. Of these, 259 have been convicted and 37 released after an apology.

Inhabitants of the village of Boka have decided to observe a 10 days' fast to absolve themselves from a vow to remain true to the "Red Shirts." In Pashawar, large crowds collected today to offer themselves for arrest, but dispersed when they heard that troops had been called out.

Bomb Explodes in Chilean Cathedral as 50 Worship

SANTIAGO, Chile, Dec. 29.—(AP)—A small bomb exploded in the cathedral in the center of downtown Santiago today. Fifty persons attending a service there escaped injury and the damage was slight. The bombing was attributed to a crank and was thought to have no connection with the recent communist agitation.

JUDGE ASSAILS LARGE DEBTORS OF CLOSED BANK

the bank, began his testimony with the statement that he was penniless.

"Victims!" bellowed the judge. He began questioning McCabe and learned that he had $40,000 in life insurance and in 1929 had listed "personal property" in a financial statement as worth $10,000. McCabe said the "personal property" was household furniture. He also admitted that he collects $150 a month from a Sheridan road property which is in the hands of the bank's receiver.

Judge Probes Rent Payments.

"What is he doing collecting rents from a property held by the receiver?" the judge inquired of the lawyers. "Why isn't he in contempt?"

"Moreover, he has collected the rent in advance," the judge was told. "He has collected the rent up to the end of April, 1932."

"I get along on $25 a week and support my wife and children on it," Keller told the judge.

"Tell me how you do it," said the judge with interest.

Keller was vague. Further questioning revealed that he is half owner of a $500,000 apartment building which has an income of $60,000 a year. He declared that this income only enabled him and his partner to "break even on expenses." He was ordered to return today with his wife.

Appears in Bain Case.

Attorney H. W. Lippincott appeared before Judge Feinberg and asked him to sign a bill of exceptions in the case of the contempt proceedings against the two sons of John Bain, south side banker, whose 12 banks failed last June. The judge refused to do so, saying that a bill of exceptions was not necessary in a direct contempt order. An appeal from his contempt order sentencing John H. and Robert A. Bain to jail for 10 days as a result of perjured testimony is now pending, and the bill of exceptions would aid in this appeal. The judge continued the entire Bain hearing until Jan. 12.

Indianapolis, Ind., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Air tight zone defense, far superior floor work and superb marksmanship, especially in the second half, enabled Loyola university of Chicago to give the Butler university's basketball team its first defeat of the season tonight, 21 to 19.

It was Loyola's seventh straight triumph and brought the Butler-Loyola series to two games each. Loyola piled away to a 9 to 5 lead at the half and then began a fierce short range field bombardment that put the Bulldogs far behind. Butler, really extended the first time this winter, began one of its fierce last quarter drives, and only the most desperate of Loyola defenses kept the game from going overtime.

Miller scored immediately after Butler broke up Loyola's opening drive. Wagner missed on Proffitt's foul and Miller missed on Withrow's. Withrow dribbled down half the floor to make a free throw. Cavanaugh made an under the basket and Chadd duplicated it.

Loyola Lengthens Lead.

Butler scored on Withrow's foul, but Chadd made it 5 to 3 for Butler with a perfect pot shot. Cavanaugh got his second field goal from far out. Chadd fouled Schuhmann as he scored under the basket. Schuhmann missed his free throw which would have tied the score.

Schuhmann scored on a free throw when Davis roughed him. Wagner made one of two free throws on Proffitt's foul to give Loyola the lead, 8 to 5. Wagner fouled Proffitt and Proffitt missed the free throw as the half ended.

Cavanaugh scored from under the basket early in the second period, and Jones duplicated to give Loyola a 12 to 8 lead. Chadd retaliated from a sharp angle. Schuhmann and Wagner then evaded every one to tip in two more. Miller scored on Butzen's foul, and Wagner missed twice on Chadd's foul.

Wagner Scores.

Wagner pivoted to score a pretty one. Parrish missed on Cavanaugh's rebound. Butzen dribbled the length of the fieldhouse to make the Loyola lead nearly double. Withrow made a long one, bringing the score to Loyola, 20 to Butler, 13.

Parrish scored under the basket and Loyola took time out twice in two minutes. Withrow worked in one. Cavanaugh scored one on Hogan's foul and Withrow scored on Butzen's foul to make it 21-19. The game ended up to race horse temperature as the crowd of 3,000 danced and moaned. Wagner buoyed Loyola until the gun popped. Hogan fainted at the game's finish, but was quickly revived.

TODAY'S PAIRINGS—SECOND ROUND.

1 P.M.—Calumet vs. Tilden.
2 P.M.—Lindblom vs. Austin.
3 P.M.—Morton vs. Lane.
4 P.M.—Bloom vs. York.
7 P.M.—Hyde Park vs. Morgan Park.
9 P.M.—Parker vs. Bowen.

The south side is the prep basketball capital of Chicagoland. That was the first conclusion which could be drawn last night at the end of two days of play in the first round of the Stagg interscholastic tournament at the new University of Chicago fieldhouse.

The second conclusion was that the brand of ball played in the schools of the City league is superior to that of the suburban and neighboring downstate schools.

Of the 32 squads which have played during the last two days 15 were entered from the City league and 17 from the suburbs and downstate. Of the 16 survivors who will go into the second round today, beginning at noon, 12 are city teams and four are from the suburbs. Downstate quintets fared badly throughout.

Eight South Side Teams Left.

Eight of the 12 city survivors are south side teams, five of them, Englewood, Hyde Park, Morgan Park, Parker and Bowen, winning their places in yesterday's play. The other south siders are Calumet, Lindblom and Tilden. Three teams from the west side, Crane, Austin and Marshall, survived the first round. Lane is the north side's remaining representative.

Two of the four surviving suburban teams, York and Morton, are from towns west of the city; Bloom is south and New Trier north.

A crowd which varied from 3,000 to 3,500 watched the tourney through the afternoon and evening yesterday. Seats for tonight's games will be in demand since four south side teams will play between 7 and 10 o'clock, with a game between the Maroon varsity and Carleton college sandwiched in at 8. Hyde Park faces Morgan Park at 7 and Parker meets Bowen at 9:15.

Teams with Best Chance.

Favorites to go into the quarter finals last night were regarded as being Crane, Calumet, Lindblom [defending champion], Morton, Bloom, Marshall, Hyde Park and Bowen, second place winner last year.

Yesterday's play was spirited throughout. Bob Gruenig, Crane center, who scored 34 points in the opening game of the meet Monday, remained the individual hero so far, however, since Bill Haarlow, Bowen's scoring ace, was held to 14 points in the final match last night.

Haarlow sank three baskets at the outset of Bowen's contest with the quintet from Community High of Normal, Ill. That was his quota for the half, at which mark the south side team led, 12 to 7. Orr, Weinberg, and Fortino ran Bowen's lead up to 24-12 at the close of the third period.

Parker Wins Thriller.

Normal rallied briefly, but Haarlow rang up four more short goals to salt away a 32 to 17 victory for Bowen and make his team a leading contender for championship honors.

Ted Armsbury's tying shot was in midair when the gun ended the Parker-St. Charles game, and Parker took advantage of its break in the overtime period to win, 27 to 25. The sensational finish provided the day's biggest thrill.

Led by Taylor, who scored 14 points

Wisconsin Names Uteritz Director of Varsity Sport

Madison, Wis., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—Irwin C. Uteritz was appointed director of intercollegiate athletics at the University of Wisconsin this afternoon by the Badger athletic council. Uteritz, who came to Wisconsin six years ago, has been coaching the Badger B eleven.

IRWIN UTERITZ.

The council named Uteritz for the position after a four hour meeting this afternoon. The recommendation will be forwarded to the faculty and board of regents, but as the athletic council is the governing sports body at Wisconsin the approval by the faculty and regents is merely a formality.

At the same time the council announced plans for the reorganization of the university athletic department, providing for the separation of intercollegiate athletics from the rest of the department.

Four Plans of Reorganization.

1. Intercollegiate athletics.
3. Required physical education for freshmen and sophomores.

The vote on Uteritz was announced as unanimous by the council, but while the latter met in secret there were rumors that for a time the council was divided among three candidates, Uteritz, Glenn Thistlethwaite, who resigned as football coach last night, and George Downer, director of publicity. Members of the council refused to say whether the others were considered.

Consider Coach Later.

The council made this statement at the conclusion of the meeting:

"This recommendation involves a recommendation to the faculty, president and the regents that the administration of intercollegiate athletics be segregated from the three other departments of the university program.

"Further recommendations respecting organization and coaching personnel will be made to the president and the regents at a later meeting of the council."

Uteritz played three years of football and baseball at Michigan, finishing his competition in 1923. Before going to Michigan Uteritz played football at Oak Park, Ill., High school under Thistlethwaite.

After leaving Michigan, Uteritz was assistant back field coach at Northwestern with Thistlethwaite as head coach. When George Little came to Wisconsin in 1925 he offered Uteritz a position as back field coach. Thus Uteritz again worked under Thistlethwaite when the latter came here in 1927 and again in 1928. For the last two years he coached the B team, going through two seasons undefeated.

Also Coached Baseball.

It was Little who brought Uteritz to Wisconsin and he now succeeds to the position left vacant by the resignation of Little made Dec. 14 and accepted by the athletic council last night.

"I think the council made a wise choice," Little said. "There's good stuff in him. I have seen him as a competitor, a coach and as an administrator and he has made good in all departments of athletics. I wish him the best of success."

Uteritz is married and has two children. He is popular with the students and alumni.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

Before the obituary of 1931 sports has been written it might be well to pass along the word that the biggest boxing show in the world from the point of attendance was THE TRIBUNE'S International Golden Glove bout with France.

No other fistic enterprise, professional or amateur, indoor or outdoor, pressed the International Golden Glove match. Nearly 15,000 more fans sat in the chill of an early spring evening to watch Chicago's amateur champions whip the fighters from France than turned out for the Schmeling-Stribling title match in Cleveland's new municipal stadium on a warm summer night.

If you need further figures to convince you that amateur boxing is a major sport in Chicago, you will be interested to know that 125,000 attended Golden Glove bouts this year. This figure is not an estimate. It is the net paid for the three sectional meets, the finals, the inter-city match with New York, and the international bouts with France. Thousands more witnessed Golden Glove meets conducted by newspapers associated with THE TRIBUNE in the promotion of the tournament.

Approximately $50,000, the net profits of the meet, was donated to charity.

All told, THE TRIBUNE'S sports promotional events attracted 258,000 persons and 14,245 participants in 1931. No newspaper has approached these numbers in sports exploitation. The figures:

	Attendance.	Contestants.
Ski meet	30,000	165
Silver Skates	40,000	4,829
Golden Gloves	125,000	820
Swimming meet	25,000	2,825
Sports Congress	18,000	5,500
Power Boat Regatta	20,000	100

It was at THE TRIBUNE'S suggestion that the Cubs played the Sox on Sept. 9 for charity. Thirty-five thousand attended and the sum of $44,000 was contributed to the Joint Emergency Relief fund.

University of Southern California, which won a place as a standout in 1931 football by its dramatic victory over Notre Dame, has a chance to make additional history Friday when it meets Tulane in the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena.

No southern eleven ever has been defeated in inter-sectional competition in the Rose Bowl. The closest a Dixie team has come to it was Alabama's 7 to 7 tie with Stanford in 1927.

Tulane enters the game with an undefeated record. Southern California has been whipped once—by St. Mary's in its opening game. But Tulane has encountered no eleven the class of Notre Dame. The Trojans established themselves as the greatest football team of the season the day they ended the three year winning streak of the Irish. Only the greatest team in the country could have beaten Notre Dame that afternoon.

If you accept comparative scores as an index to the strength of football teams, you will readily observe that it is all over but the shouting. Tulane defeated Georgia, 20 to 7, while Southern California ran up a 60 to 0 score on the same opponent. But if you tried you probably could prove by comparative scores that Millsaps was a stronger team than Northwestern.

Fred Young, Western conference basketball official, calls to our attention the double referee system that has been adopted by the Big Ten for 1932. This has eliminated the old referee and umpire plan and is expected to result in more uniform officiating and better coverage of the court.

At the tipoff the officials are No. 1, who tosses the center jump and then follows the play, and No. 2, who takes position at the opposite side center. When one team gets possession of the ball Referee No. 2 hurries along the side line to the end line in an effort to precede the play. He then will be in position to see the play as it comes toward the goal and to judge accurately out of bound plays. Meanwhile No. 1 is trailing the ball. Following recovery of the ball by the team which was on defense, the functions of the officials reverse. Referee No. 1 then goes along the side court to the end line, preceding the play, and No. 2, from his previous position on the end line follows the ball and watches the play from the rear side.

Thus the two officials have identical but alternating duties. There will be no more of the "You on the ball, me on the man" style, if the new arrangement wins approval.

VINES DEFEATS LOTT IN 3 SET CHARITY DUEL

Shields Beats Van Ryn; 5,222 Attend.

Ellsworth Vines, 20 year old Californian, last night showed George Lott and 5,222 Chicagoans why he is national men's singles tennis champion. In beating Chicago's ranking player, 3-6, 6-3, 10-8, at the Stadium, where $7,592 was paid to the Joint Emergency Relief fund, Vines cut loose with a repertoire of chop shots, overhand drives, and lazy lobs seldom seen here.

The youthful Californian, who reached the peak of his form in the national singles tournament at Forest Hills last summer, started slowly, and many in the crowd were led to believe that Vines was not going to even their personal net feud in which the Chicago Davis cup player had held a two to one advantage. But with the start of the second set Vines relentlessly batted the ball across the net with a rapid change of pace that earned him victory.

Crowd in Uproar.

In the other singles match, which opened the program, Frank Shields of New York defeated John Van Ryn of Philadelphia, a fellow member of the United States Davis cup team, 6-4, 6-4.

During the Lott-Vines match the crowd was in a constant uproar, particularly in the final set when the Chicagoan made a brilliant stand while trailing, 3-5. Six times Lott repulsed Vines' attempts for match point, piercing the devastating drives of the Pasadena boy successfully for ten minutes.

Finally Vines brought the duel to an end by drawing the Chicagoan out of position and smashing a swift chop shot into the middle of the court.

Shields played to the back court throughout his match with Van Ryn, and also baffled his stocky Philadelphia opponent with base line drives that landed in the far corners. Van Ryn, although sending smashing shots back at Shields, allowed too many of his opponent's strokes to get past his reach.

Prefer Safety of Base Line.

Shields sailed through the first games with only momentary setbacks despite the close score. In the second set, however, the victor was forced to overcome an early Van Ryn lead. Both players attempted to cover the net region only occasionally, preferring the safety of the base line.

In the final match Shields and Vines defeated Van Ryn and Lott, who last summer won the world's doubles championship at Wimbledon, 6-4, 6-4. Lott and Van Ryn, although playing well as a team, found difficulty in matching the fast pace set by the victors, who twice broke through after the score had been 4 all.

McAndless Makes 462 Billiards in 37½ Minutes

David McAndless of Chicago claims the world's record for speed in making points at 18.2 balkline. In an exhibition game yesterday he ran 462 points in 37½ minutes against H. Wagner at Musseys, 131 South Wabash avenue. McAndless, a former national junior 18.2 champion, was stopped when his cue ball was kissed out of line on a round the table shot. The best previous mark for speed was credited to Jake Schaefer, world champion, when he ran 400 in 38 minutes in a world's championship game against Eric Hagenlacher in 1925.

Grid Coaches Name Stevens Head; Debate Rabbit Punch

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—The football coaches held their annual trade union meeting and cold water klatsch today, but of course they could not undamage all the kids who were used up in the unusually tragic season just gone, so they elected a doctor for their president and decided to appoint a committee to find out how the accidents happened and recommend steps.

MAL STEVENS.

Their new president is Dr. Marvin Stevens, the head coach of Yale. He intends to ask Dr. Harvey Cushing of Boston to serve on the investigating committee and this was deemed a fortunate choice, not only because of Dr. Cushing's standing in his profession, but also because he happened to be on hand the day Cadet Dick Sheridan of West Point was hurt at Yale last fall and was one of those who tried to save the boy's life in the New Haven hospital.

Safety Is Big Topic.

Most of the prominent coaches of the country were there and the tragedies of the season were so prominent in the thought of all present that the discussion of rules dealt almost solely with the safety of the players rather than the advantage of this or that football system.

William S. Langford of the rules committee addressed the coaches in place of E. K. Hall, who has been studying the nature and causes of fatal injuries to football players this year. Mr. Langford discoursed a speech of reassurance to the coaches, finding them to be a fine body of men, which of course was a popular note to strike.

Although Mr. Langford recently denounced all mention of the rabbit punch in football as destructive criticism and denied its existence in the game, a letter was read from Mr. Po[illegible] Warner, who did not attend, blandly assuming that all experienced coaches were familiar with the rabbit punch and proposing its removal from the game.

Mr. Warner Offers Suggestion.

Mr. Warner's remarks, read by Jim Marks, the coach of Kiski Prep, urged that the defensive linemen be forbidden to use their hands on their opponents' heads. This use of the hands, he said, constituted the rabbit punch and was intended, if not to inflict immediate injury then, at an rate, to soften up the victim.

As the coaches all acknowledge that the player who has been softened, by fair means or foul, is the most susceptible to serious injury, the unpleasant inference was not lost. Mr. Warner added that the rabbit punch sometimes was taught solely for punishing purposes, but not a coach blushed at this.

Mr. Hunk Anderson of Notre Dame, attending his first meeting as a head coach, arose to question the feasibility and justice of a rule proposed by Mr. Warner which would impose a penalty of fifteen yards on any player using his hands to spank an opponent on the skull. Suppose, he suggested, a defensive lineman, utterly pure in heart, should aim a brisk shove at some eligible portion of an opponent's anatomy and then suppose the other party, by weaving and bobbing should intercept the blow with his head.

Suppose They Used Heads.

The constables would then have no alternative but to punish an innocent man and, though he did not go so far as to say so, the idea ran through the meeting that there would be some players so stout of skull and so vile of soul that they would deliberately strike their opponents on the hands with their heads, like professional plaintiffs in damage suits, who worry the honest counsel for the street car and cab companies early into their graves with dishonest claims for self-sought and exaggerated personal injuries.

In such a case, the accused could only paraphrase the old familiar testimony of the firm but gentle policeman who explained that he did not go

HEAVYWEIGHT TITLE.

That viewpoint does not imply it will not be a good contest nor possibly an interesting one, although the difference in the size and weight of the two men is marked. However, the same difference and size prevailed when Sharkey met Walker and the little "Bulldog," an outgrown middleweight once a welterweight, gave Jack such a busy session the Bostonian was called fortunate to escape with a draw.

There is one thing, at least, in favor of the bout. Walker always furnishes action. That would be his best line of attack against Schmeling because of shorter height and reach. Max, too, is a "forcer" in the ring, wanting action at all times.

Outside of Walker—whose claims rest on his Sharkey showing, an opportunity created by Jack Kearns' persistence—Sharkey is about the only heavyweight against whom Schmeling could be matched at this time. Despite his erratic ring performances Sharkey lost to Max on a foul and not by the soporific count. He is entitled to a return bout at some time, perhaps when he becomes an octogenarian.

Jack Dempsey, if he decides on a comeback, probably is Schmeling's goal because of the gate money. Dempsey never has lost his drawing power. There always was a fight when Jack was in the ring. In his losing battles against Tunney he still was the aggressor most of the time. He could fight no other way. It might be a case calling for investigation by the Anti-Cruelty society, but Dempsey and Schmeling will attract customers if they meet later in the year.

The Kickoff.

Harve: The kickoff is too good to do away with. How about a rule that no lineman on the receiving team be allowed to enter inside his own 30 yard line unless he has touched the ball? In this way linemen would meet their men before they gain momentum. Now they run in a wedge before they block and this has caused the many injuries.

Moreover, a man running behind interference is tackled viciously because he seldom leaves his interference. A man running alone may sidestep a flying tackle, so the tackler proceeds more cautiously lest his effort be escaped. Helper C. W. V.

Toronto, 5; New York Americans, 0.

Boston, Mass., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Boston Bruins and Chicago Blackhawks, who are tied for second place in the American division of the National Hockey league, battled to a 3 to 3 deadlock here tonight in an overtime contest.

The Bruins put on a great opening rally and scored twice in the first period from the sticks of Cooney Weiland and Yip Foster. The Hawks evened up in the second period, Johnny Gottselig and Tommy Cook slamming shots past Goalie Thompson.

Perk Galbraith put the Bruins back into the lead by scoring his first tally of the season in the third session, but the Bostonians were able to hold it for only six minutes. A four man rush enabled Jerry Lowery to register the tying counter on a double assist from Louis Holmes and Paul Thompson.

The forward lines skated briskly for almost four minutes in the first period but the secondaries cut down every scoring thrust just inside the blue lines. The Bruins changed lines first and as soon as Dit Clapper and Cooney Weiland gained the feel of the ice they combined on a scoring play. Clapper passed over the Chicago blue line to the speeding Weiland, who trapped the puck with his skate, kicked it over to his stick and drove hard into Chuck Gardiner's net for the opening tally.

Abel Misses Twice.

While the teams were short handed, Taffy Abel made two rushes and drove terrific shots that ended against Tiny Thompson's pads. Just before the bell sounded, Marty Barry headed a furious rush and as Yip Foster spurted past him sent a forward pass which the burly defense man converted into his first National league score for the Bruins.

Foster headed another stirring rush early in the second period, stopping Gottselig near the Boston net and bursting down the left wall, passing to Weiland as he met the Chicago defense. Weiland's blazing angle shot missed by an inch. The Bruins cut down the next few Chicago rushes at their blue line but Gottselig ended this stubborn attack by hooking the puck near his net and rushing with March and Couture, the latter scoring from the blue line.

Touhey and Barry combined on a rush to open the third period and Gardiner had to come out of his cage to make the stop.

Foster Holds Couture.

Clapper split Wentworth and Abel and took a smash at the Chicago cage, Gardiner saving. Perk Galbraith, however, came up fast and belted the disc back into the cage.

After the faceoff Couture broke clear inside the Boston blue line and Foster was sent off when he held the Chicago spare winger and prevented a certain score.

The Hawks staged a furious drive into Boston territory and pelted Goalie Thompson with several short, hard drives before Jerry Lowrey put the visitors even by tallying on a double assist from Holmes and Paul Thompson.

The Bruins had five men inside of the Chicago blue line during the first minute of the overtime. Gardiner made stop after stop, several of them sensational, and the rally ended with Gottselig hooking the puck and outskating the entire Bruin lineup down the ice. Goalie Thompson was able to take care of the Blackhawk's hurried shot.

The Hawks, when they had the puck, did not make a single scoring gesture. They were able, however, to turn back every Boston advance and the game ended in a deadlock just as Shore tested the Chicago goalie with a hard shot. Summaries:

Miami, Fla., Dec. 29.—[Special.]—O. A. Simmons' Griffin, a 5 year old chestnut gelding by John P. Grier-Coretta, easily led home a field of five today in the Duval County purse, best attraction of an all claiming program of seven races at Tropical park.

Griffin scored by a margin of three lengths over W. C. Weant's Coady, with I. B. Bradfield's Sand Fiddler third, three lengths farther back. The winner ran the mile in 1:39 4-5, over a fast track. Conditions were ideal for the first time since the meeting began on Saturday.

Griffin Breaks Slowly.

The start of the Duval, which was for 3 years olds and upward, was good. Chancellor broke on top with Griffin in second position, but Sand Fiddler quickly rushed into the lead and had a margin of a head over Chancellor after the first quarter. The field was bunched closely with Griffin, held under restraint by Jockey C. E. Allen, striding along in last position.

At the half way mark, however, Coady and Griffin had passed the others and were battling for the lead. The former had a margin of one length.

Winner Is Heavy Favorite.

At the three-quarter pole, Griffin had assumed the lead by a good length and was beginning to draw away. His margin over Coady entering the stretch was three lengths, which he maintained to the finish. The victor was an odds-on favorite and returned $4.70, $3.40, and $3.10 across the board.

Dr. Stevens Named to Head Grid Coaches

Stresses Lack of Care.

Mr. Herb McCracken read an analysis indicating that most of the fatalities of this year were attributable to improper care of injuries and careless medical supervision of the players, especially in the schools for younger boys.

Mr. Fielding Yost of Michigan was heard from now and again, but the meeting was ruined for him by the willful absence of Mr. Robert Zuppke of Illinois, which was condemned by resolution as a dirty trick and an example of low sportsmanship. Mr. Yost this year was head coach of Michigan for one consecutive week up to and including the day when Michigan beat Illinois and he naturally wished to enjoy a few reminiscences with Mr. Zuppke. The grievance committee was ordered to investigate a claim that Mr. Zuppke deliberately took the fence on Mr. Yost.

Mr. Yost's enjoyment was further impaired by a revival of the proposition, always repugnant to him, that a college football team trained on good, wholesome whisky and refreshed with liberal slugs of the same from paper cups during time out might lick a team trained on his favorite diet of berries, bran, bark, and meadow grass washed down with lake water.

"It is preposterous," Mr. Yost said. "Alcoholic stimulants are deleterious and no sane person would consider the idea."

Mr. Anderson Reminisces.

"No?" said Mr. Anderson of Notre Dame when he heard about this. "Well, I remember when I was on the varsity and we were playing the Army, they generally gave those cadets a big slug of army rum in coffee."

"And what did that do to them?" Mr. Anderson was asked.

"It made them wild," Mr. Anderson said.

Bootleggers Told to 'Take a Duck'; Most of Them Do

BY BOB BECKER.

Although thousands of mallards and pintail ducks now enjoying the hospitality of the Illinois river bottoms can find little fault with the winter accommodations, there are a few residents along the stream who abuse their privileges in playing host to the visiting waterfowl.

One of them was caught the other day trapping wild ducks. Two federal game protectors made the arrest a few miles from the small town of Saidora and not far from the Sangamon river.

According to the report on this arrest the duck trapper was apprehended just as he was taking birds from his trap. He was taken to Springfield and placed in jail until his bonds could be arranged.

One branch of the United States government may have its troubles with leaks that involve liquor, but the biological survey can tell you all about another "leak," one that annually steals thousands of ducks from the legitimate supply of waterfowl. The duck bootleggers are responsible for this leak involving migrating birds.

Tempted by a cash market which pays well for a fat mallard, the duck netters and trappers know no season. Walter C. Peacock, Chicago sportsman who has hunted the Illinois river bottoms for many years, states that one duck bootlegger in Illinois has handled as high as 18,000 wild ducks in a season and bragged about it.

However, it seems that most of the boys who have been taking birds out of season are beginning to see the light. The recent bad hunting season apparently has shown them that we haven't an inexhaustible supply of waterfowl, and that every automobile load of illegal ducks is simply cutting into their legitimate business of guiding and taking care of hunters during an open season.

How the duck bootlegging business is on the east coast this season we do not know. However, from reports on law violators around Chesapeake bay, Illinois is far from being the worst state in the duck bootlegging business. Biological survey officials admit that the eastern market hunters and trappers take a terrific toll of birds every fall.

In Illinois it is predicted that there will be less duck trapping than usual this winter. This will be due not only to strict enforcement of the law, but largely because the wild duck netters see that it doesn't pay in the long run.

and the winning basket in the overtime, Parker led through most of the game. Two long goals by Langell brought St. Charles to within a point of Parker at the half. Armsbury and Rumpf put Parker ahead, 21 to 14, but three baskets by Lee and another by Rogers put St. Charles in front,

LONDOS TO GIVE DUSEK ANOTHER LESSON TONIGHT

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

Let there be rejoicing among all students of scientific wrestling holds, for tonight Prof. James Londos, that magnetic expounder of new theories in the grand old science of grappling, is scheduled to deliver a lecture before a class composed of Rudy Dusek of Omaha and all others assembled in that hall of mat learning, the Coliseum.

Prof. Londos' thesis, according to Promoter Joe Coffey, will be the neck hold, personally discovered by the professor, and the lecture will be accompanied by a practical application thereof. The neck hold is a startling one, the merits of which Prof. Londos has not illustrated to Chicago seekers after wisdom in this fascinating field. In fact, it is so startling that Dusek objected to it on the ground that it was overstepping the borders of the science. Yesterday, however, he failed to bring Prof. Londos before the Illinois athletic commission to demonstrate the hold, as he had threatened, and that introduced yet another angle into this evening's lecture.

Mr. Dusek Also Has Ideas.

It appears that Dusek did not relish the prospect of being the guinea pig for Prof. Londos' Chicago experiment with the neck hold, and set out on a bit of research work in his own modest way. The result of his investigation he called the Omaha split, he having honored his discovery with the name of the Nebraska metropolis wherefrom he hails, and he proposes to demonstrate same to Prof. Londos tonight. This may sound presumptuous in a mere pupil, but Rudy claims that he owes Londos a bit of instruction, since he learned the neck hold and all its values from James in a lecture in Washington recently.

This will be Prof. Londos' first appearance in Chicago since he imparted a deal of wrestling knowledge to James McMillen at Soldiers' field on Labor day. His pet theory at the time was the aeroplane spin, another discovery of his with which he amazed one class after another in Chicago last winter. But the professor, ever searching for the new and unknown, retired to his laboratory this fall and emerged with the neck hold. He has applied it successfully to no less than ten pupils since that momentous discovery. He states that he has never heard of the Omaha split, and adds that Dusek is not capable of teaching him its mysteries, if any.

There are Other Classes.

Prior to the main lecture tonight, Mr. Coffey has arranged four other classes, the most interesting of which will involve Hans Kampfer, a visiting professor from Germany, and pouting George Zahrias, the weeping wonder from Colorado. McMillen will also appear to exchange theories with Tuffy Mondt, who first won his degree out in Colorado. The other classes involve Fred Grobmier, who specializes in the scissors hold, and Jack Reller of St. Louis, and Earl McCready and Sailor Jack Lewis.

The attendance at the lecture should also interest students of economics, not to mention Mr. Coffey, for Prof. Londos, in his stay here last winter, displayed some strange power over students of the science which seemed to bring them back again and again in large numbers to give ear and eye to him and his work.

CRANFIELD SETS RECORD TO WIN IN CUE TOURNEY

Arthur Cranfield, Syracuse, N. Y., champion, set a new national high run record in winning his fourth straight game in the national junior pocket billiard tournament at the Lincoln-Belmont Y. M. C. A. last night. Cranfield had an unfinished run of 36, matching the former mark of 34, in defeating Nicholas Oliva, Chicago Y. M. C. A. district champion, 75 to 35, in nine innings. This also equaled the best game mark of the tournament.

In the first night game Robert Moore of Grand Rapids, Mich., defending champion, won his third game in four starts, defeating Charles Cacciapaglia of Rockford, Ill., midwestern champion, 75 to 55, in nine innings. Moore's high run was 26, while Cacciapaglia, with a 34, broke the former record of 22 for the second time. Cacciapaglia pocketed the 35th point unscratched.

Cranfield scored his first triumph in the afternoon when he came from behind at 43 to 13 and defeated Moore in 75 to 56 in twenty innings. Both players had high runs of 17, Cranfield inserting his after the count was 41 to 54.

In the first afternoon game Cacciapaglia defeated Oliva, 75 to 56, in twenty-one innings. Cacciapaglia had a high run of 14 to Oliva's 29.

Light Heavies Resume Title Guests at Stadium Tonight

BY FRENCH LANE.

The world's light heavyweight boxing tournament which grinds on and on at the Chicago Stadium will reach its third series of bouts tonight. And as far as throwing any light on the identity of the next titleholder it is just the same wild scramble it was in the beginning.

BAXTER CALMES.

Nine in the original field of 34 have fallen by the wayside in the earlier battles. Five more will travel the beaten trail tonight; so after these battles the boys can begin slashing away at each other in the semi-finals.

There are only two first round battles left and they make up part of tonight's program. The other three scraps on the card bring together first round winners. They may also bring out some of the greatest fighting of the tournament, for in the words of the Stadium press agents it will be just a case of "when good hitters get together."

Johnson Is Favorite.

In all 46 rounds are scheduled, but Mr. Nate Lewis, who claims this tournament is the greatest knockout festival ever arranged, wagered another new watch and chain yesterday that sleep producing punches will reduce the total number of rounds nearer to 30 than the scheduled 46. It was not revealed, however, whose watch and chain he wagered.

The battle attracting the greatest attention engages two Negro boys, Larry Johnson of Chicago, and Billy Jones of Philadelphia. Either can end a combat with one punch and so much rivalry has been stirred up over their fuss one might get the impression they were fighting a championship battle. Johnson continued to rule as the 6 to 5 favorite last night although the Jones backers were showing up in such large numbers it is possible the betting may be at even money by the time they crawl through the ropes.

This, of course, is one of the second round matches. Each of the dusky warriors won impressively as he fought his way through the first round. The other second round encounters bring together Baxter Calmes and Roscoe Manning, and Bob Olin and Clyde Chastain.

Expect Good Crowd.

Manning, a colored fighter from the east, is sort of a mysterious stranger in Chicago. He has the record of the quickest knockout of the tournament, having stopped his foe in exactly 35 seconds. Calmes has piled up five straight victories lately and also is a terrific puncher. Mr. Lewis, the matchmaker, last night could almost hear the thud of the falling bodies when he talked about this battle. Chastain is up against the hard punching Bob Olin, a New Yorker who is a Golden Gloves tournament graduate.

The fans have warmed up to tonight's card, the first time they have shown much interest in the tournament since it started, and there is a prospect that some 8,000 or 10,000 spectators will be draped around the ringside.

Tonight's Card

TEN ROUND BOUTS.

Larry Johnson vs. Billy Jones.
Bob Olin vs. Clyde Chastain.

George Nichols vs. Don Petrin.

Entries for Tribune Ski Tournament Close Tonight

The Forest Preserve Ski club yesterday entered 23 boys in the second annual ski tournament, sponsored by THE TRIBUNE and the commissioners of the Northwest park district, which will be held next Sunday afternoon at Riis park, Fullerton and Mead avenues.

The entry was submitted by George E. Loula, captain of the Forest Glen branch of the Forest Preserve Ski club. Thirteen boys will compete in the class for those 17 years of age and over. The next largest entry was in the group for boys 13 and 14 years of age while one lad, Joe Pattee, will compete with those boys 12 years of age and under. Three boys are entered in the 15 and 16 year old class.

It All Depends on Snow.

Although the contestants have had no opportunity to practice, the meet will be held Sunday unless lack of snow makes postponement imperative. In that event the tournament will be scheduled Jan. 10. Announcement of postponement, if necessary, will not be made until Saturday morning.

Entries close tonight at midnight. All letters received with the postmark Dec. 30 will be accepted. The list of entries, of course, will hold over if the meet is postponed.

Frank Kalteux, Northwest park commissioner, reports that the Riis park slide is ready and arrangements have been completed with the exception, of course, that so far no one has been able to guarantee a supply of snow. Workmen will pile up any snow, so that it will be available no matter if the weather later moderates.

Entry List Over 100.

So far more than 100 boys have entered the meet. Each will be required to take off the 60 foot slide at least twice. Their performances will be rated both as to distance and to form. However, one gold medal will be given to the boy who makes the longest single jump of the afternoon, regardless of form.

The team which scores the most points will receive a trophy. Competition is keen between the Norge Ski club, the Fox Athletic club and the Forest Preserve Ski club.

This is your last chance to enter the tournament. Clip the entry blank which appears in today's TRIBUNE for the last time and mail it immediately to the Ski Editor, sports department, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

SILVER SKATES WINNER EYES OLYMPIC TEAM

BY BETTY ECKERSALL.

Lack of ice has not dimmed the skating enthusiasm of Eleanor Thiel, winner of THE TRIBUNE'S women's senior Silver Skates Derby. This potential Olympic champion is keeping in trim by road work and practice on an indoor bicycle.

Miss Thiel, who is 19 years old, is planning to enter the Olympic tryouts Jan. 17 and 18 at Oconomowoc, Wis.

"This is my third year in competition," said Eleanor. "I really didn't begin to take skating seriously until I won the Silver Skates. That is, I was rather negligent about keeping training, and I practiced whenever convenient. This year has been different. I get to bed early, am on a strict diet to keep from gaining weight, and have been doing strenuous road work all fall.

Trains for Indoor Races.

"I have been training at the Chicago Stadium in preparation for indoor meets, too. There is a real deal of difference in indoor and outdoor skating, and so far my main difficulty has been the corners. Practice is helping me to overcome danger of falling at the abrupt turns. However, one does not have to contend with the wind resistance on an indoor rink. Another reason I believe I shall like indoor skating is that the ice is practically always the same. Weather conditions do not affect the ice, as in outdoor skating.

"I like distance skating, in which speed is not as important as endurance. In the Olympic tryouts I expect to enter the 5,000 meter race for women. I don't know whether I'll qualify, but I am practicing every day in anticipation of the event. Another meet I am preparing for is the North American indoor championships, which will probably be held at the Stadium."

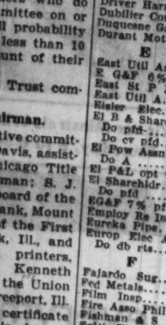
COMMITTEE BIDS IN STRAUS LAND CO. MORTGAGES

Extends Time for Deposit of Certificates.

If you have a defaulted real estate bond and haven't been able to get the desired information regarding it from the bondholders' committee or from other sources, The Tribune may be of assistance to you. Write to "The Tribune Real Estate Bond Service, Chicago Tribune." Don't ask for information regarding more than one issue at a time. Give name of underwriter and full title of the bond.

BY AL CHASE.

Coincident with the purchase at public auction of all the collateral held in series A, B, C, D, and E certificates of the Straus Land Corporation, Ltd., and Straus Brothers company by T. E. Williams, secretary of the bondholders' protective committee, it was announced yesterday that the time for deposit by owners of certificates had been extended to Jan. 12, 1933. As no bidder was present at the public sale, Mr. Williams purchased all of the underlying mortgages in the series mentioned at a price of approximately 10 per cent of the face of the outstanding certificates.



S. J. CAMPBELL.

This sale was another step in perfecting the title to these lands. As all of the mortgages now belong to the bondholders' protective committee, that body will follow this up by action to obtain title by foreclosure or otherwise, Mr. Williams states. This process, he adds, will, of course, be long drawn out on account of the legal details necessary to be pursued.

"The committee will now set up an organization for the handling of the mortgages and lands as obtained and hopes to have this function in an effective and economical way," said Mr. Williams.

Await Court Action.

"Collateral in series I was not sold. The form of the indenture under which certificates were issued in this series is such that the sale of the collateral must take place by court action through the trustees, First and Tri-State National Bank and Trust company and Fred A. Schack of Fort Wayne, Ind. Steps are now being taken to have this sale of series I take place in the near future.

"The committee feels that a final opportunity should be given to all certificate holders to participate in its operations. We have never had an accurate list of all certificate holders, but have attempted as best we could to communicate with the persons that we believed likely to be holders of certificates.

"In its desire to permit all certificate holders to participate in its activities, the committee has extended the time for the deposit of certificates to Jan. 12, 1932. To date approximately 94 per cent of all certificates have been deposited, which, we believe, is a remarkable result under the circumstances.

"These certificate holders who do not deposit with the committee on or before Jan. 12, 1932 in all probability will receive substantially less than 10 per cent of the face amount of their certificates.

Chester Davis Is Chairman.

"The bondholders' protective committee consists of Chester R. Davis, assistant trust officer of the Chicago Title and Trust company, chairman; S. J. Campbell, chairman of the board of the First Carroll County State bank, Mount Morris, Ill., also president of the First National bank of Chadwick, Ill., and Kable Brothers company, printers, Mount Morris, Ill., and Kenneth Knowlton, vice president of the Union Bank and Trust company, Freeport, Ill.

Details of the Straus land certificate situation were given in this department on Dec. 16. Briefly, it's this: About ten years ago the Straus Land Corporation, Ltd., and Straus Brothers' Co., both Indiana corporations, sold, through their organizations, several issues of certificates on farms located in many states and in Ontario.

Interest was paid on maturing coupons on all of these series until about the middle of 1930, when default occurred. As a result a bondholders' protective committee was formed to take such action as was necessary to protect the certificate holders. Mr. Williams stated two weeks ago that if the committee was the successful bidder it seemed probable that the depositing certificate holders will in due time own the farms represented by the collateral.

Dividends to 8,000.

Eight thousand bondholders within the next few days will receive their first dividend checks from the George M. Forman realty trust. Signing of the checks for investors in every state and ten foreign countries was completed yesterday by William G. Lodwick.

Thirty-nine New York, Cleveland, and Chicago apartment and hotel buildings, all defaulted as to interest and principal, are under the joint direction of the trust. More than $13,000,000 of the $14,623,000 bonds outstanding have been deposited or are under trust control, according to Mr. Lodwick. Earnings permit paying 1 per cent Jan. 1 to bondholders of record, Dec. 30, and 1 per cent on July 1, 1932.

The sale of all of the undpledged assets of H. O. Stone & Co. will be held this morning at 10 o'clock in Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson's court.

GOLD, SILVER AS MONEY: THEIR USES EXPLAINED

Benefits of Single Standard Cited.

Suspension of the gold standard by England and several other countries, coupled with restrictions on gold payments by still other nations, has again raised the question of bi-metallism, or the joint use of gold and silver as the basis of currency. In view of the renewed interest in the question The Tribune asked Dr. Lichtenstein, an authority, to discuss the question, which he does in the following article:

By Walter Lichtenstein, Ph. D.
[Executive Secretary, First National and First Union Trust and Savings Banks.]

This article is intended to clear up some misconceptions regarding the use of gold and silver for monetary purposes. It is in no sense an exhaustive treatise, for this would require a large volume.

For many centuries gold and silver together furnished the currencies for practically all countries. Before the 19th century the actual amount of gold available was relatively small and in practice silver was the metal generally in current use. There was, however, more or less difficulty owing to the fluctuations in the ratio of the value of gold to silver, for, after all, to measure by two different yardsticks which bear no fixed relation to one another is never an easy matter.

This led Great Britain in 1816, when after the Napoleonic wars she considered the resumption of specie payments to adopt gold as the sole basis for her currency. In 1871 this example was followed by Germany, and in 1873 more or less by France, Italy, Belgium, and Switzerland—the countries comprising the Latin union—and in the same year the United States also decided to adopt a single gold standard, though in this country agitation continued in favor of a bimetallic standard until the defeat in 1896 of the late William Jennings Bryan for the office of President.

Two Standards Difficult.

Fundamentally, the reason for discarding silver was due to the difficulty we had been experienced in trying to have two different standards of value. The agitation to return to a bimetallic standard has always been in effect in periods of depression, for to restore use of silver as legal tender would mean that the debtor would in practice find his debts scaled down.

It is an indirect method of accomplishing the same thing that Germany has done recently by her decree arbitrarily reducing rates of interest or loans. Aside from the questionable proceeding of violating contracts, it would seem that if such action were justifiable that then also in times of rising price level when money thereby becomes less valuable, interest rates ought to be increased so that the creditor class might not suffer.

Another argument that is often used in favor of remonetizing silver is the fact that thereby the purchasing power of the huge population of China would be greatly increased. This may be doubted. China's exports, which are paid for in gold, would bring in but in terms of silver, since each unit of gold would buy a smaller amount of silver. This would tend to raise the price of the goods which China exports and thus make it difficult for her people to sell their goods in foreign countries.

Needs Political Stability.

The fact is that the present chaotic conditions in China clearly prevent its people from producing and carrying on business in a normal fashion, and as this has been more or less the case for many years, it is safe to assume that there can be no real improvement in the purchasing power of that unhappy land until political stability is reëstablished, regardless of any currency situation.

The chief effect of the rise of the price of silver would be to benefit the owners of silver mines, who, after all, are too small a part of the world's population to expect that changes in currency should be made for their benefit. Then, too, even as far as they are concerned, since silver is not merely a by-product of gold, copper, lead, or zinc, the owners of silver mines are really suffering more from the fall in the price of other metals than from anything which has happened to silver. The price of silver has followed the trend of that of other commodities and offers in that respect no isolated problem.

There is considerable misunderstanding of the purpose of any double standard as a basis for the issue of currency. Gold and, to a lesser extent, silver have acquired a permanent character as if some mystic quality attached to these metals giving them a peculiar value. As a matter of fact, any standard of value, be it gold or silver or some other material, serves merely as a measuring rod to enable the exchange of commodities to take place more easily.

Would Be Too Cumbersome.

Direct exchange of goods for goods would be too cumbersome and is impossible in any highly developed industrial system, except to a very limited extent. The worker in a shoe factory who would receive his wages in pairs of shoes would find it rather awkward to take these shoes to the grocer, baker, and candlestick maker in order to exchange them for the goods he needs. And how would he pay his rent, and what would a modern government do, all of whose taxes were payable in kind and who would be forced to pay the obligations in a similar manner?

The world very early therefore hit upon the necessity of finding some medium which could be easily handled and which would be acceptable everywhere and out of this need developed money and other forms of credit instruments. Hence, money is only a token and it is as a token that it has

Large Loan Is Made on South Wells St. Fee

Edgar M. Snow & Co. have negotiated a $400,000 refunding loan on the fee at 316-26 South Wells street for three years with interest at 5½ per cent per annum for George A. McKinlock. The property, 137x153, is improved with a seven story garage building erected in 1929 by a syndicate which leased the land for ninety-nine years from Mr. McKinlock in January of that year.

A bond issue of $540,000 was underwritten by Leight & Co. on the leasehold but through an early default in the covenants of the lease and later foreclosure, the property reverted to the land owner, Mr. McKinlock. The bondholders were completely wiped out, it is stated.

Leased to Lydy.

This is the property which Albert H. Wetten & Co. leased for Mr. McKinlock to R. G. Lydy last week for twenty years at a term rental of $950,000. This is at the rate of $45,000 annually for the first ten years and $50,000 net for each of the last ten years. Mr. Lydy, who is the largest operator of open air parking stations throughout the loop, will operate this as his third garage unit. The building accommodates about 750 cars.

Michele Govra has purchased 200 feet of vacant adjoining the southwest corner of Hibbard road and Wilmette avenue, in Wilmette, from Nathaniel F. Well, and probably will improve with a residence.

Delaware Place Lease.

Estelle Lawrence, Inc., designer of gowns, now at 180 North Michigan avenue, has leased the store at 132 East Delaware place, in the 900 Michigan Avenue North building, for a five year term. The lessee will move as soon as alterations have been completed. Howard L. Storch of Ross & Browne, agents of the property, was broker.

Pritikin Bros. have leased the 20x125 store at 6306 West 22d street, adjoining the Woolworth store, from the Central Republic Bank and Trust company, trustee, for a term of years from Jan. 1, 1932, at a reported annual rental of $3,000. The lessees will operate a grocery. Coen-Berkson & Co., Inc., were brokers.

Kuppenheimer to Show First Loss in Its History

The annual report of B. Kuppenheimer & Co. for the fiscal year ended Oct. 31, 1931, will show a net loss of approximately $130,000 after all charges, including depreciation, according to the preliminary figures. In the preceding fiscal year the company had a net profit of $278,970 after all charges, equal after preferred dividends to $2.23 a share on the 100,000 shares of common stock outstanding. The loss reported is the first ever incurred by the company in its fifty-five years of existence, it is stated.

RAILWAY WAGE CUT DECISION DUE HERE SOON

Shopmen Take Cut

San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 29.—(AP)—Southern Pacific union shopmen agreed late today to accept a 10 per cent reduction in wages, effective Jan. 1. The agreement came after a lengthy conference in which the shopmen contended for a guarantee of a four day minimum week at the reduced wage. Southern Pacific representatives said the guarantee was not given.

Representatives of the unskilled workers of the Southern Pacific will meet with company officials Dec. 31 to discuss a wage cut.

Cleveland, O., Dec. 29.—(AP)—The Railway Labor Executives' association, comprising 21 brotherhoods and unions, today set Jan. 14 as the date for meeting in Chicago with a committee of nine railroad presidents to discuss the unions' proposals for unemployment relief and the railroads' proposed 15 per cent wage cut. Reports have been current that the unions will accept a 10 per cent reduction in pay.

In addition the railway labor heads decided to call the brotherhoods' 1,500 general chairmen on the various railroads to meet in Chicago Jan. 12 in advance of the presidents' conference to determine upon a policy for the Jan. 14 meeting.

200 to Meet Presidents.

Labor heads expect to have a representative committee from each involved labor organization participate in the conference with the railroad presidents.

This will include the 21 executives of the brotherhoods and subcommittees from each organization, bringing the total labor representation at the conference to approximately 200.

D. B. Robertson, chairman of the association and president of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen, said the conference did not discuss the proposed wage decrease asked by the railroads at the New York meeting Dec. 18. The railway presidents on that date notified individual lines of their desire to have the employés accept a 15 per cent wage decrease.

Period of Sacrifice.

New York, Dec. 29.—(AP)—Railway labor, by realizing that it must face a period of sacrifice, may make a most important contribution to recovery, said J. J. Bernet in an annual survey today.

Mr. Bernet, who is president of the Chesapeake and Ohio, regarded certain restorations in freight revenues recently allowed by the interstate commerce commission as contributing something towards relief.

But he was more hopeful over the wage situation. 'The apparent realization by railroad employés that they, too, as well as the stockholders and bondholders, and everybody else, for that matter, must face a period of sacrifice, which we hope will only be temporary will be a most important contribution to the recovery."

Down 40 Per Cent.

Decrease of 40 per cent in November net operating income is shown in the returns of the first 67 railroads to report for that month as compared with a year ago. The aggregate net operating income was $33,891,000 contrasted with $57,250,000 in the same month last year, and $60,112,000, in October of this year. Net operating revenue of roads reporting today included:

Pittsburgh and W. Va.	$ 38,383	$ 83,517
Canadian Pacific.....	4,774,625	4,085,754
Buff., Roch. and Pitts.	147,439	188,021

Erie	319,939	1,170,026
Kansas City Southern..	110,031	209,044

In a move to pare down operating expenses, the Lehigh Valley railroad will consolidate six of its present divisions into three new operating divisions. The change will go into effect on Jan. 1.

File Master Tariff.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Dec. 29.—The railroads of the country today filed with the interstate commerce commission the master tariff covering the freight rate increases on certain commodities provided for under the railroad credit corporation plan. Under the terms of the tariff the rate increases from which approximately 100 million dollars additional revenue is expected will become effective Jan. 4.

The tariff described only the various commodities on which the rates are to be increased and the amount of increase, no specific rates being mentioned. Specified rates are arrived at by superimposing the separate increases on existing rates, the aggregate increase for the entire railroad system amounting to slightly more than three per cent on the basis of 1931 traffic and 4 per cent based on traffic in 1930.

DEFICIT FOR ILLINOIS CENTRAL.

President L. A. Downs of the Illinois Central railroad yesterday estimated that his company would show a 1931 deficit after charges of about $4,500,000. Earlier estimates placed the deficit at as high as $7,000,000. The $1,158,675 tax refund obtained from the government figured in last year's accounts, and therefore will have no influence on 1931 earnings.

CHICAGO STOCK PRICES GAIN AS PRESSURE EASES

Trading on the Chicago exchange continued fairly active yesterday but the year-end selling slowed up and stocks moved forward in an irregular advance. Liquidation was still in evidence in some issues but mostly among the inactives, while the market leaders generally finished the day above previous prices.

The Insull securities were in better demand with Commonwealth Edison bringing 116⅛ at the close of the period, a net gain of 1½. Middle West Utilities sold off during the day as the heavy trade continued but rallied to close with a slight gain. Corporation Securities preferred was a point better at 4 on moderate dealings. Directors are expected to meet today for action on the quarterly dividend. Selling at 4 the issue is still nominally on a $3 annual basis.

The total turnover of 170,000 shares included several transactions in issues which have not been traded in in many cases for weeks and months. This type of trade, which usually appears at the year-end, accounted for some wide price changes. Metropolitan Elevated 4 per cent bonds of 1938 appeared on the tape at 37 as compared with the previous quotation of 57.

Coupons are payable at the office of the Trustee, The Chase National Bank of the City of New York. Coupons may be deposited for collection at any local bank, or may be handled by the investment house from whom the shares were originally purchased.

REINVESTMENT RIGHTS

Because a portion of the coupon distribution from Corporate Trust Shares, old series, represents a return of principal, holders of these shares are extended "rights" to purchase either of the new series Corporate Trust Shares at a discount from offering price, to the extent of one (1) new share for each ten (10) old shares held. Rights are exercisable throughout the month of January. Rights Coupon No. 6 attached to certificates for Corporate Trust Shares, old series, should be presented to the investment house or bank from whom the shares were purchased. Rights coupons should NOT be sent to the Trustee. No "rights" are offered on either of the new series Corporate Trust Shares inasmuch as the distribution represents entirely (a) cash dividends, (b) interest on cash accumulations, and (c) proceeds of nominal stock dividends treated as current income.

New York Banks Agree on Asset Valuation Procedure

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—At a meeting of presidents and other senior officers of the principal New York banks, held today at the New York Clearing house, uniform procedure for valuing securities in year-end balance sheets was discussed and tacitly adopted.

The action agreed to is, in general, to follow the principles laid down by the state banking department, and, in case of national banks, the rules of the controller of the currency, which permit high grade securities to be inventoried at cost or book value, with writeoffs only on securities of less than best ratings.

Takes No Action.

The clearing house committee of the Clearing House association, it was made plain, is not acting upon this question of valuation of assets entering into bank resources. The committee and the association have not voted upon the subject, explicitly leaving the question to the individual banks. The fact that the clearing house is not officially acting on the matter does not prevent uniformity of procedure being achieved through unofficial agreement between the banks themselves. This has been arranged.

For several weeks all the clearing banks, state and national, have been debating what they should do respecting their holdings of bonds, most of which are of the best grade, though depreciated in price to levels 10 to 15 per cent under purchase price. In accordance with time honored tradition, many of the banks felt that all their bonds should be written down to market, irrespective of how great a writeoff was needful. Other banks felt that, while the clearing house banks could do this without harm, it would be a demonstration of strength at the expense of small institutions here and in other sections of the country and state, whose position would not justify heavy writeoffs and which would thereby suffer by comparison with the local banks writing down their investments to market.

Must Stand Together.

It was the consensus that this was just another occasion in the long history of New York banking and the clearing house which required all the banks to stand together, the big banks following for the time unorthodox methods of valuation for the sake of the remainder of the New York banks. It is believed that there is nothing in the agreement reached which will prevent the establishment of appropriate reserves where required.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—Directors of the Reading company today declared a dividend of 50 cents on the common stock. This is a reduction from the previous quarterly rate of $1 a share. Approximately 40 per cent of the outstanding stock of the Reading is held by the Baltimore and Ohio. New York Central also holds a block of the stock. The Reading owns a majority of the capital stock of the Central Railroad of New Jersey.

The regular quarterly dividends were authorized by the directors of two large industrials. American Can voted the usual quarterly disbursement of $1 a share and Allied Chemical and Dye corporation declared the regular quarterly payment of $1.50 a share.

BY FRED HARVEY.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Dec. 29.—The stock market began to brush up its New Year's resolutions today. The leaders mustered enough pep to run up gains of from 1 to 2 points, and some of their second string followers did a mite better than that even. Volume increased to around 2,400,000 shares.

Old timers said it was the beginning of the traditional year-end rally. Some of them forgot they were saying something of the same thing of a similar spurt which developed a couple of days before Christmas, calling that the traditional pre-Christmas upturn, and that they had to eat crow the next day when the list promptly turned down again.

Pressure Eases.

Today's improvement was due obviously to an easing up of the pressure of year-end tax selling which has been playing such hob with popular hopes of a holiday turn of price movements for so long. This subsidence of selling extended to all departments and was accompanied by a somewhat better brand of demand. Price trends, as a result, were able to point a slow moving course toward higher levels pretty steadily throughout the session.

The best prices were reached around the middle of the afternoon, after which the advance was halted by a flurry of profit taking which usually attends such phenomena after such a protracted shakeout.

Return to Market.

One feature of the otherwise monotonous day to attract comment was the appearance on the tape of a number of stocks which had not been sold before in months. Thus, Chicago and Eastern Illinois preferred came out for the first time since Sept. 25 of last year. The price on that "farewell" 1930 occasion was 29. Today 5,000 shares sold at a half dollar each, which statistics sharks of the street say comes pretty close to being a record for price swings. A few hours later a sale of 400 shares of the common stock took place also at a half dollar, a drop of 21¼ points from the previous sale last year.

Wabash preferred B came out for the second time this year when 100 shares changed hands at 1¼, a drop of 24¾ points from the previous price recorded back early in the year. Incidentally this was the first sale of this issue since the receivership. Still another inactive issue to make its appearance for the first time in months was Soo Line preferred, which dropped 7 points on a single sale.

United States Steel, Allied Chemical, American Telephone, and other prominent group leaders reflected the abatement of tax selling by rebounding for 2 points or so each. U. S. Steel touched 39¾, as compared with its bear market low of 36, but was not able to stay "put" in face of the realizing it was called upon to absorb in the last thirty minutes of trading. It closed at 38, giving it a net gain of more than a point on the day.

Can Is Quiet.

American Can failed to participate in the rally as fully as it might have in spite of popular expectations that the directors of the corporation would declare the regular $1 quarterly dividend at their meeting after the close of the market. Allied Chemical at one time was up about 4 points in response to the declaration of its regular $1.50 dividend, but had to give way with other pivotals to the profit takers. The preferred stock of this corporation lost about 3 points on a nominal turnover.

Eaton Axle succeeded in holding its own in spite of the action of its board in cutting the dividend to 12½c a share quarterly. At its last quarterly meeting the board had cut the rate from 40c to 25c.

Money rates continued firm, although the ruling rate on the stock exchange failed to top the 3 per cent level at which renewals were arranged.

SUGAR.

NEW YORK, Dec. 29.—(AP)—SUGAR—Raw was firm today and although no sales were reported, there was a good inquiry at last paid prices of 3.13c for spots with nothing firmly offered below 3.15c.

Sugar futures also were firmer, reflecting the strength of the spot market, better Liverpool cables and expectations of favorable developments at the coming conference of the International Sugar council abroad on Thursday. Approximate sales, 12,300 tons, including 3,000 in the form of exchanges. Price follow:

Estimated receipts at Chicago today: Cattle, 1,500; hogs, 35,000; sheep, 12,000.

Light weight hogs sold freely at about steady prices yesterday, but a market for medium and weighty lots bit a snag in midsession and sold fully 15c under the general run the day before, with the spread between widest since early last month. The general average for the whole day was down 10c at $4.30, while the season top showed 5c loss at $4.55. Most interests were willing buyers at the full reduction toward the close, as there were still 8,000 left, including those held off the market. Offerings yesterday carried an unusually large number of hogs weighing over 300 lbs and these comprised the bulk of the supply carried over for today's sale. Receipts are running heavier than a week ago. The five markets reported 19,000 in sight for today, against 27,000 last Wednesday.

Hog Futures Dull.

January and February contracts were the only kinds of $4 on the hog futures market yesterday, while March medium were bid $5. February heavy weights were offered at $5.25 and March at $5.50. Trading was dull, with total receipts at 8,000 proved too much for the trade yesterday and were finally disposed of the bulk of the supply at fully 25c lower price basis. Pressure was brought to bear shortly after the opening of trading and additional price cuts in medium grades brought these 50@75c under the price range in vogue at the middle of last week.

A large number of cattle went into the afternoon rounds on unsatisfactory and late indications were that there would be quite a carryover for today's trade. Supplies are only moderate for this time of year, but they offer a substantial increase compared with last week's abnormally small receipts. Five western markets report cattle in sight for today, against 13,300 last Wednesday.

Lambs Recover Loss.

Killer action featured the lamb market yesterday and all of the Monday losses were replaced, with the top unchanged at $6.40, a new high for the month. All interests paid $6.35 readily for best grades of slaughter lambs and the bulk sold to packers at $6.00@6.25. The lamb market has advanced $1.50@1.75 in ten days.

Some local packers have been active in the buying for the top grades of lambs, though much of their buying was on eastern account where supplies have been rather short. Aged wethers were in better demand at strong prices and yearlings ruled strong to 50c higher. Feeder lambs held steady.

$2.93 is the average Monthly Cost of a $225 loan under COMMONWEALTH'S Reduced Rate. This allows 25 months for repayment. There is no lower cost than this in Chicago.

THE personal property which nearly every family owns and the signature of husband and wife enable one to secure any amount up to $300 quickly and easily.

THERE ARE NO fees or deductions. You may take 25 months or pay all or part sooner. Interest at the Reduced Rate is charged only while you keep the money.
